

G. O. P. BEGINS NOMINATIONS

FIRST THAT OF HUGHES BY GOVERNOR WHITMAN

Speech Interrupted by Six Minute Demonstration for Taft—A 20 Minute Demonstration for Justice Hughes—Butler Offers the Name of Root

CHICAGO, June 9.—Nominations of candidates began today in the republican convention. The first was that of Justice Hughes. Gov. Whitman made the nomination speech, when as the roll of states was called, Alabama and Alaska passed, and Arizona yielded to New York. Gov. Whitman's speech was interrupted by a six-minute demonstration for former President Taft, which the republican peace conference declared they considered "unofficial instructions."

Earlier the convention had heard the report of the conference with the progressives. The conference will continue.

Gov. Whitman reached his peroration at 12:11 o'clock and a demonstration began.

Called to Order

Chairman Harding called the republican convention to order and Bishop McDevell offered prayer. The hall was more crowded than it had been at that hour on any other day. Delegates from favorite son states appeared with flags.

Finally at 12:17 Chairman Harding got the meeting in order and the convention stood while Bishop William F. McDowell offered prayer.

Before going on a national committee contest from Kentucky was considered for a moment by unanimous consent.

Senator Smoot read the report of the peace conference.

When Mr. Smoot came to the announcement that the progressives had urged that C. C. Roosevelt had the attributes of "the most desirable candidate upon which to unite" there was applause, cheers and some hisses.

There were cries of "Roosevelt," a jangling of cowbells and more cheers. Senator Smoot held up his hand for silence but the demonstration, coming from different places on the floor and galleries, continued. Some few tried to hush down the demonstration. At cries of "order, order," Chairman Harding banged the gavel and the noise subsided. Scattering applause and some laughter marked the close of the rally.

Applause and cheers marked the announcement that the conference would continue their work.

Then came the big business of the convention—the nomination of candidates.

Whitman Nominates Hughes

The roll of states was called, and Alabama and Alaska passed. Arizona yielded to New York and Gov. Whitman was recognized and took the platform to nominate Justice Hughes. The demonstration subsided while Gov. Whitman was introduced.

His declaration was that "we are here to choose the next president" was applauded.

Then the governor went on to a denunciation of President Wilson's foreign policy. For the times to come, he declared, the nation called for "our greatest statesmen and the republican party."

"No man living," he shouted, "can claim a monopoly of the American spirit in his heart or in his nature. The republican party is full of them. The convention greeted this with an outburst of handclapping, and there was another when he declared the nation should always be 'prepared and proud to fight.'"

Demonstration For Taft

There was a demonstration when Gov. Whitman mentioned the name of William Howard Taft. The delegates rose cheering and waving their hats and for the first time the whole body of them were on their feet. The band struck up and rolled the cheers along. It was the longest demonstration of the convention so far and lasted six minutes.

When Mr. Whitman quoted from an eight year old speech of Justice Hughes declaring for "adequate provision for our defense and maintenance of the efficiency of 'the army' and navy," there was more applause.

Gov. Whitman concluded at 12:11 with the words: "The great state of New York, through the lips of its governor, offers to the people of the party, to the voters of the party—no, not only to them, but to the great nation—her son, her noblest and her best."

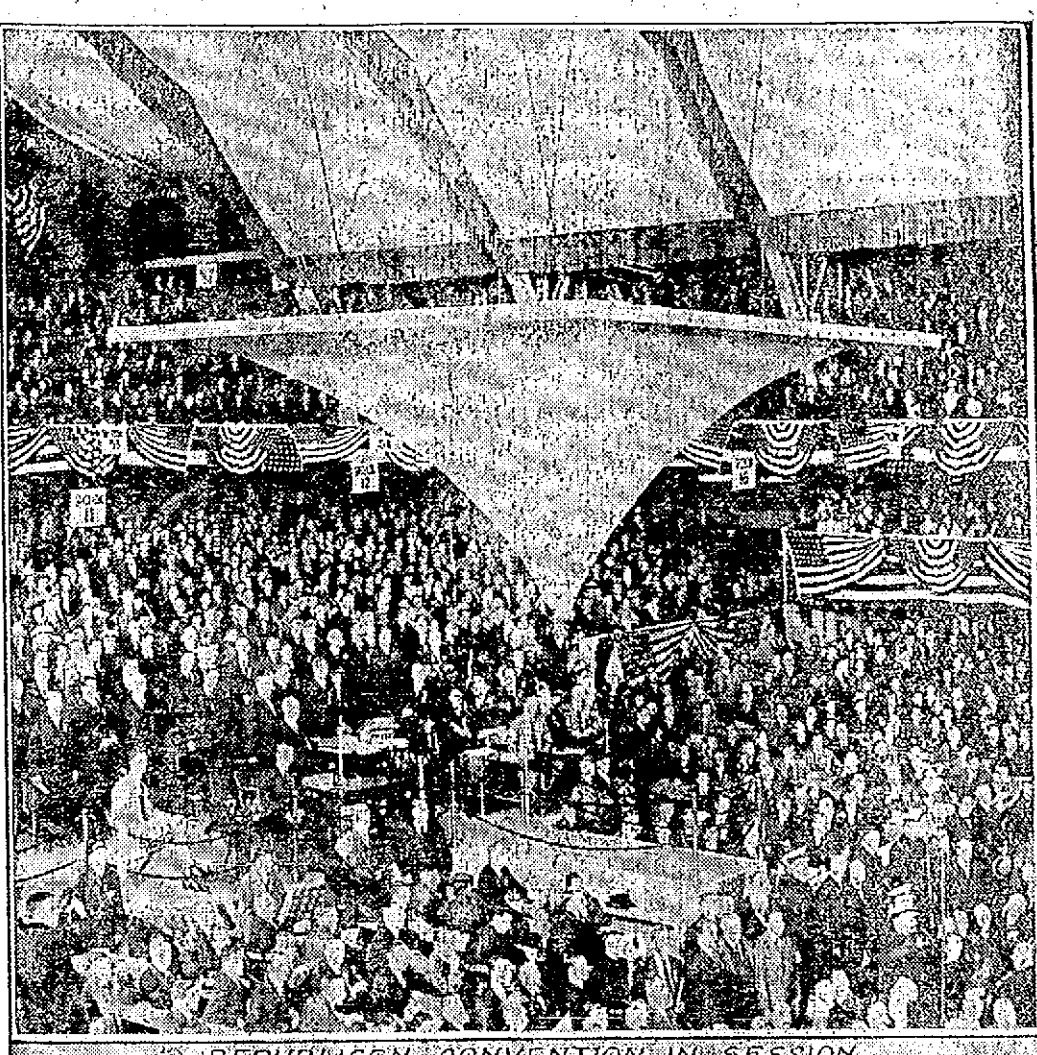

"I nominate," as the republican candidate for president of the United States Charles Evans Hughes of New York."

REPORTS OF PEACE CONFEREES ANNOUNCED

REPUBLICAN PEACE CONFEREES REPORT

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 9.—The republican conference of the joint progressive-republican peace conference today submitted the following report: To the republican national convention:

Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session, met in conference with a committee representing the national progressive conference last evening. That the progressive committee of the conference consisted of Messrs. Perkins of New York, Johnson of California, Bonaparte of Maryland, Wilkinson of New York and Parker of Louisiana.

The conference was frank, free and most friendly. The conferees were of one mind in believing that the good of the country and perhaps its future and influence of years to come depends upon the complete defeat of the present democratic administration and the restoration of the control of the executive and legislative branches of the government to the hands of those who firmly believe in and will execute the policies that are so heartily supported by the republican and progressive parties alike.

The progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite.

It was agreed that your conferees correction. While he is confined his children will receive $2 a week.

Drunk Offenders

Philip Beagle, charged with drunkenness, was in court this morning but his case was continued until Wednesday of next week. John Kelly pleaded not guilty to a similar complaint and his case was continued until tomorrow morning.

IN SUPERIOR COURT

The jury in the case of Carr vs. Cope, an action of contract by which the plaintiff seeks to recover for professional services, which was brought to a close yesterday afternoon, this morning rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $462.50.

The next case to go to trial was that of C. L. Todd vs. the Travelers and Mechanics Fire Insurance Co., an action of contract by which the plaintiff seeks to recover for the loss of a building by fire at Lincoln on March 18, 1915.

FIRE ALARM THIS NOON

PROGRESSIVE PEACE CONFEREES REPORT

AUDITORIUM HALL, Chicago, June 9, 11:32 a.m.—The report of the progressive conferees follows: To the progressive national convention:

Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session met in conference with the committee representing the national republican convention last evening. The committee of conferees representing the republican national convention consisted of Messrs. Smoot, Crane, Borah, Butler and Johnson.

The conference was most friendly. Immediately upon assembling your committee proposed as the joint nominee of both conventions the name of Theodore Roosevelt.

The committee representing the republican national convention did not present the name of any candidate nor did it attempt to refute our arguments relating to the unique availability of Theodore Roosevelt as a candidate to unite both parties or to serve our common country at this crucial period in the history of the world.

After several hours of friendly discussion, during which no concrete proposition was advanced by the republican conferees, except that a further conference might be desirable this afternoon or evening, the joint committee adjourned.

BORAH GIVEN OVATION BY THE PROGRESSIVES

Senator Interrupted With Cries of "We Want Teddy"—Biggest Demonstration of Session—Borah Praises Colonel—Suffrage Plank Amended

AUDITORIUM HALL, Chicago, June 9, 12:44 p.m.—Without any preliminary announcement, Senator Borah entered the Auditorium hall at 12:40 p.m. where the progressives were assembled in convention. He was escorted to the platform. A tremendous ovation was given him.

Chairman Robins introduced Senator Borah and the convention roared itself hoarse when the senator said he had not come officially.

"I will say to you frankly," were his first words, "I came over here to get an inspiration."

At once a wave swept over the hall, suggesting that stronger events than harmony with Borah as the man to unite the parties, might happen. This thought grew as the senator in his speech introduced the "magic" name, "Roosevelt," as the progressives' great leader.

"We Want Teddy!"

"We want Teddy!" resounded through the hall and galleries with more vim than at any time since the convention assembled.

It was not "canned enthusiasm," or if it was the can had burst from internal compression.

Senator Borah waited quietly and finally chairman Robins urged quiet.

"It is well known," the deep seated affection I have for your leader," he said, and was hailed by another salvo of enthusiasm, the whole convention in a mighty chant, shouting "We want Teddy!"

The shouting continued and then was renewed, leaders on the stage joining.

"There's no doubt you want Teddy," said Senator Borah.

"We want Borah, too," answered the delegates and the senator proceeded and swinging into the stride of his speech which he promised would be brief.

He put a quietus on the whispered circulation of his name as a "possible Moses" by reminding the progressive convention that he was present as a member of "another convention."

"There is no doubt," he said, "that you want Teddy and that millions of citizens throughout the country also want Teddy," he began.

"You are fortunate in having a leader," he continued, "who has done more than any other man to make the issues of this campaign."

"He is a man of questions involved in this international crisis."

The convention responded enthusiastically to the praise of the colonel: "But let us bear in mind," he urged, "that these two conventions here will perhaps decide the welfare of the United States for the next quarter of a century. We can only insure ourselves by working together in close co-operation. I do not discourage your loyalty and enthusiasm to your leader, but I must say it is essential that before we leave this great city it should be definitely determined that we shall march and fight together in this great contest."

"But if the two conventions agree upon your great leader you will find no more enthusiastic supporter than myself."

Borah concluded, amid applause and shouts of "Roosevelt and Borah."

As Borah shook hands with the leaders on the stage and left, the floor hummed with excited discussion of the dramatic development.

Woman Suffrage

The progressive convention amended the platform committee's plank on women's suffrage so as to declare for the "full right of suffrage by both federal and state action." The committee had used the word "either."

A report of the peace conferees appointed by the progressive national convention was read to the delegates.

HOBSON'S CHOICE

Thomas Hobson was the first man in England that let out harking horses. When a man came for a horse, he was led into the stables where there was a great choice; but he was obliged to take the horse which stood next to the stable door so that every customer was served according to his chance.

Our policy is just the opposite from that of Hobson. We have a great variety to choose from, but you are not obliged to take the one thing that is shown you. Our clerks will go to any inconvenience to show you the right article. Hobson's method of selling was by restricted choice; ours by a free choice after a thorough examination.

THE PAWTUCKET BRIDGE

At a special meeting of the municipal council held this forenoon it was voted to borrow $7000 for the widening of a portion of School street and also a portion of Mammoth road between Pawtucket street and Varnum avenue. This was in connection with the building of the new bridge and it was also voted to widen a portion of School street and Mammoth road, to re-establish lines and to seize by right of eminent domain certain parcels of land.

Another vote in connection with the construction of the bridge was to instruct the commissioner of streets and highways to inform owners of property near the approaches to the bridge that they must have their buildings removed by July 15. If the buildings are not removed by that time, Mr. Morse will have his men remove them.

SIX CENT FARES

Division of the Bay State
Urged by Fall River
and New Bedford

BOSTON, June 9.—Protests against the proposed six-cent fare and complaints against present service from representatives of the Fall River, New Bedford and Chelsea districts yesterday completed the hearing of local issues in the Bay State Street railway fare case before the public service commission.

One of the most vigorous protests yet made came from City Solicitor George Grime, Mayor James H. Kay and Alderman William C. Gray of Fall River, the people of which now have the privilege of buying fare tickets at the rate of six for 25 cents. Thus a 6-cent fare would mean an increase of substantially two cents per fare.

This special rate, it was explained, was granted to Fall River people years ago by the old Globe street railway in return for certain operating privileges over the Slade's Ferry bridge.

Mayor Kay said: "Instead of a fare increase they ought to be asking for an arrangement to separate the northern and southern lines on the Bay State. Fall River would get a good service as is now rendered to New Bedford by the Bay State's competitive lines."

Vice President Robert S. Goff, once president of the Globe road, when cross-examined as to its history, admitted it had been a good dividend-paying proposition.

City Solicitor Henry E. Woodward of New Bedford urged that the Bay State's line to New Bedford be leased by the Union Street railway, which operates all the other lines radiating from the city.

Louis R. Kierman, city solicitor of Chelsea, after securing from the Federal administration that Boston-Chelsea service alone would be a paying proposition, said: "Our service is deplorable. Practically every Bay State car going north has to pass through Chelsea, and that is a condition that should be taken into consideration in determining the amount of fare. Cars come through so crowded that you can't even put a bundle on them."

There will be no session of the hearing today. The main case will proceed next Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

BIGAMY CHARGE

North Adams Man in Court for Non-Support
of Lowell Wife

Charles Denis, wanted by the local police on a complaint charging him with non-support of Ida Denis of this city, who claims he is her husband, was brought to Lowell from Holyoke by Inspector John A. Walsh early this morning. Denis has a wife and several children in North Adams.

A few days ago the North Adams police received a warrant from Lowell asking for the arrest of Denis. Knowing that the man had a wife and family in North Adams, the police of the latter city did not arrest him, fearing that a mistake had been made. Denis is employed in the Beaver mills and is well known there. The man's wife in North Adams was prosecuted when she learned of his arrest and refused to believe that he was also married to another woman. It is alleged that Denis denies that the Lowell woman is his wife.

Denis was arraigned before Judge Enright in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with neglect of his wife. He entered a plea of not guilty and when asked if he was ready for trial answered in the negative. By agreement it was decided to continue the case until tomorrow morning.

Grand Jury Investigation—1 Death—Others
May Die

NEW YORK, June 9.—A grand jury investigation was begun last night into a rear-end collision yesterday afternoon on the elevated railroad, near 140th street and 3d avenue, in which one person was killed and 15 injured, some perhaps fatally.

Edward Grove, tower man, was arrested on a charge of homicide, Coroner Flynn announced. After Grove had admitted that the signals were clear for the motorman of the rear train to proceed, thus permitting it to crash into the rear of a stalled express train.

All the injured were passengers in the first car of the local train, south bound, and in which the motorman, Frank K. Kerrigan, suffered injuries from which he died in a hospital. The express train, also bound downtown, carried no passengers.

Flames, which burst almost immediately from the wreckage, gained little headway, as firemen with ladders soon ascended to the structure. The smoke added, however, to the panic within the train, and made the work of rescue more difficult. The third rail also handicapped the rescuers.

The injured were taken down ladders to ambulances rushed from nearby hospitals.

ADDITION TO PAWTUCKET SCHOOL FAVORED—PARK FOR HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

At a meeting of the school committee held last night the former vote to approve a six-room addition to the Pawtucket school was rescinded, and the tentative plan of Architect Gilbert for an eight-room addition was approved.

It was voted to extend the manual training and cooking to the Green-

The matter of vocational guidance was discussed, and the secretary was instructed by the vote of the committee to write to Meyer Blumfield as to the possibility of getting a suitable man to start the work here.

It was voted to reserve the tickets for the floor of the house on the night of the high school graduation for the members of the graduation class.

The superintendent read a communication from R. E. Gifford, director of physical training at the Lowell Textile school, suggesting the development of a plan for physical training in the grammar schools. The cost, he said, would not exceed $600. He urged the importance of the right kind of training and physical development during the grammar school age of pupils. The superintendent was authorized to confer with Mr. Gifford in relation to meeting in conference with the members of the school committee.

Extensions of leave of absence were granted to Miss Lena A. Gookin and Miss E. Grace Common.

A letter from the lessee of Wash- ington park, suggesting the use of that park for outdoor athletics for the high school, was discussed. The offer contained in the communication was to lease the park for the summer for $700. The consensus of opinion was that the plan is not feasible at present.

COUNT PLUNKETT FREED

ORDERED WITH COUNTESS, TO LEAVE DUBLIN—THEY ATTEND SERVICE FOR THEIR SON

LONDON, June 9.—Count and Countess Plunkett, who were arrested early last month shortly after the suppression of the Irish rebellion, were released from custody last Wednesday and ordered to leave Dublin by next Saturday, according to a Central News despatch from Dublin yesterday.

The count and countess attended requiem mass in the Cornhill church yesterday for the repose of the soul of their son Joseph, who was put to death for participation in the rebellion. The church was thronged. In the congregation was the widow of Joseph Plunkett, who was married to him in prison on the morning of the day he was executed.

Three sons of Count Plunkett were implicated in the Irish revolt. One of them, Joseph Plunkett, was executed, and death sentences on the two others, George and John Plunkett, were commuted to sentences of 10 years' penal servitude.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

Demands Protection of American Rights at Home and Abroad—Suffrage is Indorsed

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 9.—Following is the platform adopted by the republican national committee:

In 1861 the republican party stood for the Union. As it stood for the Union of states, it now stands for the Union of people, true to American ideals, loyal to American traditions, knowing no allegiance except to the constitution, to the government and to the flag of the United States. We believe in American policies at home and abroad.

Protection of American Rights
We declare that we believe in and will enforce the protection of every American citizen in all the rights secured to him by the constitution, treaties and the law of nations, at home and abroad, by land and by sea. These rights, which in violation of the specific promise of their party made at Baltimore in 1912, the democratic president and the democratic congress have failed to defend, we will unflinchingly maintain.

Foreign Relations
We desire peace, the peace of justice and right, and believe in maintaining a straight and honest neutrality between the belligerents in the great war in Europe. We must perform all our duties and insist upon all our rights as neutrals, without fear and without favor.

We believe that peace and neutrality, as well as the dignity and influence of the United States cannot be preserved by shifty expedients, by phrase-making, by performances in language, or by utilizing ever changing in an effort to secure votes of voters. The present administration has destroyed our influence abroad and humiliated us in our own eyes.

of the factions responsible for these outrages.
We pledge our aid in restoring order and maintaining peace in Mexico. We promise to our citizens on and near our border, and to those in Mexico, wherever they may be found, adequate and absolute protection in their lives, liberty and property.

Monroe Doctrine
We reaffirm our approval of the Monroe doctrine, and declare its maintenance to be a policy of this country essential to its present and future peace and safety and to the achievement of its manifest destiny.

Latin America
We favor the continuance of republican policies, which will result in commercial, financial and social relations between this country and the countries of Latin America.

Philippines
We renew our allegiance to the Philippine policy inaugurated by McKinley, approved by congress, and consistently carried out by Roosevelt and Taft. Even in this short time it has enormously improved the material and social conditions of the islands. The Philippine people are constantly increasing population in their government, and, if persisted in, will bring still greater benefits in the future.

We accepted the responsibility of the islands as a duty to civilization and the Philippine people, to leave with our task half done would break our pledges, injure our prestige among nations and imperil what has already been accomplished.

We condemn the democratic administration for its attempt to abandon the Philippines, which is with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien, and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance.

We reiterate our unqualified approval of the action taken in December, 1911, by the president and congress to secure with Russia, as with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien, and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance.

Protection of the Country

In order to maintain our peace and make certain the security of our people we must have not only adequate but thorough and complete national defense, ready for any emergency. We must have a sufficient and efficient regular army, and a provision for ample reserves, already drilled and disciplined, who can be called at once to the colors when the hour of danger comes.

We must have a navy so strong and so well proportioned and equipped, so thoroughly ready and prepared, that no enemy can gain command of the sea and effect a landing in force on either our western or our eastern coast.

To secure the results we must have a coherent continuous policy of national defense, which even in these perilous days the democratic party has utterly failed to develop, but which we promise to give to the country.

Tariff

The republican party stands now, as always, in the fullest sense for the policy of tariff protection to American industries and American labor and does not regard an anti-dumping provision as an adequate substitute. Such protection is a necessary part of our economic life, but sufficient to protect adequately American industry and American labor, and be so adjusted as to prevent undue exactions by monopolies or trusts. It should, moreover, give special attention to securing the industrial independence of the United States in the case of dyestuffs.

Through wise tariff and industrial legislation our industries can be so organized that they will become not only a commercial bulwark, but a powerful aid to national defense.

Under the democratic tariff act is a complete failure in every respect. Under its administration imports have enormously increased, in spite of the fact that the intercourse with foreign countries has been largely cut off by reason of the war, while the revenues of which we stand in such dire need have been greatly reduced.

Under the normal conditions which prevailed prior to the war, it was clearly demonstrated that this act deprived the American producer and the American wage earner of that protection which entitled them to meet their foreign competitors on a level, but for the adventitious conditions created by the war, would long since have paralyzed all forms of American industry, and deprived American labor of its just reward.

It has not in the least reduced the cost of living, which has constantly advanced from the date of its enactment. The welfare of our people demands its repeal and the substitution of a measure which in peace as well as in war will produce ample revenue and give reasonable protection to all forms of American production in mine, forest, field and factory.

We favor the creation of a tariff commission with complete power to gather and compile information for the use of congress in all matters relating to the tariff.

Business

The republican party has long believed in the rigid supervision and strict regulation of the transportation and great corporations of the country. It has put its creed into its deeds and all really effective laws regulating the railroads and the great industrial corporations are the work of republican congresses and presidents.

For this policy of regulation and supervision the democrats, in a stumbling and peaceable way, are undertaking to involve the government in business which should be left within the sphere of private enterprise and in direct competition with its own citizens, a policy which is sure to result in waste, great expense to the taxpayer and in inferior product.

The republican party firmly believes that all who violate the laws in regulation of business should be individually punished. But prosecution is very different from persecution, and business success, no matter how honestly attained, is apparently regarded by the democratic party as in itself a crime.

Such doctrines and beliefs choke enterprise and stifle prosperity. The republican party believes in encouraging American business, as it believes in and will seek to advance all American interests.

Rural Credits
We favor an effective system of rural credits, as opposed to the ineffective law proposed by the present democratic administration.

Rural Free Delivery
We favor the extension of the rural free delivery system and condemn the democratic administration for curtailing and crippling it.

Merchant Marine
In view of the policies adopted by all the maritime nations to encourage their shipping interests, and in order to enable us to compete with them for the ocean-carrying trade, we favor the payment to ships engaged in the foreign trade of liberal compensation for services actually rendered in carrying the mails, and such further legislation as will build up an adequate American merchant marine and give the ships which may be requisitioned by the government in time of national emergency.

We are utterly opposed to the government ownership of vessels as proposed by the democratic party, because government owned ships, while effectively preventing the development of the American merchant marine, by private capital will be entirely unable to provide for the vast volume of American freights and will leave us more helpless than ever in the hard grip of foreign syndicates.

Transportation
Interstate and intrastate transportation have become so interwoven that they attempt to apply two and often several sets of laws to its regulation has produced conflicts of authority, embarrassment in operation and inconvenience and expense to the public.

The entire transportation system of the country has become essentially national. We therefore favor such action by legislation or, if necessary, through an amendment to the constitution of the United States as will result in placing it under exclusive federal control.

Economy and a National Budget

The increasing cost of the national government and the need for the greatest economy of its resources, in order to meet the growing demands of the people for government service, call for the severest condemnation of the wasteful appropriations of this democratic administration, of its shameless raids on the treasury and of its opposition to and rejection of President Taft's oft-repeated proposals and earnest efforts to secure economy and efficiency through the establishment of a simple, businesslike budget system, to which we pledge our support and which we hold to be necessary to effect a real reform in the administration of national finances.

Conservation
We believe in a careful husbandry of all the natural resources of the nation—a husbandry which means development without waste; use without abuse.

Civil Service Reform

The civil service law has always been sustained by the republican party and we renew our repeated declaration that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable.

The democratic party has created, since March 4, 1913, 30,000 offices outside of the civil service law, at an annual cost of $14,000,000 to the taxpayers of the country.

We condemn the gross abuse and the misuse of the law by the present democratic administration and pledge ourselves to a reorganization along lines of efficiency and economy.

Territorial Matters

Reaffirming the attitude long maintained by the republican party, we hold that officials appointed to administer the government of any territory should be bona fide residents of the territory in which their duties are to be performed.

Labor Laws

We pledge the republican party to the faithful enforcement of all federal laws passed for the protection of labor. We favor vocational education, the enactment and rigid enforcement of a federal child labor law, the enactment of a generous and comprehensive workmen's compensation law within the commercial power of congress, and an accident compensation law covering all government employees.

We favor the collection and collation, under the direction of the department of labor, of complete data relating to industrial hazards for the information of congress, to the end that such legislation may be adopted as may be calculated to secure the safety, conservation and protection of labor from the dangers incident to industry and transportation.

Suffrage

The republican party, reaffirming its faith in government of the people, by the people, for the people, as a measure of justice to one-half the adult people of this country, favors the extension of the suffrage to women, but recognizes the right of each state to settle this question for itself.

Such are our principles, such are our purposes and politics. We close as we began. The times are dangerous and the future is fraught with peril. The great issues of the day have been confused by words and phrases. The American spirit, which made the country, and saved the union, has been forgotten, by those charged with the responsibility of power. We appeal to all Americans, whether naturalized or native-born to prove to the world that we are Americans in thought and deed, with one loyalty, one hope, one aspiration. We will all on Americans to be true to the spirit of America, to the great traditions of their common country, and above all things, to keep the faith.

LOWELL BOYS GRADUATE

Indoor Life Makes Fat

TRY OIL OF KOREIN TO KEEP WEIGHT DOWN, OR TO REDUCE SUPERFLUOUS FAT

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against over-stimulation, as fat acquired by indoor life is a danger to health and to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air is said to weaken the oxygen carrying power of the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 15 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. And we know who are satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout are advised to go to A. W. Dows & Co., of any good druggist and get a bottle of Oil of Korein capsules, and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

Even a few days treatment has been reported to cause a noticeable reduction in weight. Improved digestion and a return of the old energy; footprints become lighter and the skin less flabby appears.

Oil of Korein is inexpensive, cannot injure, and helps the digestion. Any person who was 15 or 20 pounds is advised to give this treatment a trial.

THE FRENCH MAID SAYS

KEEPING FOOD IN HOT WEATHER

"Isn't it a constant worry to keep foodstuffs fresh in summer weather?" was Marjorie's exclamatory question, one hot morning when she came in and found Marie instructing the cook to put some newly arrived fish immediately in cold water.

"You have to use considerable care," agreed Marie, "for things in summer are apt to spoil or become unfit to eat. This fish, for instance, will be kept sweet for some hours by covering it with cold water, which is a much better preservative than salt applied by some cooks, as this turns the flesh a dark color and imparts a disagreeable flavor to the cooked fish."

"Oh, yes, at this season requires special care. The pitchers that have been used for it should be invariably rinsed in scalding water. If the milk bottles are placed in a pan of cold brine the milk will keep quite fresh for two or three days. The water must be renewed every day."

"Boric acid, though not desirable as a food, is most useful for sprinkling over fresh meat, and can easily be washed off before the article is cooked. If meat is parboiled or 'marinated,' it will keep for two days longer. A few washed cabbage or lettuce leaves placed over cooked meat will help to keep it fresh. To keep poultry fresh a lump of charcoal may be placed inside the body and powdered charcoal sprinkled over it; it must then be carefully washed before using."

"Vegetables should be used as soon as possible, as freshness is their chief value and excellence. If, however, this is impossible, they must be picked over carefully every day and all dead matter removed. They should be kept in a cool, dark place and all strong scented ones be kept by themselves."

"If hard-boiled eggs are shelled and covered with cold water some time before using, the color will be kept clear. A good plan for keeping butter firm and cool is to cover it with a large, clean flowerpot. Dip a piece of coarse flannel in water, sprinkle freely with salt and lay it over the flower pot. The salt will keep the flannel moist."

NEW HEADLIGHT LAW

HIGHWAY COMMISSION SENDS COPY TO LOCAL POLICE—AGAINST DAZZLING EFFECTS

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department has received the following communication relative to the requested enforcement of the new law on headlights on motor vehicles:

"Dear Sir: The Massachusetts highway commission requests me to enclose a copy of the regulations which were made by this commission and approved by the governor and council on November last, as required by law, to take effect on the first of January, regulating the lights on motor vehicles."

"The board feels that sufficient time has been allowed to allow every motor vehicle owner or operator to comply with the law and so arrange his lights, by focusing or using one of the large number of devices which are on the market, so that his lights on his motor vehicle will comply with the regulations."

"There have been three demonstrations, at each of which large number of devices were shown which complied with the law."

"The commission has been requested by the representatives of the May State association, to ask the chiefs of police in the various cities and towns to co-operate by requiring all motorists to comply with the regulations. It is felt that if the police will co-operate by possibly in the first instance stopping and warning the operators of cars where they have not attempted in any way to prevent their lights from dazzling the other users of the highway, and keeping of cars sending the names to the commission, that very soon the headlight nuisance will be done away with."

"This does not request you to make prosecutions for merely technical violations of the law, but we do feel that after all this time every owner of a motor vehicle should have at any rate made some reasonable attempt to comply with the law; still there are a number of cars on the street where nothing whatever has been done to prevent the lights from dazzling other users of the highway."

"The commission will be glad to have your co-operation in the matter."

"Yours very truly,"

"P. J. Velez,"

"Secretary."

The law is as follows: "Wherever there is not sufficient light, within the limits of the highway location, to make all vehicles, persons, or substantial objects visible, within said limits for a distance of at least 150 feet, the white lights which motor vehicles are required to display by section seven of chapter 33A, of the acts of 1909 shall when said vehicle is in motion, throw sufficient light ahead to show any person, vehicle, or substantial object upon the roadway straight ahead of the motor vehicle for a distance of at least 150 feet. Any light thrown directly ahead or otherwise shall be so arranged that no dazzling rays from it or from any reflector shall at any time be three and one-half feet above the ground on a level road at a distance of 50 feet or more ahead of said vehicle, and said light shall be sufficient to enable the operator of the motor vehicle to see any person, vehicle or substantial object upon the roadway or side thereof, for ten feet on each side of the motor vehicle, ten feet ahead of said vehicle."

"This regulation shall take effect on and after the first day of January of the year 1916."

The feast of the Holy Ghost will be observed in a fitting manner next Sunday by the members of the Holy Ghost society of St. Anthony's parish. The program for the day includes a street parade, pontifical mass at the church and banquet and social gathering at Odd Fellows hall, Middlesex street.

The members of the society will gather at their quarters in Odd Fellows' temple, Middlesex street at 8 o'clock and after forming in line will parade to St. Anthony's church. The processionists will be headed by the Lowell Portuguese brass band, and the route of the parade will be as follows: Middlesex, Gorham, Charles, Central as far as the church.

At 9 o'clock a pontifical mass will be celebrated by the pastor, Rt. Rev. Bishop Henri da Silva, D.D., and at the close of the service the cortege will return to the hall in Middlesex street where, at 11 o'clock, a banquet will be served. Notable speakers will address the gathering, and it is expected that at least 1400 persons will be in attendance.

IRISH TAG DAY

Final Meeting of the Committee and Lady Volunteers Tonight

The final organization meeting for Irish Tag Day in Lowell will take place this evening in Hibernian hall at 8 p.m., and all lady volunteers who wish to take part are expected to be present in order that they may be entered in the plans which may be completed. About 250 young ladies have signified their intention of selling tags throughout the city. The committee in charge has arranged matters so that the ladies may go two together, and all sections of the city will be covered. Fifty officers and members of the O.M.U. Cadets in uniform have graciously offered to aid the ladies and the committee in every possible way.

Tag day headquarters will be in Mr. James O'Sullivan's office, Associate building, and tags, here, etc., will be given out throughout the day. The executive committee of 25 will meet this evening with the volunteers in Hibernian hall, and, weather permitting, the Irish tag day is expected to be a great success in Lowell tomorrow. The movement for Irish relief is going on in full swing throughout the country and the local managers are anxious that this city shall be well to the front.

SUSPENSE AT CHICAGO

The Sun Writer Portrays Exciting Scenes—Gardner's Joke—Roosevelt Songs Megaphoned

Special to The Sun

The republican convention opened today calm and determined, to name the winner. The progressive convention opened with a great noise, with shouting for Roosevelt and a Teddy chorus in the gallery singing through megaphones. There are Roosevelt marching songs, but it is impossible to determine whether they are entirely genuine or merely to gain advantage in the pending conference. Both conventions are out to win and they want to unite for that purpose. When Senator Smoot read a report of the conference the galleries made a demonstration at the name of Roosevelt. But delegates responded gingerly in comparison to the galleries. The committee conference will make another try and it is expected that something will result to unite the two factions, but it is useless to predict anything as the situation changes every minute. Weeks is sure of a big vote on the first ballot. After that it is entirely problematical for all candidates. The result of the conference on which so much now seems to depend, is most intense.

Nominating Speeches

Enthusiasm in both conventions broke loose when nominating speeches began and ex-President Taft's reception seemed to bespeak a disregard of Roosevelt's dislikes.

Gardner's Pet Joke

Congressman Gardner spoke at the noonday Roosevelt meeting at the Garfield theatre and kept the big crowd amused by the digs he gave the administration. "This country needs a president the man with the firmest grasp, the stoutest heart and clearest head," said he. Then the crowd shouted Roosevelt, just as Mr. Gardner intimated they should. "They have a new dance in Washington," continued Mr. Gardner. "It is called the Wilson step. It is one step forward, two steps backwards, hesitate and sidestep," and again the crowd cheered. This dance joke has been handed about wherever Gardner has spoken and he seems so proud of it that he may get it copyrighted.

Suffrage Fight

The question of a suffrage plank has brought out in full force both the suffrage and anti-suffrage factions, and the leaders on both sides are here to determine whether they are entirely genuine or merely to gain advantage in the pending conference. Both conventions are out to win and they want to unite for that purpose. When Senator Smoot read a report of the conference the galleries made a demonstration at the name of Roosevelt. But delegates responded gingerly in comparison to the galleries. The committee conference will make another try and it is expected that something will result to unite the two factions, but it is useless to predict anything as the situation changes every minute. Weeks is sure of a big vote on the first ballot. After that it is entirely problematical for all candidates. The result of the conference on which so much now seems to depend, is most intense.

Bryan Conspicuous

William Jennings Bryan is a conspicuous figure in the press section, where he is turning out syndicate letters at a price that makes the most of us feel like thirty cents. And many of us wondered just how gratified he must have felt when Senator Harding referred to President Wilson's foreign policies as "watchful waiting and wobbly warfare"—we recalled vividly those days not many months ago, when we of the press gallery stood in a semi-circle before Mr. Bryan as secretary of state before those same wobbly policies brought about his resignation.

At the Congress Hall

The lobby of the congress is a babel of tongues. But yesterday that great roar of voices was hushed into a tense silence by the big Glee club sent here by the Buckeye state to sing the praises of Senator Burton. In the midst of indescribable confusion the Glee club started to sing the "Star Spangled Banner"—on the instant every man stopped talking, and the sudden hush was positively startling, as the great mass of straggling, pushing, seething men stood still with uncovered heads. It was a dramatic incident that may not happen again during the convention, so spontaneous was it. When the song ended everyone cheered, waved their hats, and shouted louder

WOMEN ENTHUSIASTIC WORKERS FOR PARADE

The wonderful enthusiasm shown by the women in one of the pleasing features of Lowell's preparedness parade. They are right there with the pep and instead of trying to shirk work, as is often the case, they are looking for it. It is impossible to state at this time, even approximately, the number of women who will parade, but at a meeting of the women managers called by Miss Grace Cunnock and held in Page's banquet hall this forenoon, it was stated by Mrs. H. D. Pickering, who is managing the mill girls of the affair, that at least 15 manufacturing establishments would be represented and she also gave out the glad news that the mill agents will supply a band, if it is possible to get one. The women were addressed by Thomas J. O'Donnell, chief of staff, who instructed them relative to marching. The chief marshal said he would be glad to answer any or all questions and he was very successful until somebody asked if it would be all right for the mill girls to wear bows in their hair instead of hats. He blushed a bit at this question and graciously acknowledged his defeat. He said it was not part of his duty to pass on the headgear of the gentler sex. The next question that he fell down on had to do with sashes. Some one of the charming women, and they were all very charming, asked how the sashes worn by the lady marshals

The old guard believe in his fairness to all and the preparedness men recognized his Annapolis training and advocacy of a big navy and adequate defence long before he was mentioned for the presidency. Whether or not the fortunes of war will give Senator Weeks the nomination, Massachusetts has good reason to be proud of the estimation in which he is held by hundreds of delegates.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

Quarter of a century ago, the city council having passed an order for a $2000 Fourth of July celebration over the veto of Mayor Fifield, was getting into a state of preparedness for that celebration, the principal feature of which was a grand parade, in which the city fathers expected everybody would participate. But when they sent out notices to the different societies and clubs of the city, the word came back: "What's there in it?" for they assumed that as the city was running the show, and had $2000 to spend, the money should be passed around among the paraders. The Sun roundly criticized the men who wanted compensation for their services on this occasion, and compared the difficulty being experienced in getting out paraders for Fourth of July, with the big parades that had been held on St. Patrick's and St. Jean's days, in the same year. But when Fourth of July came around those who at first declined to parade had reconsidered their decision and a big demonstration was the result. Perhaps there was nothing to arouse the spirit of patriotism in those days when all the world was at peace, for it has ever taken some supreme emergency to get all the people aroused. Judging from the returns being made to the preparedness committee at city hall, patriotism is the thoroughly aroused in Lowell at the present time.

"Peter H." Elected

Says the old Sun: "Peter H. Donohoe has been elected a director of the Old Lowell National bank to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Puffer."

Mr. Donohoe is still on the director's list and thus completes quarter of a century of service.

Had 900 Employees

Says the old Sun: "The Lowell Machine shop now em-

The Circus In Town

Quarter of a century ago marked the first appearance of the circus with three rings and two platforms. The original wagon show, the earliest of circuses had one ring, and all its belongings were packed into vans and carried from town to town over the road. Then came the "monster three ring circus" with its "hippodrome" track nearly half a mile round, of a few years prior to quarter of a century ago. Then came the big spectacular pageants in connection with the circus proper and finally quarter of a century ago, the two platforms were added. Barnum's circus came to Lowell in the latter part of June, quarter of a century ago, and presented a spectacular production of "Nero" as a headliner to the circus proper. The old Sun in describing the big show said: "If there is any criticism of it, it is that there is too much of it. It is entirely out of the question for an onlooker to see more than a third of all that is going on at the same time, for this year there are three rings and two platforms each alive with performers."

The old Sun reporter, like the good old Rubo that he must have been, evidently attempted to get his money's worth, despite the fact that he got in on a pass, by attempting to see everything that went on at one time, probably hopelessly stretching the rubber in his neck and distorting ing the focus of his sight, unhappily ignorant of the fact that similar acts were being presented in the different side rings at the same time, and that all that was required of him was to select one ring and focus his eyes on it. There is not much difference between the circus ads. and acts of today and those of quarter of a century ago except of course the novelties that are presented from year to year. But even if they didn't provide anything particularly new, young and old would attend them just the same for who can resist the lure of the circus?

Where "Charlie" Marren Shone

Quarter of a century ago Charles L. Marren, of Gorham street, was a councilman from old ward three, the democratic stronghold which embraced "The Flats." Mr. Marren was in the council for several years and made a valuable member of the lower branch, and one thing he did that above all others, made him particularly "strong" was reported by the old Sun as follows:

"Councilman Charles L. Marren introduced an order for a half-holiday on Saturdays during the summer for the street, sewer and other city employees. Councilmen Marren, Tur-cotte, Doherty, Dolan, Gookin and others spoke in favor, and the order was adopted by a vote of 17 to 5."

That was the first year of the Saturday half-holidays for the city departments. Charlie was re-elected that fall.

The Press Club Outing

The Sun of quarter of a century ago reported the annual outing of the Press club as follows:

"The Press club held its annual outing at Tyngs Island, on Monday, as the guests of Messrs. Gage and Prouty, who now control the island. The party went up the river on Captain Prouty's boat the 'May Queen,' and held a brief business meeting on board, at which several new members were admitted. The American orchestra furnished music during the ride. Upon arriving at the grove, a ball game was started between two teams captained by John H. Harrington of The Sun and Alfred W. Cook of the Citizen. The features of the game were the kicking of Captain Harrington, who was in fine form; the batting of Tom Maguire, who made an abundance of base hits, and the fielding of Captain Charles, who read a novel while playing the outfield. Foreman Billy Gilmore of The Sun, who played second base, plucked wild strawberries that grew in the vicinity of the base, but failed to pluck any grounders, and Will Corcoran got lost in the high grass of right field. Umpire Taylor was congratulated on coming out of it alive. After the game, supper was served, and at its conclusion President Harry R. Rice called to order, and on motion of Hugh F. Gilson a rising vote of thanks was given to the hosts of the occasion."

Highland Club Changed Plans

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"The Highland club contemplates building a new club house in Nichols street, that will cost between $20,000 and $30,000."

But subsequently the club found a much more desirable location in Princeton street and erected the present commodious club house, which will soon observe its quarter century anniversary.

Moved Into New Quarters

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"On Monday evening, the Association Catholique moved into its new quarters to the west of the St. Jean Baptiste church. In opening the meeting President Choquette referred to the favorable auspices under which the society had entered its new quarters. Six were admitted to membership. The following named officers were elected to membership: President, E. H. Choquette; vice president, George Dion; recording secretary, Albert Pelletier; assistant secretary, T. Rock; corresponding secretary, Thomas J. Goyette; treasurer, E. J. Pinault; assistant, Thomas Caron; directors, E. Lenoue, J. Audette, E. Chaput; librarian, E. Savard; sergeant-at-arms, W. Barrette. A prize of $10 was offered for the member bringing in the largest number of new members up to Jan. 1 next. It was voted to allow the ladies the exclusive use of the hall two evenings each week. The retiring treasurer, P. L. Donaut, showed the society to be in good financial condition."

The Association Catholique soon outgrew its quarters beside the church, while the extension of Aiken street took away a portion of its building, and as a result its members got together and erected the present handsome club house at the head of Merrimack street.

Some Quarter Century Elections

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:

"The Y.M.C.C. of Belvidere has elected

Matters Being Agitated

Two matters that were being agitated in the columns of The Sun just quarter of a century ago were a covered patrol wagon and a working girls' home. The Central Labor union was very active in the movement which brought about the covered patrol wagons. All of the earliest patrol wagons in the different cities of the state were open vehicles, and one after the other they were abandoned for the covered vehicle in response to a popular demand.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

THE ROBIN'S NEW HOME

Once upon a time Mrs. Robin Redbreast flew up on a limb of a tree and said: "I am glad we are here at last, I am so tired I can't fly any longer." Mr. Robin Redbreast was flying around and fluttering his wings he was so excited, for he had made a nice new nest for Mrs. Robin and this was her first visit to it. They had been much later than the others in getting north, for just as the birds were ready to start Mrs. Robin had hurt her wing and Mr. Robin would not leave her so they had come up alone.

The nest was in a big tree, one of the branches was quite near a house. Mrs. Robin didn't like this but Mr. Robin told her that no one lived in the house he was sure, for before he started to build, he had looked in the windows but the blinds were all drawn and he had never seen smoke come out from the chimney. Mr. Robin brought her the biggest and nicest worms he could find.

One day Mrs. Robin called to her husband to come and see what was in the nest and there, peeping out from under her wing, were four of the cutest little robins you ever saw. Mr. Robin was so pleased that he began to twitter and twitter and in a few minutes all the birds in the neighborhood were coming to see these wonderful robins.

The next morning Mr. Robin flew off to get some breakfast for his family and in a few minutes came flying back with a nice fat worm, but, as he came near the house, he heard a lot of noise and there in the yard saw four little children all talking as fast as they could, and when he looked at the house there were the windows wide open and smoke coming out of the chimney.

What had happened to Mrs. Robin and her four little robins he wondered, but when he flew to the nest they were safe and sound and very anxious for their breakfast.

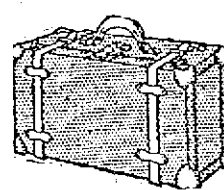

All day the birds were much excited and watched the house to see what was going on for they thought new they would have to move as their home was so near the house. That night just as the sun was setting and Mrs. Robin was getting her children ready for the night, she heard a voice so close to her head that she almost jumped out of the nest saying: "Look at the robin's nest. You must be careful and not frighten the birds, won't you?" and the children all promised, so Mrs. Robin is glad to say.

ST. MICHAEL'S MISSION

Powerful Sermon on Scandal—
It Multiplies Sinners and Bars
Souls From Heaven

Again every available seat in St. Michael's church was filled last evening by the men of the parish, who listened with rapt attention to the practical instruction on the mysteries of the rosary by Fr. Mackin, O.P., and to the eloquent sermon which followed.

The sermon was preached by Fr. Noon, O. P., and dealt chiefly with the sin of scandal. Before touching upon the subject of his discourse, the reverend speaker congratulated the men on their zeal and perseverance. He complimented the young men, particularly on the good example given by them the past week. He begged them not to be selfish in their goodness and reminded them that even this eleventh hour is not too late to bring a friend or companion who has not yet begun to make the mission. The mission is a time of grace, a time when God lavishes His grace on those who will receive them. It is a time of mercy, a time of love and forgiveness, a time when the heart of the Savior pleads with the souls of men. Is it not a dreadful thing for a man to say to that loving heart: "I will not make the mission, I don't want Your grace." The time will come when the man who says this will find he does need God and His grace—that he cannot do without Him—he cannot get away from Him. The time will come when the day of mercy will give way to the night of despair—the day of love to the night of justice. The night comes when no man can work his way out. Blessed Lord and again, "You will seek me and you will not find me, and you will die in your sins."

The Text
As the text of his sermon, Fr. Noon chose the words of Christ: "Who to you scribes and Pharisees hypocrites, because you shut the kingdom of heaven against men, for you yourselves do not enter in, nor suffer others to enter in."

One of the most sacred duties of a Christian is that of giving good example. A Catholic man or woman is bound by every law of God to lead before the world a pure, blameless life—a life that is without the shadow of reproach. In the home, you fathers, as Christian gentlemen, as pure-minded Catholic men must give to your children an example worthy of emulation. To your neighbors you must be a model of uprightness, in the little world around you an influence for all that is pure and good and true. "So let your light shine before men that seeing you will glorify the Father who is in heaven."

Not only are you bound to give good example, but you must strenuously avoid every word or act that could lead to scandal. Scandal is a sin, a deadly sin, a sin that leads to the eternal damnation of the soul. Our Divine Lord emphatically denounces the scandal-monger or the giver of bad example. By His precious blood He redeemed us, by innumerable miracles He proved His divinity, proved that He was the Son of God, the long expected Redeemer. Even when miracle after miracle was wrought, the scribes and Pharisees, who should have been the first to receive Him, rejected Him because of their arrogance, their selfishness, their pride. They went out of their way to keep other souls from listening to His divine voice. They called Him a traitor, a blasphemer; they prevented simple souls from following in His footsteps. They shut the kingdom of heaven against men. And that is the task of the scandal-giver, to follow up the work of the professors, to undo the work of Christ and His church, to keep souls out of heaven, to send them to eternal damnation. The scandal-giver is on a level with Satan. From the dawn of history the evil one has applied himself to the task of ruining souls. When not satisfied with his own success, he seizes the scandal-giver to help him in his work. Eve was his first helper when, by word and example, she persuaded Adam to disobey God's command. Since then the devil has never failed to find, as an accomplice, some moral perversity who will teach others their first steps in wrongdoing.

Scandal Defined
Scandal is one of the most terrible sins in the world. Now, just what is scandal or bad example? They are the same.

Any sinful word or deed that will lead another into sin is scandal. Any omission of duty that will cause others a like omission is also scandal. Now, scandal may be direct or indirect. One who by flattery or in any way causes or entices deliberately another to do wrong is giving direct scandal. Indirect scandal is given when one's action or omission is the cause of sin in another; but the act or omission was not intended for that purpose. A father who misses mass on Sunday has not the intention of making his children do wrong, yet he is committing the sin of scandal. Scandal, direct or indirect, is a mortal sin.

The sin of scandal is opposed to the greatest of all virtues, charity. "By this shall all men know ye are my disciples, that you love one another." Surely if we love our neighbor, we should help him to save his soul. By scandal we violate the charity we owe our neighbor, for by our bad example we help to ruin his immortal soul.

To take the life of another is a sin that calls to heaven for vengeance, but what is the life of the body compared to the life of the soul? What an awful crime it must be to be guilty of the death of a soul! It may be said that no one is so wicked as to want to ruin another's soul. Yet there are so-called Catholics who lead others to sin, knowing full well that their poor foolish dupes die in their sin, he will be lost forever. The man who teaches his friend how to defeat the ends of marriage, how to take his wife to the depths of hell and exclude from heaven the innocent souls who have no power to help themselves, is giving scandal. The day will come when these scandal-givers will hear from the Savior: "Woe to you, hypocrites, because you shut the kingdom against men." Then eternal justice will demand that you yourself will never enter in.

He gives scandal who makes another the companion of his guilt, who places on the road to ruin a soul for which Christ died. In the years that are to come, the world may condone his part in the crime. He will be regarded into society, he may reform. From his social position he may look down on his victim, shunned, despised, driven to ruin, despair, self-destruction. He may look into the depths of hell and see his victim, a soul condenied. When Jesus comes as Judge, think you not he will say to that man "Woe to you, hypocrite! You posed as a Catholic—a follower of Christ, yet you shut from heaven this weaker soul. Eternal justice cries, 'You shall never enter in.'"

The man who teaches the younger man or innocent boy sins that destroy man and body, is surely guilty of scandal. On the day of judgment he, too, will be held responsible, perhaps for souls near and dear to him.

The man who asks a young man or boy to take his first drink is guilty of scandal. The first drink given by an older hand has often been the first step to loss of self-respect, crime, despair.

Force of Example

Now, dear men, you are told to avoid the awful consequences of scandal. Perhaps you would not deliberately lead others into sin, but if your lives are not what they should be—if you are doing what you should not do, or not doing what you should do, if you are not living up to the teachings of your Catholic faith, you are scandal. Your good example would help others just as your bad example hurts them. Many so-called Catholic men, by their evil, dissipated lives are the sole stumbling blocks to non-Catholics looking for the true faith. They point at these Catholics with the finger of scorn and say to themselves: "If these dishonest, impure, corrupt men, these grafters are Catholics, then I want nothing of Catholicity." Who is responsible for the loss of such souls, think you, if not the unfaithful Catholic?

Then there is the father who, in the home, with curse and swear—who will drink before his children, who will stay from mass on Sunday, yet who will forbid his children to do any such things. Do you not know that children are more apt to do as you do, rather than as you tell them to do?

A story will illustrate this point: I knew once a man who in prospering forgot the teaching of his good Catholic mother. The pressure of business, the demands of society, took all his time. He had no leisure for God. His church and his sacraments. He intended sometime in the future to retire and then he would see to these things. The man had an excellent Catholic wife and four sons whom he wished to train to a perfect manhood. He gave them every advantage, even a Catholic college and university education, and he looked to them to become men of whom he would feel proud in his later years. Bitter disappointment was his lot, however. His own example was more powerful than any other influence in their lives. They, like himself, grew careless in their religious duties. Later they joined forbidden societies and later still, became out and out renegades. Who was to blame in sorrow that father repented his bad example when it was too late. When he stands before his God in judgment, he will have to answer for the sinful lives of his sons as well as for his own.

You Catholic fathers, teaching by word rather than by example, will likewise have to answer for the souls of your children. Of your evil worldly lives you will have to give the strictest account on the last day. Our loving Savior, when He was on earth, was ever ready to show compassion to the sinner. He pardoned the disloyalty of Peter. In his denial, he was merciful to the woman taken in sin; he prayed for his enemies who nailed Him to the cross; but for the giver of scandal, he had nothing but words of condemnation. Search every record of His teachings and we find not a word of sympathy or kindness for the scandal-giver. Plainly, bluntly, emphatically, He tells them the sin of scandal will receive its punishment. As long as men remain human, there will be scandal. "But woe to him by whom that scandal cometh." Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees! Hypocrites! Because you shut the kingdom of heaven against men, you yourselves do not enter in. When Jesus uses the word "woe" He means damnation.

His care and solicitude for the young and innocent He manifested when He spoke of the protection of their guardian angels, who stand over before the face of God to accuse those who would snatch from His service these tender souls. Of those who give bad example to these the Savior said: "He who scandalizes one of these little ones, it were better that a millstone be tied around his neck and he be drowned in the depths of the sea!" Only on one other occasion did our Lord pronounce so hard a sentence and that was when he said of the traitor Judas: "It were better he had never been born." Scandal-giver and traitor! Better they had never been born!

Scandal Multiplies Sinners
In the giving of scandal, there is an element that should bring home to you its evil. It does not die with the person responsible for it, but lives on through the ages. For instance: Here is a man who remains from mass habitually. "But I make my children go," he will say. How long, think you, will they go? Just as long as they are under your control. After that they will do as you are doing. They will follow your example. Their sins are laid at your door. In their dealings with their children, they act as you did, perhaps, and you are responsible for your grandchildren and your great-grandchildren. Their sin began with you and until Gabriel comes to call your soul to judgment, you, in your descendants, will be committing the sin for which your indifference is responsible. Like the little ball of snow, it gathers as it goes, and who knows the millions of souls for whom one careless father has to account because of committing one sin or the omission of one duty.

A young man, we say, teaches a companion or induces him to commit sin. That companion induces others, and they in turn induce still hundreds of souls have been stained because of that one. Scandal is a crime, the consequences of which cannot be reckoned until the day of judgment.

It was this thought that filled with terror the mind of the dying Berengarius, who at one time denied the doctrine of the Real Presence. Having repented, he endeavored to make all the reparation in his power, but when death drew near he exclaimed: "I am to appear before the judgment seat of Christ. I hope for pardon for the sins I have committed, but for the sins I made others commit, I have great fear I may be lost."

One of the saddest scenes I ever witnessed bears out this thought. It was the death-bed of a man, who, in youth, was responsible for the sin of one who, because of her crime, became an outcast, lost in the great ocean of the world. The man repented of the sin of the youth and for over fifty years did penance for it. He became a model of everything good and holy, yet he never forgot. As death approached he asked himself again and again "Where is she whom I led conventions reassembled at the Coliseum and the Auditorium here today facing a situation unprecedented in recent American political party history. The progressives met at 10 o'clock and the republicans at 11 o'clock (Central time).

Uncertainty as thick as the murky weather that has hung over Chicago for three days prevailed, and all eyes were strained to catch the first possible clearing of the political clouds.

No man was able to predict on a basis of fact what the next 24 hours might bring forth, whether it would be harmony and a reunited republican party or disagreement and dual nominations.

Midnight Conference
The day was ushered in by a midnight conference that will become historic of "peace" committees from the progressive and republican conventions which took place at the Chicago club. The conference adjourned before 1 o'clock without definite results. It was said, and details of its deliberations were withheld.

The republican committee was composed of Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman; former Senator W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Borah of Idaho, Nicholas Murray Butler of New York and A. R. Johnson of Ohio.

The progressive committee had Geo. W. Perkins of New York for chairman and the other members were Governor Johnson of California, Horace B. Wilkinson of New York, Charles J. Bonaparte of Maryland, and John M. Parker of New Orleans.

Every member of the republican

"peace" committee took part in the management of the republican convention of 1912 which brought the progressive party into being. Crane, Smoot and Butler were determined advocates of methods to prevent the nomination of Roosevelt then. Johnson, then in congress, supported them. Borah was for Roosevelt but refused to leave the republican party. When Vice President Sherman died Butler was selected as the running mate for President Taft.

Governor Johnson was candidate for vice president with Roosevelt on the 1912 progressive ticket. Many times he has denounced with great vigor the action in 1912 of the men who last night sat across from him at the council table.

Bonaparte constantly has been for Col. Roosevelt and Roosevelt policies. Parker organized the progressive party in Louisiana. Perkins and Wilkinson were with Roosevelt in 1912. Perkins has been particularly prominent in the councils of the progressive party and one of its leaders.

For more than two hours the conferees discussed points at issue and took up details of the peace plans projected earlier in the day by the two conventions when the conference committees on harmony had been appointed. When adjournment came it was announced that "we report progress" and the statement was made that the members would not get together again until after the sessions of the conventions today. They prepared reports for their respective conventions. There was considerable doubt as to just how these reports would be received and whether leaders in the two conventions could hold the body of delegates under control while further harmony deliberations were being held.

Nomination Speeches Today

"It is understood," said Senator Borah after the conference, "that while nominating speeches will be made in each convention today no nominations will be made."

"And," said another member of the committee, "we will resume negotiations in the afternoon or evening." The situation which combine to make it so delicate as to invite the unexpected and the uncertain. Leaders of both parties sat up most of the night discussing numerous possibilities that might develop and making plans to handle the situation, should efforts be made to stampede either convention for a particular candidate or against further delay in making nominations.

Expect Message From T. R.

Many of the progressives hoped that Col. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay would send a message to the harmony conferees or to the progressive convention that would have a bearing on the situation.

The men advocating the nomination by the republican convention of Justice Charles E. Hughes of the supreme court declared this morning that nothing had occurred to weaken their position. They said they believed their candidate could be nominated, the try and were prepared to press for action on a nomination without delay.

Managers for the various "favorite son" candidates insisted the harmony conference program had greatly improved the chances for their men, and predicted early today that neither the name of Hughes nor of Roosevelt would appear upon the republican ticket.

But in the absence of any definite report of what happened at the "peace" conference not many people were sanguine of definite results. Many expressed the opinion that the two conventions would go ahead regardless of each other, make their nominations and adjourn.

After giving the names of the conferees on both sides the report of the republican-progressive harmony committee was presented to the conferees today will recite that they had a full and frank conference last night which resulted in an agreement that there should be united action on the part of the two parties if possible of attainment; that the policies and future of the country for the next few years would depend upon their getting together and uniting to rescue the country from the present democratic domination.

Bull Moose For T. R.

The report to the republican convention will then recite the fact that the progressives presented the name of Col. Roosevelt as the proper man for selection as the presidential candidate, expressing the opinion that on account of his personal following and hold upon the people, as well as because of his mastery of the questions of the day, he was the best fitted of all men mentioned by either party to bear the standard of the combined organizations.

While no mention is made of the fact that another conference had been virtually agreed upon by the conferees, it is perfectly understood that it is their plan to get together again after two or three ballots have been cast by the republican convention. The representatives of the republican convention did not make any counter suggestion as to a candidate, but on the contrary some of them stated that they would be entirely willing to accept Mr. Roosevelt if the republican convention could be brought to that conclusion, which they said they did not believe could be done.

A party of women were the first visitors to arrive when the doors were opened at 9:30 o'clock today. The early contingent of ticket holders, however, was the smallest since the convention opened.

Although the rain had ceased, the vast hall was still heavy with dampness.

BALLOTING LATE TODAY

Chairman Harding Expects to Get to Balloting by Four O'Clock This Afternoon

CHICAGO, June 9.—Chairman Harding of the republican convention said today that the republicans would follow the regular procedure when the session was called to order and that balloting probably would be reached at least by 1 o'clock this afternoon.

"The first business of the day," said the chairman, "will be the presentation of the names of candidates, followed by seconding speeches. I think we ought to get to balloting by four o'clock, but I can't guarantee that."

The chairman said he knew nothing about the report of the republican members of the peace conference committee, "but," he said, "that report is privileged and can be submitted at any time."

ON IMPURE MILK

Dr. Landis Tells of its Influence on the Death Rate

CINCINNATI, June 9.—In an address before the American Association of Milk Inspectors today, Dr. J. H. Landis of Cincinnati, discussing "Pure Milk—its Influence on a Municipality's General Death Rate," devoted himself chiefly to presenting facts tending to show that the reduction in the death rate of a municipality brought about by the purification of its milk supply, is practically the same as that caused by its change from a polluted to a pure water supply. In Cincinnati, he said, the average yearly saving of lives by compelling a pure milk supply was 453. Wholesale assassination of Cincinnati's infant population, he said, had been carried on for years, when the milk industry was largely in the hands of dairymen, who fed their cows almost exclusively on distillery slop. Cows were chained with their noses in a slop trough from the time they were received in the farm until they passed into the hands of the butcher. The dairy barns were dark and reeking with liquid manure. The cows were plastered with this material, as were many of the workmen, and the finished product had a generous supply when it reached the consuming public. What had been accomplished in changing these conditions had been chiefly made possible by employing on full time as health officers competent specialists under a non-partisan board of health.

The Cincinnati plan eliminated milk inspection by a physician on part time and placed it in the hands of a graduate in veterinary medicine on full time. R. B. Plume, D.V.S., an employee of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, was chosen, and to his industry, honesty and courage the results obtained are largely due.

One of the Cincinnati regulations gives the health officer the authority to dump milk that shows visible sediment in the container. This regulation was rigidly enforced against those who persistently fought all attempts at improvement. Milk permits were revoked, and in numerous instances prosecution in police court drew fines ranging from twenty to four hundred dollars. In a few instances, perfectly respectable gentlemen had opportunities in the quiet of the city jail to meditate on the uncertainties of a milk producer's career. Formerly prosecution meant a little temporary, cheap notoriety, with a tinge of martyrdom thrown in, now, if a man is arrested for some other gross violation of the regulations, he loses caste in his community and is classified as a cheap crook or a plain "bonehead."

Compelling proprietors of restaurants, saloons, hotels, etc., to serve milk to customers, was another regulation met with the unqualified approval of the public.

Opposition to pasteurization was pronounced at first, but at the present time if anyone desired to start a riot backed exclusively by the milk industry, the one sure method would be to try to eliminate pasteurization in Cincinnati. Through pasteurization, the dealers have practically eliminated all waste and have completely escaped outbreaks of milk borne infection, with attendant loss of trade. In over a year, not one case of typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or septic sore throat has been traced to an infected dairy or to an ice cream manufactory.

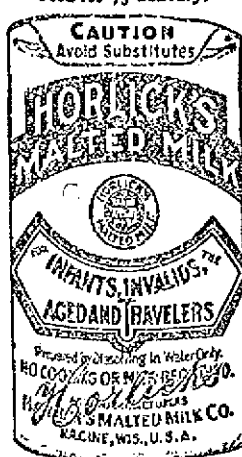

No chances were taken on having pasteurization hung up indefinitely in the courts of Ohio. Offences such as dirty bottles and visible sediment in milk can be seen by court officers and appealed to them. When those opposed to pasteurization slipped up on either of these regulations, instead of receiving a warning, they faced an instant court. Fines and lawyers' fees constituted an appeal to reason that quickly convinced them of the soundness of the strategy.

At present every drop of milk on the Cincinnati market, with the exception of that produced under the supervision of the milk commission of the Academy of Medicine, is pasteurized, and we believe that time will demonstrate that pasteurization will have a marked influence on the incidence of tuberculosis.

In conclusion, Dr. Landis said: "With wooden floors in barns rapidly being replaced by concrete floors and feeding troughs, and with all barns receiving adequate light and air, the type of dairyman resembling Dr.inking milk in Cincinnati has ceased to be an extraordinary occupation, and the municipal supply is no longer like a lottery

LONG FORGOTTEN EMPIRES

UNEARTHING OF THEIR REMAINS ONE OF THE ROMANCES OF THE LAST 75 YEARS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The strong offensive developed recently by Russian forces operating against the desperately resisting Turks northwest of Bagdad has awakened a world-wide interest in the whole region of Mesopotamia and particularly in the ruins of the great city of Nineveh, lying just across the Tigris from Mosul and a probable battlefield during the Muscovite assault upon this most important key to the upper valley of the historic river.

Concerning the ancient capital of Assyria and the manner in which its buried secrets have been brought to light within very recent times, Albert T. Cary, professor of Assyriology and Babylonian literature at Yale university, has sent a communication to the National Geographic society, part of which was released today from the society's Washington headquarters, as a war geography bulletin. Prof. Cary writes:

"One of the romances of the last 75 years has been the unearthing of the remains of forgotten empires and the decipherment of their ancient records. A little over a half a century ago what was known concerning the ancient peoples of the nearer east, besides that which is contained in the Old Testament, could be written in a very brief form.

"Israel was then regarded as one of the great nations of antiquity. Abraham belonged to the dawn of civilization. The references to other peoples in the Old Testament had little meaning, for few appreciated the fact that the history of many pre-Israelitish nations had practically faded from the knowledge of man. The pick and spade of the explorer, however, and the patient toil of the decipherer, have thrown a flood of light upon the situation; ruins of the past have been opened up to the light of day, out of which emerge marvelous revelations in the form of written records and other remains.

Some Remarkable Documents

"These, although written in language and scripts the very existence of which was unknown to man for 2000 years or more, are now forced to reveal their story of religion, politics, science and life of not a few of the ancient and forgotten peoples.

"These researches have resulted in astounding revelations. Israel, instead of being one of the foremost nations of antiquity, is now found to have been a small power which had thrived in the late pre-Christian centuries, and had occupied a comparatively insignificant position among the great nations of the age. Instead of the patriarch Abraham belonging to the beginning of time, it is now found that he occupied a middle chapter in the history of mankind."

Prof. Cary tells of some remarkable documents found in the ruins of Nineveh's "congressional library," where manuscripts were catalogued and arranged according to subject matter, much as in our libraries of today. One clay tablet discloses the fact that "the sweetest story ever told" was told with the same naive fervor 5000 years ago as it is today. It is a lover's plaint, thus expressed: "To Babel, thus says Gimil Marduk; may the gods Shamash and Marduk permit thee to live forever for my sake. I write to inquire concerning thy health. Tell me how thou art. I want to Babylon, but did not see thee. I was greatly disappointed. Send the reason for thy leaving, that I may be happy. Do come in the month of Marchesvan. Keep well always for my sake."

Whether Babel received this missive from her solicitous Gimil is not known, but she should have, for there was an elaborate post system in that day and it is known that there were regular despatches between some of the prin-capital cities. Among the large amount of material unearthed have been many shipping tags made of clay. These have upon them the name and address of the party to whom the merchandise was sent.

Nineveh's King a Brute

If all the atrocities charged made against the various belligerents during the present world war were true and were multiplied a hundred fold they would not reach the limits of cruelty attained by the famous king of Nineveh, Ashur-nasirpal III., whose own accounts of his refinement of the art of torture have been unearthed recently beneath the very plain where Turk and Muscovite are now battling for possession of the cradleland of civilization. This king wrote concerning one of his campaigns:

"To the city of Tels I approached. The city was very strong; three fortresses surrounded it. The inhabitants trusted to their strong walls and their numerous army; they did not come down or embrace my feet. With battle and slaughter I attacked the city and captured it. Three thousand of their fighting men I slew with the sword; their spoil, their goods, their oxen and their sheep I carried away; many captives I humiliated alive. I captured many of their soldiers alive; I cut off the hands and feet of some; of others I cut off the noses, the ears and the fingers; I built up the eyes of many soldiers. I built up a pyramid of the living and a pyramid of heads. On high I hung up their heads on trees in the neighborhood of the city. Their young men and maidens I burned with fire. The city I overthrew and dug it up, and burned it with fire; I annihilated it."

A correspondent of the Geographic society adds:

"The imagination is staggered at the very thought of that pyramid of the living—human beings piled one upon another, succumbing, strangling, peeling slowly and miserably before that other pyramid of their more fortunate friends to whom death had come swiftly, and at the thought of that monster who not only did this, but gloried in it, and caused the story of his brutality to be written indelibly upon the walls of his house."

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL

PALMER DAY HELD AND STUDENTS RECEIVED CERTIFICATES FOR EXCELLENCE IN PENMANSHIP

The State Normal school held a Palmer day on Wednesday, June 7, 1916.

Mr. A. N. Palmer, the originator of the Palmer Method of penmanship, visited the Normal school on Wednesday. It was a special occasion on which Palmer teachers' certificates were presented to 91 normal pupils and Palmer diplomas to 10 Bartlett school girls.

The exercise began with a recitation written and proclaimed by Miss Anna Murray of Woburn on "Johnny on Palmer Writing."

Mr. Riley, the penmanship teacher, asked his pupils to write several of the Palmer exercises as samples for Mr. Palmer. The latter gave a very interesting address. He illustrated every point very impressively. He gave a short history of his acquaintance with writing from boyhood up to the present. He told of the importance of writing in all walks of life.

Mr. Palmer then presented teachers' certificates to 57 seniors, nine juniors, one special student, and one third-year student.

The Lowell seniors were:

ACADEMY PRINCIPAL RESIGNS
SANTONS RIVER, Vt., June 9.—Students of Vermont academy, a Baptist institution, were surprised yesterday when Rev. Dr. George E. Lawson announced his retirement as principal to take effect after commencement, which begins Saturday.

He has been principal of the academy since 1908. It is said that in certain Baptist circles there have been objections to Dr. Lawson continuing. Last evening Dr. Lawson admitted he had resigned but refused to give the reason.

It is known that several of the teaching staff have been looking for positions. The enrollment at the school has fallen off in recent years, but this is attributed by Dr. Lawson's friends to the fact that the academy has ceased to be coeducational.

MARY DUNN GETS $1400

Wins Verdict in Suit Against Col. J. J. Gallagher For Breach of Promise

PROVIDENCE, June 9.—Mary Dunn was awarded $1400 last night by a jury in the superior court in her $10,000 breach of promise suit against Col. John J. Gallagher, a prominent business man.

In her examination of Col. Gallagher by Mr. Walsh yesterday, the latter tried to draw from the defendant an admission that when Miss Dunn wore a solitaire diamond ring, which he had given her, on the ring finger of her left hand, he knew she was engaged to him. The defendant said the ring was simply a Christmas present,

DRINK PLENTY OF WATER

Take plenty of exercise and drink can be made easily. Take a red plenty of water if your skin is colorless. To say that a long walk and drinking three pints of water will make any woman beautiful would be an exaggeration, but to promise that it will be a wonderful aid to the increasing of good looks is a perfectly true statement. Water properly taken will flush the system, carrying with it all the impurities which work havoc with the complexion.

Drink the water between meals, a glass at a time, sipping it slowly. Have the water cool, not iced, as this latter reduces the temperature of the stomach to such an extent that digestion is impaired. If you have an absolutely colorless skin which no amount of exercise or water drinking will tinge with color you may wish to resort to the use of a harmless rouge.

Our grandmothers used beet rouge, which is absolutely harmless and

PROGRESSIVE PLATFORM

For Americanism, Preparedness,
Woman Suffrage and Protection
—Mexican Policy

CHICAGO, June 9.—The text of the progressive platform as laid before the national convention yesterday, follows:

"This is the year of decision of the nation's future. As we now decide, we shall go forward in righteousness and power, or backward in degradation and weakness.

"Of necessity, we deal now with the foundations of our national life. We are facing elemental facts of forces, of right and wrong, of extreme national peril. Our present choice of paths will be irrevocable. The tradition of isolation has been ended. The United States is now part of a world system of civilization. We stand or fall as we prepare now to take our part in peace or war and hold our own therein.

"As members of an international community we are subject to certain basic duties:

"To secure the rights and equal treatment of our citizens, native or naturalized, on land and sea, without regard to race, creed or nativity;

"To guard the honor and uphold the just influence of our nation;

"To maintain the integrity of international law.

"These are the corner stones of civilization. We must be strong to defend them.

"The present war shows that it is the supreme duty of civilization to create conditions which will make peace permanent. Our country must be able and ready to take its part in that work. The peace which we desire for our country is not the peace of submission and cowardice, but the peace of justice. War and its evils will not be done away with by suffering injustice to ourselves or others, nor by pledging ourselves to drastic action for international right if we do not prepare the forces which would sustain such action. We can perform our rightful part in promoting permanent international peace only by a willingness and a prepared ability to defend our own rights and the rights of other nations.

Higher Things Than Peace

"We earnestly desire to keep the peace, but there are higher things which we must keep if we would keep the faith as Washington and Lincoln kept it. Peace at the price of submission and cowardice is not desirable, nor is it the peace of justice which alone would make it permanent.

"Supine submission to the invasion of our rights, or indifference to the wrongs of weaker nations, will not long maintain peace, nor will mere threat of action enforce our rights under international law. There must be an unflinching determination and a personal ability to defend our rights and to fulfill our international obligations. In such a readiness lies the sure safeguard of both national honor and continued peace.

"Failure to deal firmly and promptly with the menace of Mexican disorders has brought conditions worse than war and has weakened our national self-respect. Every resource of government should forthwith be used to end these conditions and protect from outrage the lives, honor and property of American men and women in Mexico.

"Whatever our country can legitimately do to attain peace for war-stricken Europe, and to aid in the procurement of equal rights without discrimination because of race or creed to all men in all lands, should be done.

Provision For Defense

"Adequate provision for the common defense has become the task of foremost national concern.

"Beneath the structure of military and economic strength there must be a unified spirit of this cosmopolitan people, a deep loyalty and undivided allegiance to America, the land which has welcomed us and our immigrant forefathers.

"Back of any adequate national preparedness in arms or in industry must remain the democratic soul of an undivided people, determined to keep America's free heritage and traditions unimpaired in first place. American problems must be faced and solved solely in the light of American ideals. American political action must be taken in the service of American ends.

"Unwavering patriotism and unflinching fidelity to America is the only spirit which should animate our citizens.

"If in this melting pot of a hundred nations the children of any fail, to find our common destiny worthy of common devotion and defense we shall sustain irreparable loss of national character.

"In this spirit of Americanism, action must be taken for the common defense. We must be ready in spirit, arms and industry. Preparation in arms requires:

"A navy restored to at least second rank in battle efficiency.

"A regular army of 250,000 men, fully armed and trained, as a first line of land defense.

"A system of training adequate to organize with promptness, behind that first line of the army and navy, a citizen soldiery, supplied, armed and controlled by the national government.

Military Training

"In our democracy every male citizen is charged with the duty of defending his country. This duty is not new. It has existed from the foundation of the government. Under modern conditions it cannot be performed without military training.

"Without training means slaughter and disaster. As the nation has always recognized and exercised the right to enforce compulsory military service in time of war, so should there be universal military training for that service during times of peace.

"We believe in preparedness for defense, but never for aggression. We must not sacrifice the lives of men for the glory of gain of military conquest. And we believe that the women of the country who share with the men the burdens of government in times of peace and make equal sacrifice in time of war, should be given the full political rights of suffrage, either by state or federal action.

"Arms alone cannot maintain a nation. Of far greater permanent importance must stand a national industry, efficient for the general welfare, a prosperity justly distributed, a national life organized in all points for national ends. Four years ago this party was born of a nation's awakened sense of these fundamental truths. In the platform then adopted we set forth our position on public questions. We here reaffirm the declarations there made on national issues.

As to High Cost of Living

"A nation to survive must stand for the principles of social and industrial justice. We have no right to expect continued loyalty from an oppressed class.

"We must remove the artificial causes of the high cost of living; prevent the exploitation of men, women and children in industry by extension of the Workmen's Compensation law to the full limit permitted under the constitution, and by a thoroughgoing Child Labor law; protect the wage-earner; and by a properly regulated system of rural credits encourage the farmer and give to the landless man opportunity to acquire land. A country must be worth living in to be worth fighting for.

"To make possible social justice, to maintain our position in peace and war we must insure business and industrial prosperity. This can be done:

"By a regulation of industry aimed at promoting its growth and prosperity, and a just distribution of its returns and a healthy expansion of foreign trade.

"By a conservation and development of our national resources for the good of all.

"By the re-establishment of our merchant marine;

"By the development of a system of interstate national highways;

"By making a new standard of governmental efficiency through a complete civil service system, a national budget and the destruction of 'pork barrel' legislation;

"By the creation of a permanent, expert tariff commission, with a view to intelligently and scientifically adjusting the tariff so as to build up, rather than destroy, American industry.

"The protective system is essential to our national prosperity. Tremendous new pressures will be thrown upon our industries after the war by this highly mobilized production of Europe. At all times, conditions of competition must be equalized between our own and foreign countries. We can only get the protection we need through the use of exact and complete knowledge, unimpaired by prejudice of politics, and can secure that knowledge at all times and when needed only through such a commission.

Industrial Issues

"The industrial issues are chiefly national. The present and future must make it imperative that the regulation and promotion of industry, and especially of transportation and foreign trade be national, not local. Only federal power can work justice to capital and labor throughout the nation. Only national authority can mobilize industry for defense as the nation's need demands it.

"We have set forth in this platform plain essentials of national existence. They are not new in principle. Most men agree with them. Any man may propose them. The urgent and immediate need is for their performance. We have had ample experience with the promiser: with words and the bitter taste of words retracted.

"We must choose a man who, not alone by words, but by past deeds, gives guarantee that he can and will make these things good. The issue is one of men. In the midst of world changes unparalleled in history we cannot forecast the problems which will confront our government during the war and at its end. We therefore need as president a leader who knows the nation. A man who acts.

"If we continue longer to stand for words above deeds, for fancies as above facts, we shall receive and merit the fate that surely awaits the man or people who do not face the truth.

"We will meet and work with any man or party who sees the nation's need and puts forward a leader fit to meet it. We will accept no compromise in the man, and we solemnly charge upon any who place partisan politics above country the responsibility for a nation's future, sacrificed to self-interest and spoils."

"By making a new standard of governmental efficiency through a complete civil service system, a national budget and the destruction of 'pork barrel' legislation;

"By the creation of a permanent, expert tariff commission, with a view to intelligently and scientifically adjusting the tariff so as to build up, rather than destroy, American industry.

"The protective system is essential to our national prosperity. Tremendous new pressures will be thrown upon our industries after the war by this highly mobilized production of Europe. At all times, conditions of competition must be equalized between our own and foreign countries. We can only get the protection we need through the use of exact and complete knowledge, unimpaired by prejudice of politics, and can secure that knowledge at all times and when needed only through such a commission.

Industrial Issues

"The industrial issues are chiefly national. The present and future must make it imperative that the regulation and promotion of industry, and especially of transportation and foreign trade be national, not local. Only federal power can work justice to capital and labor throughout the nation. Only national authority can mobilize industry for defense as the nation's need demands it.

"We have set forth in this platform plain essentials of national existence. They are not new in principle. Most men agree with them. Any man may propose them. The urgent and immediate need is for their performance. We have had ample experience with the promiser: with words and the bitter taste of words retracted.

"We must choose a man who, not alone by words, but by past deeds, gives guarantee that he can and will make these things good. The issue is one of men. In the midst of world changes unparalleled in history we cannot forecast the problems which will confront our government during the war and at its end. We therefore need as president a leader who knows the nation. A man who acts.

"If we continue longer to stand for words above deeds, for fancies as above facts, we shall receive and merit the fate that surely awaits the man or people who do not face the truth.

"We will meet and work with any man or party who sees the nation's need and puts forward a leader fit to meet it. We will accept no compromise in the man, and we solemnly charge upon any who place partisan politics above country the responsibility for a nation's future, sacrificed to self-interest and spoils."

men and it proved one of the best social gatherings at the local armory for a long time. As a token of esteem those present presented the hero of the evening a set of gold cuff links and a purse of gold.

Capt. Hunton enlisted in the National Guard on Feb. 12, 1901 as a member of Co. G. He was a private corporal and sergeant and on May 3, 1903 he was made regimental commissary. He was advanced to captain in 1905, and has the distinction of being one of the three officers who were officers of the Sixth regiment during the Spanish-American war.

Early last evening, the Second battalion held a drill on the South common under the command of Major Colby T. Kittredge and later they repaired to the armory, where a bountiful dinner was served. Major Kittredge introduced as toastmaster Arthur F. Salmon. Among those who addressed the gathering were: Gen. Gardner W. Pearson, Col. Warren E. Sweetser, Major Charles A. Stevens, Commander J. H. Caverly of Post 155, G.A.R.; James O'Sullivan, John R. Linnahan, of Lynn, deputy commander of the Spanish war veterans, Capt. Philip L. Schuyler of Concord, Capt. George Prescott of Company I, Concord, Capt. Harold C. Patten, Eight regiment; Representative Victor Jewett and Lawrence Cummings.

The presentation of the gift to Capt. Hunton was made by Rep. Victor F. Jewett and the recipient of the gift responded in fitting terms. A musical program followed and the meeting closed with the singing of "And Lang Syne" by the audience.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A well attended supper and smoke talk was held Wednesday night by Ladd & Whitney, Post 155, G.A.R. The supper was held during the early part of the evening after which a business meeting was held and this was followed by the smoke talk and entertainment. Invitations from Mary E. Smith tent, Daughters of Veterans to a flag service in Post 120 G.A.R. hall, June 9, and from the J. A. Garfield Relief Corps, to attend memorial service in memory of the unknown dead in Fongshore, Sunday afternoon, June 11 at 3 o'clock and also to their flag day service on the evening of June 15, were all accepted. Votes of thanks were extended to those who served the collation on the morning of Memorial day; to those who so generously gave the use of their automobiles; to Capt. Terry whose untiring zeal contributed to lighten the services of the day; to the women of the various organizations who contributed food and labor; to those who assisted at the ceremonies and to all who in any way helped make the duties of the veterans lighter. Under the good of the order, one of the comrades gave a very dramatic and tragic account of a night in Boston which called forth very interesting and amusing remarks from many of the comrades present.

Knights of Columbus

An interesting meeting of the members of Lowell council, Knights of Columbus, was held last night at their quarters in Associated buildings. The meeting was presided over by Grand Knight Joseph Roark and considerable business was transacted. The first degree was conferred upon a large class, and the program for the preparedness parade was outlined as follows: Members will meet at their quarters at 7:30 o'clock and, headed by the Lawrence brass band, will march in a body to the scene of formation, where they will be assigned to their place in line. At the conclusion of the parade luncheon will be served in the rooms of the organization. Grand Knight Roark urged the members to be numerous in line.

BIG INCREASE—EXPORTS IN APRIL $800,000,000. THE IMPORTS WERE $217,000,000.

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Exports of the United States in April were $339,000,000 and imports $217,000,000, as compared with exports in April 1915, of $224,000,000 and imports of $200,000,000, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce announced today.

MAN'S OWN POISON CAUSES RHEUMATISM, SAYS LONDON DR.

Ridicules Idea of Uric Acid and Meat Diet as Causes for Arthritis—Smashes Many Foolish Fallacies

"Man poisons himself by the absorption of certain substances that should be eliminated—this is the cause of so much rheumatism, according to Dr. Lane, a London physician." So said W. A. Varney. He continued:

"Great harm has been done by the ordinary rheumatic medicines in that they not only disturb the stomach but often fail to relieve the pain or contain something that relieves the pain for the time being and the disease is as bad if not worse after taking such medicine.

"There are hundreds of preparations on the market but I do not remember of ever seeing anything about them taking care of rheumatism of the joints so that they creaked when going up or down stairs. I know what Var-ne-sis has accomplished for actual cripples that were confined to wheel chairs. It has made every one of these people well and should do the same for you.

"Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass. for the Journal for Rheumatism. It's free.

"I want every rheumatic in this city to go immediately to their druggist and get Var-ne-sis. He has it, or tell your druggist to get Var-ne-sis for you from his wholesaler or send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass.—Advt.

"Many pet theories about rheumatism of the joints, and I mean chronic arthritis, have been smashed during the past few years. The old idea of meat causing rheumatism is ridiculous, think of the large number of vegetarians that suffer from rheumatism—these people never eat meat. I know quite a number that suffered from arthritis and had been on a meat free diet for a long time—so much so that they became weak and did not have sufficient strength to fight the disease. Just as soon as they began to eat meat once a day they began to improve and with the help of Var-ne-sis were well in a short time."

The old idea of uric acid has been exploded as uric acid is perfectly normal to every human being—it is

Advt.

SCORERS ARE UNPOPULAR

COME NEXT TO UMPIRES WITH BALL PLAYERS WHO ARE LOOKING FOR GOOD AVERAGES

Next to the umpire, probably the most unpopular fellow that hangs around a baseball game is the man who is dubbed scorer. His job is unpleasant many times because his judgment doesn't agree with that of the thousands of fans and the player who doesn't get a hit or the man who is charged with an error.

On most every close hit or muffed ball there is more than one decision to be reached in scoring the play. It all depends whether the scorer or the fan is open or tight in his decisions. The scorer oft times scores what many think a hit as an error rather than be charged with partiality or playing favorites.

The rules governing scoring give the scorer the sole power, allowing that his judgment will not only be fair, but favorable to both players and fans. In the big leagues most of the scorers are open in their rulings. Few of the paper sporting editors hand out an error unless the muffed ball was really and truly bad. Hits are a lot more acceptable than errors, for only one man, the pitcher, kicks when a hit is marked up when one of his teammates allows the ball to roll through his legs, because he misjudged the slam or because someone overruns a popfly.

The scoring rules decree that each misplay should be charged up as an error against the man who permits a batsman to become a baserunner or allows a baserunner to advance a base due to his misplay. Bad judgment on the part of the fielder is not charged as an error.

A hard hit ball that a fielder can't handle in time to retire the batsman or a baserunner should in all cases be scored as a hit. Many times a doubt exists as to whether or not the slam was too fast and when such is the case a hit should be charged as the rules allow doubt to go to the player and purely horn batsman and fielder who smile when a hit is registered or what looked like a muffed forgotten. —Exchange.

LYNN AND NEW LONDON

PIEPER'S TEAM HAS BROKEN EVEN IN SIX GAMES PLAYED WITH LEADERS TO DATE

Lou Pieper's Lynn aggregation has made a better showing against the New London leaders thus far than any other team in the circuit. By taking two out of three games from the Planters in the series played this week, Lynn evened up matters for the season. The teams have played six games and each has won three of them.

Oscar Tuero, the hero of Pieper's pitching staff, has won two of the games and Williams captured the other. If other teams had made as good a showing against the Millionaires the race would not be one-sided. With Springfield, Portland and Lynn playing good ball, things may not look so easy for the present leaders in a week or so. Other teams seem to be just as strong as New London outside of the pitching staff. Benefited by spring practice with major league teams over a half dozen members of the New London outfit came into the Eastern league in mid-season form. They were in the same condition at the beginning of the season as the other teams are at this time and now that their opponents are shaping into form a closer race can be expected. Springfield seems to be going just as good as New London today. Portland and Worcester are not far behind, while the Worcester team which started off so poorly is also doing well. So far as Lowell is concerned the team looks as good as any with the exception of the pitching staff. Unless the hurlers on the payroll at present show better work in the next few games changes will be made and with a few good pitchers Lord's team should be a great improvement.

HAS FOUGHT 250 BATTLES

JIMMY WILDE, WONDERFUL ENGLISH FLYWEIGHT HAS NEVER SUFFERED A DEFEAT

"The Mighty Atom" is the nickname conferred upon Jimmy Wilde, the British flyweight champion, by his multitude of English admirers, and in his recent ring performances the "Ty-lorstown terror" has certainly lived up to his reputation. A couple of weeks ago Jimmy fought Johnny Rosner of New York for the world's flyweight title and defeated him with ease, the seconds of the American boy throwing up the sponge in the 11th round. Wilde seems to have a clear title to the world's championship of his division, for he has whipped all the best boys of his weight in Europe, and there doesn't appear to be any flyweight on this side of the Atlantic who would stand a chance with him.

Jimmy is just 24 years old. He has fought over 250 battles and has never been defeated. He has often gone out of his class and given away pounds of weight. Jimmy clinched his right to the British flyweight title early this year by knocking out Young Symonds in the 12th round at the National Sporting club in London. For that victory he received $5000, in addition to the Lord Londale belt. In March Jimmy tackled Sir Smith, the former flyweight champion, and put him to sleep in the third round. In his contest with Young Rosner, the American bantam, in Liverpool last month the New York fighter took a lot of punishment, but he fought on gamely until the 11th chapter, when his seconds gave up for him.

Although he can fight at an even 100 pounds, Wilde has expressed an eager willingness to tackle the best of the American bantams, and has challenged Kid Williams and Johnny Ertle. In view of Wilde's threatened invasion of America he becomes of special interest to the fans on this side of the ocean. Eugene Corri, the famous English referee, is a great Wilde fan, and asserts that the little midget is the greatest midweight with the gloves that England has produced in a generation. "His lightning speed, his perfectly timed blows, his gliding footwork and the manner in which those long, pipe-shank arms of his drive his opponents back reeling and blowing, or cause them to measure their length on the floor, baffle expert and laymen alike." It may be added that any boxing style that baffles Eugene Corri has got to be mighty clever.

"Surely science was never brought to such perfection as in his case," continues Corri. "Brute force he has absolutely none, not an ounce or the fraction of an ounce, yet he hits as hard as if his thin arms were steel. So hard do his blows fall that he has often broken his right hand on an opponent's body and been compelled to finish a fight, and win it, practically doing all the work with his left hand."

SWIM AT LAKEVIEW

15-MILE ENDURANCE RACE TO BE HELD ON JUNE 18—MANY EVENTS

Open to all the long distance swimmers who care to compete for the New England fresh water endurance championship, a 15-mile race will be contested in the waters of Lakeview on June 18, starting at 8 a. m. from the Marion A. C. cottage.

The race is sanctioned by the A. A. U. and is open to all amateurs. It is hoped that Sullivan, Boyle and Duborow will see fit to enter, as Charley Toth, Harry Myron, Jack Hurwitz, Jack Bratt, Arthur Snellcomb, James Beals and Hans Hergmuller already have done so. Robert Dowling will not be a starter on account of having to take Harvard entrance examinations.

EASTERN LEAGUE COMMENT

All Eastern league rain records were broken this week. Lowell has played but one of five scheduled games so far this week.

Jesse Burkett of Lawrence comes here tomorrow and should prove a good attraction for a Saturday afternoon. Jesse is just the same as of old and he heads a fast bunch of young ball players. Lowell fans always turned out in large numbers to greet Jesse when he was with Worcester and now that he has jumped to Lawrence they should be even more anxious to see him beaten. The local team should be in good shape tomorrow and Manager Lord thinks he can beat the Lawrence crew.

Pitcher Otto Rettig, last year with the Lewiston club, and taken over by Lynn, refuses to report to Lou Pieper and has been suspended. Rettig states that he would rather play Sunday baseball in New Jersey than stay with the Lynn club. Last Sunday in a game at Passaic he allowed but one hit.

Hugh Bradley, who a few years ago was considered the best first baseman in the New England league, is reported to be doing some classy stick work in the American association. In 30 games played with the Columbus team he has a batting average of .284. Bradley went from the N. E. league to the Red Sox and two years ago jumped to the Feds.

On account of so many postponements, due to the rainy weather, double-headers have already started in the Eastern league. Lowell will get its share of double bills soon. Springfield, Hartford and Lynn each have one postponed game to be played off here and Portland has two.

The Bridgeport Post says: "While the Planters were here Sunday it was learned that Gene McCann and Lou Pieper, who met as rival managers in the 1914 battle between the Eastern association and the New England league championship teams, now have a side bet every time their teams play. On the last meeting Pieper's crew won 10-2, and McCann was so intent on winning that he saved Garry Fortune his star twirler for the game until Martin flew and he had to use Garry as reliever. After watching Fortune twirl a couple of innings Gene probably offered prayer that things hadn't happened the way he planned them."

UMP. DOHERTY QUILTS LEAGUE

A change was announced last evening in the staff of umpires of the Eastern league. James E. Keedy of Philadelphia was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of "Mickey" Doherty, who has been umpiring since the opening of the season. Doherty officiated at four local games this season. His last appearance here was on the morning of Memorial day when he umpired the game with Lawrence.

BILLY BROOKS WON BOUT

Billy Brooks, a Lowell boy who is now making his home in Bridgeport, knocked out Kid Swords in the third round of a scheduled eight-round bout in the Connecticut city recently. Billy made a strong impression with Bridgeport fans, outclassing his opponent all the way.

FORMER RED SOX HAS HOBBY
Fritz Coumbe, the southpaw who is twirling fine ball for the Cleveland club this year, has a hobby. It is to save the last ball pitched in each of his victorious games.

He started the practice in 1914, but when the season was over he had only a pair to put in his trophy case. Last year he added five more, while this season he already has accumulated one more than he did during the entire 1915 campaign.

No sooner is the last out registered than Fritz makes a rush for his teammate who handles the ball last. As a rule it has been Gandil, but in one game it was Speaker, and Fritz chased out beyond second base to meet Tris and gain possession of the cork center. Then he inscribes the score, opposing club and date.

NEBES BEATS BLACKBURN

Lowell Boy Wins Five Mile Race From Chicago Speedster—10-Mile Race Tonight

In an exciting five mile race at the Rollaway last evening Albert Nebes of this city defeated Willie Blackburn, the Chicago speedster, by one-sixth of a lap. Nebes time was 16 minutes and 48 seconds.

Last night's event was the first of a series of three races in which Nebes will attempt to get into the limelight as a champion skater by defeating Blackburn, who has raced against the greatest skaters in the world. Tonight the pair will skate a 10-mile event and as a finale tomorrow evening they will meet in what is known as an Australian pursuit race. This race is won when one of the skaters laps the other.

It was easily seen last evening that Blackburn was not accustomed to the amount of speed that the team probably will sail on June 20 and play its first game abroad. In Christiansia, on July 12. Other games will be played during July and August in Stockholm, Copenhagen and other cities.

CHAMPION SOCCER TEAM

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 9.—The champion soccer team of the Bethlehem steel works plans to tour Norway and Sweden this summer according to an announcement today. The team probably will sail on June 20 and play its first game abroad. In Christiansia, on July 12. Other games will be played during July and August in Stockholm, Copenhagen and other cities.

WHEN 'TWILL PINCH

Unless congress passes the shipping bill of the administration or some similar measure before the close of the war, American business shall soon feel the helplessness and humiliation of being dependent on others. The matter should never have been made a partisan question, as it was by the republicans and the interests behind private transportation lines, but having become partisan, the American people will learn where to place the responsibility for any harm that may come to the business of the country.

It was most fortunate that the great bulk of our foreign business during the war consisted of war orders which the belligerents themselves shipped from our ports, and it was fortunate also that the bulk of this trade balanced our great deficiency in shipping. Those who opposed the shipping bill pointed to the number of ships being privately constructed and to the busy wheels of our mills and factories, but they did not refer at all to the hundreds of urgent demands from foreign markets that wanted American goods and could not be supplied, for lack of ships. Neither did they speak of the disappointed American firms that could not import raw products from South America, Hayti, the Philippines, etc. The lack of adequate shipping killed many a good scheme for the growth of American business—a growth that would have been permanent when the war-orders have ceased to come in.

Secretary McAdoo in his recent report warned the country against the time when an enlarged foreign trade will demand more adequate shipping. He recalled the fact that our trade to Austria and Germany alone for the year before the war was $387,500,000 and said that this trade will be regained when peace comes. He recalled that the total imports of South America in normal times were approximately $700,000,000 and declared that America must strive to get part, if not the major part, of this trade with the ending of hostilities.

It is in the keener competition to come that America will feel the want of a merchant marine. We have seen how when other nations go to war our commerce must suffer, and we have been wrangling over partisan politics when we should have been passing laws to restore our flag to the trade routes of the world. It will be an everlasting shame if after two years of fruitless waiting for the wretched service given by England, France, Italy, etc., we must go back and ask our trade rivals to transport to all the parts of the world the goods that we intend to sell in competition with them.

The United States is in the strategic position with regard to world trade at the close of the war. Our resources will not have been depleted; we shall not have the great economic or political perplexities of other great powers; we shall have the wealth and the unimpaired energy and vitality. Yet, if we must go to our rivals—and they are not friendly rivals—to carry our goods under their flags, we shall fail to grasp the opportunity which is rightfully ours. The great essential for the future growth of American trade and commerce is the establishment of a merchant marine that shall be American in every respect. With such a merchant marine as the administration shipping bill aims to create, America shall be independent and can successfully compete with powers who will leave no stone unturned to beat us in foreign competition.

NOT SO EASY

The task of writing a platform for the republican convention at Chicago presents no difficulties, as viewed from this distance, such as must disturb the current that has been so strongly setting towards harmony between the republicans and progressives. In the four years since 1912 the two parties have been steadily getting together on common ground. The older party has recognized the desires of the younger, and has accepted its position on many of the questions which created issues four years ago. On the two vital issues of the present campaign, the two parties stand shoulder to shoulder.—Fall River Herald.

So, to at least one editor, the writing of a republican platform is an easy matter—as viewed from this distance. That is news surely, and it is not at all borne out by the course of events at Chicago. It looks "from this distance" at the present time as though the writing of a platform that both factions may agree to is not only difficult but wholly impossible. Principles are relegated to the background, and the choice of personalities seems to be the great rock on which the ship of harmony has foundered.

Little pretence is being made that in either convention the platform amounts to anything. The country looked to the republicans to voice a positive declaration of views at the opening, but instead we were treated to a lot of negative statements that rang hollow. The progressives are for a platform as short as it is secondary. All platform builders are so busy pulling wires and plugging up old differences that the plank is neglected by the wayside, and so long as the progressives demand a candidate that the old guard does not want under any circumstances, there can be no platform to which both parties can subscribe.

On only one point do they agree—and that will not be written into the platform. Each group knows that it does not want President Wilson and the burning desire of each is to beat him. Yet the conservative element and those with long memories fear that if they do not take Roosevelt he will make the election of President Wilson a certainty. Contrary to the views of the trusting writer in Fall River, the progressives and the republicans do not stand "shoulder to shoulder"; they are face to face—and ready for a fight.

ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE

The wanton destruction of private property which is so complained of in all our cities during the summer is rarely due to ignorance. It is for the most part the deliberate work of hoodlums who do mischief with a sort of perverted delight. If ignorance were the cause of it our flowers and shrubs would not be safe for a moment, but in this respect there is little to complain of. Even the foreigners who are not accustomed to our systems of parks and commons show deference towards our flowers and shrubberies and the local park department has found that it may safely plant in the most congested and least protected parts of the city.

On the other hand, it was recently reported that bubble fountains, have been robbed of their parts and that other costly defacements have taken place. Windows, fire alarms, park benches, etc., are destroyed without a semblance of excuse, and by those for whose benefit they are provided. As the Sun has frequently contended, this is the work of gangs, and while it can never be wholly eliminated, there should be little consideration for those who, old enough to know better, return to the city evil for good.

WAR AND WEATHER

During the long rainy spell last summer it was commonly stated that there might be some connection between the war and the state of the weather, and like comments are being heard just now. Scientists do not seem to take this view, but some wise ones who are not awed by scientific assertions say that continental peasants have been known to fire cannon in order to bring rain, and you will meet the man who says that it is nearly always rainy after July 4th. Surely if the exploding of great shells on the earth and in the air could disturb atmospheric conditions the battle of Verdun and the other great bombardments may explain our moist and unseasonable June. From whatever cause, the unusual damp and cold of the season up to the present has seriously interfered with many events in this city and its immediate vicinity.

One cannot without trepidation arrange for open-air pageants, dog shows, preparedness parades and the like, but there is heat and sunshine waiting for us and in a few months we would welcome ardently one of the days that we now complain of so bitterly.

STREET REPAIRS

We are glad to see our neighbor, the Courier-Citizen, come out in favor of the "permanent road-repair gang" so long advocated by The Sun. One of the editorial staff writing in the Catchall column favors such a gang "whose sole duty would be to travel about the city patching up cradles, holes and smoothing up rough spots." We agree with him that "such a gang wouldn't cost a large amount of money, and the work that might be accomplished would be comparatively large." This gang is urgently needed and it has been needed for a long time. If it had been in existence for the past five years some of the streets that now have as many holes as a Swiss cheese might be in a fairly decent condition. We recently called attention to the sorry condition of Broadway which Commissioner Morse is striving to patch up when it is almost too late to do anything that can postpone its general renewal. In advocating a street repair gang The Sun has been mindful of the example of other progressive cities and has from time to time given examples of the excellent results achieved by such a gang elsewhere.

PRICE OF SHOES

The leather supply in this country, it is said, has been seriously affected by the war and some shoe manufacturing concerns are predicting that shoes will go up a dollar a pair in price in the near future. As yet, the announcement is not general and it is not likely that any change in price will be made while there is a way to avoid it. The public knows that there are many grades in shoes and the boosting of the price of the highest varieties would make a keeping for cheaper grades. Deeming this in mind, shoe manufacturers and shoe merchants should be careful not to offend public sentiment by going up in price sooner than is strictly necessary. Rightly or wrongly the public has come to look with suspicion at any price tinkering—and the legitimate change is liable to be just as unpopular as the change made from purely selfish motives. Even the plea of war necessity cannot be stretched so far that it will cover every new burden on people who are already burdened too much.

Reason for Cyclones

"Of course, I want my daughter to have some kind of artistic education. I think I'll let her study singing," said Mrs. Neighbor.

"Why not art or literature?" suggested Mrs. Highbrow.

"Art spoils canvases and literature wastes reams of paper. Singing merely produces a temporary disturbance of the atmosphere," was the reply.

Fastidious About His Work

At a certain house in Belvidere yesterday a man knocked at the door and the following dialogue ensued:

Lady—"What do you want?"

Man—"Can you give me some kind of work that I may have a little money?"

Lady—"No, but I was reading in The Sun last night how hard it is for farmers to get help. Why don't you try that?"

Man—"Good God! Do I look like a farmer?"

Lady—"Why no, you act more like a tramp, going from door to door, begging."

Some Come Back

The late Sir Robert Ball, the famous astronomer, a keen humorist, was never loath to recount jokes at his own expense. He was dining with some friends at Stratford, and on the bill being presented he said to the landlady:

"Madam, I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. In twenty-five million years all things must return to their original condition. We shall again be eating a dinner precisely identical. Will you give us credit until we come back?"

"Well," replied the landlady, "you were here twenty-five million years ago, and you left without paying the bill then. Settle that account and I will just give you for what you have had today."

The man who told how the wind took off the roof of his and a neighbor's house, exchanged them, and nailed them down, has my unlimited confidence. My father had an experience which will not permit me to be skeptical."

"Did he have a house blown down?"

"No; he hadn't any house to be blown down. He had been living at a hotel waiting for his new residence in the country to be completed. All the material was lying out in the fields, and the plans were in a fool's head. What he went to look at the place one morning he found that the wind had broken open the tool-house, secured the plans, blown the whole house up, cleaned the windows, and started a fire in the kitchen range."

Every man picked up his hat and went home.

There's Nothing New

A great deal of our latter day speech which we consider quite catchy and that we set down as brand new is often of a vintage ante-dating our great-grandfather. We think, pointing to the head and exclaiming "nobody home" is the very newest way of indicating a shortage in gray matter, but list to what Pope, the eminent English poet who died in 1633, wrote:

"You beat your pate, and fancy it will come. Knowest thou, please, there's nobody at home."

It would seem that "nobody home" was quite a popular phrase in the olden days for in a book of familiar quotations we find the following from Cowper:

"His wit invites you by his look to come. But woe you knock it never is at home."

Beautiful Lives

Beautiful lives are those that seek to make life beautiful—peak to peak. Sending the sunlight, sounding the bell, the sorrow and dry the tear. Beautiful lives that build and bloom in every sunless and silent room. A shrine of beauty that those that dwell

May feel the touch of the beautiful spirit.

Beautiful lives, that find their way into the corners so dark and drear. And dust the cobwebs and bring the gleam. That the hermit souls therein may dream.

Beautiful lives are those that find the beautiful secret of being kind. And passing it on, making it grow. In many an aching heart of woe. Beautiful lives, that where they pass are like a music along the grass.

Like a butterfly, poised on a dewy wing. Beautiful lives that come with love. To teach the lesson of dream and dove. And spread the fashion of being sweet. From door to door in the little street.

Beautiful lives are those that give. Beautiful love that the world may know. Down its tolling and teeming days. Beautiful lives are those that seek. To help the helpless and aid the weak. To cheer the cheerless and sing and smile.

In such a friendly and fearless style. Beautiful lives, that are a dew. On the plough and the world ploughs through.

And a vine by the door, and flowers on the sill. To bring God's beauty to lone and ill.

The News-Record of Springfield, Ill., is another of the papers attempting to stem the tide of waste in the use of white paper, before the shortage that threatens the industry strikes this country. J. David Stern, the managing editor of that paper, makes the following statement in relation to the matter:

"Since our circulation was already on a rock-bottom, paid-for basis, no return basis, it was difficult for us to reduce our consumption of paper, but we have cut off about four hundred copies a day, which is equivalent to a saving of 15 tons per year by the following method:

"The department stores had been getting a dozen papers a day so that they could cut out their ads and post them on the bulletin boards in the different departments. We have taken the waste papers off the press and cut the ads out for them.

"We have eliminated the counter graft of the advertisers who drop in and asked for a paper because they have not received their regular paper. All of our dealers are on the 'no return' basis. The only source of left-overs is from street sales. We

ADVENTISTS CAMP MEET

GREAT WHITE TENT AT GLEN FOREST — "PREPAREDNESS TO RESIST THE DEVIL"

"Preparedness" to resist the devil, was the note sounded by Elder J. K. Jones, president of the Massachusetts conference of Seventh day Adventists last night, in his opening address of welcome in the great canvas pavilion at Glen Forest park, Lawrence, to members of the denomination from all over the state who had assembled to attend the old fashioned camp-meeting and revival services being held from June 8 to 13.

Taking as his text Ephesians 1:10, he said that while nations were making preparations to meet the certain turn of affairs things were taking in these days of war and disaster on every hand, so it was necessary for Christians, who could read the fulfillment of prophecy in the terrible conditions in the world, to prepare their hearts and the lives of others for the great impending crisis the bible pointed out would soon break upon the earth.

Unless Christians are themselves prepared, how can they warn and prepare others? Therefore the great need is to seek God to put sin away, and receive His blessing. And this is the real object of this campmeeting.

Special vocal selections were rendered by the South Lancaster Male quartette and the large chorus under the direction of Prof. E. H. Dexter.

The regular tent meeting program began this morning at 5.30 with a devotional service, followed by a bible study at 9, and a preaching service at 11. Dinner at noon, and departmental meetings in the afternoon.

In the evening the mammoth white tabernacle is to be turned over for special public meetings, at which prominent bible scholars will speak on prophetic themes relating to present-day conditions.

In the culinary department there is every indication of "preparedness" to look after the great number of people arriving. Meals are served in the dining tent for the campers and the public visitors, on the cafeteria plan. The meals are entirely vegetarian, and are prepared under the direction of the chef of the New England sanitarium at Melrose. The grocery tent is well stocked with numerous good things to eat. Health food is given special prominence at the counter.

So many campers have already arrived, and such a large number more have sent in orders for space, that the camp committee is having a hard time locating every one. A great many rooms have had to be secured from neighbors to accommodate the arrivals.

IRON FINGERS OF WAR

NOTED CITIES WHOSE LITERARY SHINES AND WONDERFUL ART GALLERIES ARE ENDANGERED

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 2.—The territorial division of Northern Italy known as Venetia, which the Austrian offensive now threatens, is the subject of today's war geography bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters. The bulletin gives the following data about this fertile region whose blossoming plains are dotted with numerous cities famous as centers of great historic interest and custodians of art and architectural treasures of incalculable worth:

"Venetia, whose eastern, northern and western boundaries have been the fighting line of Austria and Italy since the latter nation entered the European struggle, is the rear 'boot strap' of the Italian peninsula. It juts far up into Austro-Hungarian territory, at the head of the Adriatic sea, and is bounded on the south by the Adriatic and the territorial division of Italy known as Emilia, of which Bologna is the principal city. It has an area about equal to that of the state of Vermont, but its population is ten times as great.

"Among the noted cities whose literary shines, historic buildings and wonderful art galleries are endangered by the far-reaching iron fingers of war are: the great mistress of the Adriatic, Venice, once the seat of the most powerful republic in the world; Verona, treasured in the hearts of the English-speaking world as the home of literature's greatest lovers, Romeo and Juliet; Padua, also a familiar name to the Shakespearean student; Vicenza, rich in Palladian palaces; Udine, the military base for Italian operations on the Isonzo during the long-attenuated drive toward the Asiatic port of Trieste; and that delight of artists, Chioggia, the chief fishing port of Italy.

"Venetia is largely delta land, having been formed by the alluvial deposits brought down from the Tyrolean Alps by numerous rivers, including the two largest watercourses of the region, the Po and the Adige. The lower reaches of these rivers flow through extensive plains where levees are necessary to prevent frequent inundations. In this section the Po has a fall of not more than a half-inch to the mile. Naturally this silt soil is extremely fertile, producing large crops of wheat, rice, tobacco and clover, together with mulberry leaves for silk worms.

"Many of the towns of Venetia are manufacturing centers, the chief products being glassware, woolen, silk and cotton goods, paper and candles. Venetian lace has become so widely known as almost to have lost the geographic significance of its name.

"The territory derives its name from the Veneti, the tribes which inhabited this region during the early Roman days. When the barbarians poured over the Alps and Attila sacked Lombardy, the people of the interior fled to the Adriatic coast, taking refuge on the low islands where the cluster around the mouths of the numerous rivers. It is this helps that Venice owed the initial impetus for its rapid rise to power, beginning in the fifth century. Her fortunes sadly waned with the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope route to the East, in 1488, this ocean lane to the Orient striking a fatal blow at the island city's supremacy as a trade center. A large part of the Mediterranean traffic was quickly diverted to the Atlantic seaboard, establishing England's dominance as the world's greatest commerce-carrying nation.

EUROPEAN WAR NEWS

Persistent Hammering by Germans on Defenses of Verdun —Results in Further Gain

Persistent hammering by the Germans on the defenses of Verdun, north-east of the fortress has won another success, gaining them ground near the Thiaumont farm about a mile southwest of Fort Douaumont.

This advance was scored during a general attack along the entire front on the east bank of the Meuse which, according to this afternoon's bulletin from Paris, was repulsed in all other sectors with heavy losses to the crown prince's troops.

The French are still holding what is known as the Douaumont-Thiaumont line, and French military opinion is that they will not be obliged to fall back to the inner defenses about two miles southwest of Fort Vaux as the guns of Souville are still able to sweep the cross running from Vaux to Douaumont.

Latest reports from the eastern front show the Russians to be continuing successfully their great offensive on a front of 250 miles or more from the Pripiet to the Rumanian border. They have already made a breach said to be 100 miles wide in the Austrian lines and captured more than 50,000 prisoners.

DUTCH ARMY PREPARED AND EQUIPPED FOR ANY POSSIBLE WAR

LONDON, June 9.—A Reuter despatch from Amsterdam says that a statement has been issued from the Dutch army headquarters that the army is thoroughly prepared and equipped for any possible war.

FALL OF FORT VAUX DEEPLY REGRETTED IN FRANCE

PARIS, June 9.—The fall of Fort Vaux with its gallant band of defenders is deeply regretted but public opinion is not discouraged.

The withdrawal of the French line to the inner defenses of Verdun on the right bank of the Meuse, which was forecast by military writers as a natural consequence of the capture of Vaux has not yet taken place. The French in the last 24 hours have repulsed the furious and repeated efforts of the enemy to compel their retirement, according to the latest reports received by the French war office.

By a week of uninterrupted attacks, in which it is said a number of divisions were destroyed, the Germans have advanced their lines about one mile. They have taken the southern part of Caillotte wood, part of the Chapelle wood, Damloup village, and now Vaux fort. Before the enemy will be able to make full use of his week's conquests he will have to enlarge his front by the capture of Souville fort. This fort crowns a height of 385 metres which is situated to the southwest. Its guns sweep the line of the crests running from Vaux to Douaumont and its seizure will be a hard task which will entail desperate fighting and heavy sacrifices.

GERMANS LAUNCH A GENERAL ATTACK ALONG RIGHT BANK OF MEUSE

PARIS, June 9, 11:05 a.m.—The Germans have launched a general attack along the entire front on the right bank of the Meuse and have penetrated the French line at one point but were repulsed elsewhere with heavy loss, according to an official statement issued by the war office today. The point where the Germans entered the French lines is in the neighborhood of Thiaumont farm. The Germans also made two small attacks southwest of Hill 304 but these attacks, the statement says, were repulsed.

The text of the statement follows: "On the left bank of the river Meuse we repulsed last night two small attacks against positions to the southwest of Hill 304."

"On the right bank of the river the Germans are continuing to deliver violent attacks along a front of about two kilometers (1.5 miles) stretching east and west of the Thiaumont farm. Between this farm and the Caillotte wood, the enemy penetrated one of our trenches. All their endeavors on the west have been checked with heavy losses to the enemy. "In the region of St. Michel a detachment of the enemy which was endeavoring to approach our lines to the east of Bissele was dispersed by our fire."

NOTABLE GATHERING AT SACRED HEART HALL, EAST PINE STREET —PRIZES AWARDED

A social gathering was held last evening in the Sacred Heart hall in East Pine street, the occasion being a tribute to the women who took part in the recent military pageant, which was held at Associate hall under the auspices of Garde Secre-Coeur, and also the burning of the mortgage on the property of the garde. It was mainly through the efforts of the young women that money was raised to extinguish the debt of the organization, and accordingly last evening's affair was of double significance.

At 8 o'clock some 80 young women and members of the garde assembled in the hall and partook of a bountiful dinner. Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I., chaplain of the garde, who acted as master of ceremonies, complimented the guests of the evening for the fine work accomplished in organizing the recent military pageant, and he then formally announced that the affair netted over $500. He then introduced President Henri Guerin of the garde, who after extending his thanks to the members of the fair sex as well as to his brethren of the garde, set fire to the mortgage and the blaze was the signal for cheers. Cant. Horace Deallat, who spoke interestingly, and his remarks were followed by a musical program, those taking part being William Carr, Emelle Gaudette and others, while chorus selections were also sung.

One of the features of the evening was also the awarding of prizes to the contest which had been organized in connection with the military pageant. The first prize, a diamond, was won by Miss Delvina Renaud, who brought in the sum of $132. The other contestants and the amount they brought in were: Miss Lillian Normand, $101 and Miss Annette Carufel, $67. Miss Estelle Giroux, who was awarded first prize for the best costume in the pageant, was presented a gold pendant. The pillow donated by Miss Marianne Renaud was won by Joseph A. Amard of East Pine street. The companion of the evening was Miss Marguerite Lemaitre.

today by Chairman George W. Perkins and at the same hour the republican conference committee was making its report at the Coliseum. The reports were not identical but they agreed that Col. Roosevelt's name was the only one the progressives presented to the republicans and that the latter offered no name for consideration. Both reports recommended time for further conferences "this afternoon or evening."

Mr. Perkins read the report of the republican committee and the declaration that the progressive members of the committee had urged Theodore Roosevelt as the "most desirable candidate upon which to unite" was so widely cheered that the report had to be read again when order was obtained.

After listening to the reading of the two reports and Mr. Perkins' appeal to the convention to let the conference go back to work, the delegates applauded the chairman's praise of the eloquence of his colleague's arguments in favor of the progressive "universal candidate."

Gov. Johnson of California sounded a note of pessimism in the call for peace by telling the progressives not to place too much confidence in the expressions concerning Col. Roosevelt in the republican report. His remarks voiced the feeling of the radicals of the little prospect for an agreement between the two conventions but his name on the report guaranteed that the convention would permit its committee to proceed with conferences until a final report could be made.

LATE IN STARTING

Progressives Not in Hall at Announced Time to Start Today's Session

AUDITORIUM HALL, Chicago, June 9, 10:12 a.m.—When 10 o'clock, the hour for reconvening the progressive convention, arrived, there was not a leader on the platform and there were only a few hundred people in the hall. There was little enthusiasm among the arriving delegates, although a band playing patriotic airs did its best to liven things up.

The officers of the convention who were attempting to proceed in a deliberate manner realized that their work was cut off for the time being.

Henry Allen's description of yesterday's session that it was a powder magazine with lots of matches around adequately described the situation today.

From a parliamentary point of view the convention officers had the advantage in their contest with obstreperous delegates who would rush madly into making a nomination of Col. Roosevelt. Before adjournment yesterday the platform report was placed before the convention by Dean William Draper Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the resolutions committee and it was made the unfinished business.

Those who were seeking delay to give the peace conference committees as much time as they desired in their efforts to get together with the republicans, looked eagerly for a Roosevelt demonstration. They were prepared when it came to keep it going as long as possible, figuring that it would help use up the time.

Mass. Delegates For Roosevelt

While the leaders talked the delegates poured in. The Massachusetts delegation marched in yelling "We'd better nominate Roosevelt before it's too late."

William Allen White and Gifford Pinchot after moving about among the delegates reported that the convention could not be restrained and the moment word came that nominations were being made by the republicans, it was the determination of the progressives to place their nominee in the field before action could be taken by the other convention. Col. Roosevelt, it was said, would be named by acclamation but with a roll call.

was by Rabbi Joseph Stolz of Chicago followed by general applause.

Prayer by Rabbi Stolz

Rabbi Joseph Stolz, D.D., of Isaiah Temple, Chicago, delivered the following invocation before the progressive national convention here today:

"O Lord, whose throne is in the heavens, whose footstool is the earth; O God, who art the Father of all peoples, the Ruler of all nations; O Eternal One, who art supreme above the dith of battles, and mighty above the voices of many waters; thy judgments reach to the uttermost ends of the earth. Thou makest for righteousness, and kingdom, order and justice, and round about Thee.

"Thou bringest order out of chaos, light out of darkness, good out of evil, peace out of conflict, even though the earth do change and the mountains be moved even though nations rage and kingdoms totter. And Thou need have no fear for the days to come, if we keep the truth and establish justice, if we despise the gain of oppression, and seek peace and pursue it.

"Thou art our refuge and our strength, whose footstool is the earth; O send us Thy light and Thy truth that they may lead us to the real sources of national strength. Inspire us with an ever-growing and ever-deepening love of those ideals which have made this country great, and which can weld together those who left their homes in all parts of the earth to find security and liberty within our portals.

"Let Thy spirit of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and might, rest upon this convention, that its after this may inspire the confidence of the people, that its righteous indignations may purge the nation of its materialism, that its high aspirations may strengthen the conviction that the true greatness of our country lies not in the abundance of the things which we possess, but in the justice of our laws and institutions, in our devotion to peace founded on righteousness and love, in the brotherhood of all the races and nations, all the classes and creeds within our borders.

"Bless our country that it may be a stronghold of peace, an advocate of peace in the councils of nations, a messenger of peace unto the peoples of the earth, an apostle of peace striving earnestly for a realization of the prophet's dream of the day when men will bear their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, when nation will not lift up its sword against nation and they will not learn war any more, when every man will sit under his vine and his fig-tree, and none will make him afraid.

"Thee, O God, be the greatness and the might and the glory and the victory. Amen."

Delegate Charles E. Mason of Maine was recognized to offer seats on the floor to the Georgia delegation, seated at the rear of the stage, referring to Georgia as "the home of Teddy's mother."

The Georgia and Maine orators exchanged compliments, all being loudly cheered, especially at the declaration by C. R. Hutchess of Georgia: "We would rather fight and lose than not to fight at all."

Planks Approved

Chairman Robins brought up unfinished business and the platform to be read plank by plank. The chairman moved the approval of each plank as it was being read and said final adoption as a whole would be deferred until the entire document had been ready, all amendments made and the peace conference report acted upon.

All of the first paragraphs of the platform were approved by viva voce votes, later paragraphs were approved by unanimous consent.

The planks on Americanism were approved.

Mr. Lewis, holding an Indiana proxy, offered an amendment to the Mexican plank to include criticism of the "murder" of Americans on the high seas.

The convention by overwhelming vote approved the amendment.

To the paragraph relating to peace efforts, Judge W. L. Ransom of New York proposed to add the declaration for equal rights, "to all men in all lands," the following:

"We pledge ourselves not to conclude a treaty in Russia or with any other country that will not expressly procure such absolute rights."

A new amendment by Judge Ransom, reading as follows, was substituted:

"We should not conclude a treaty with any country that will not expressly assure to American citizens such absolute rights."

The substitute was approved with a roar of applause.

The peace conference committee, headed by George W. Perkins and Gov. Johnson, arrived at 11:30 and the platform was laid aside. Deep silence fell over the vast hall as Perkins began to read.

When Col. Roosevelt's name had been presented there was, short, loud applause. Yells and cheers followed the statement that the republicans presented no candidate.

There was little applause when reading of the progressives' report was concluded. Rapid attention was given reading of the republican committee's report.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PLANK

Fight in Prospect at Progressive Convention—Radical Leaders Are Not Satisfied

CHICAGO, June 9.—A fight over the woman suffrage plank in the progressive platform was in prospect today. Some of the more radical leaders of the suffrage movement, it was said, were not satisfied with the plank as drawn by the resolutions committee.

As adopted by the committee the plank says the progressive party believes that women "should be given the full political rights of suffrage, either by federal or state action." This was looked upon by some suffrage proponents as a decided straddle. Their proposition is to make the plank read "women should be given the full political right of suffrage both by federal and state action." When the platform is taken up plank by plank the fight probably will result in general debate.

THE RUSSIANS ADVANCING

Now Threaten to Envelop the Entire Austrian Army —Austrians in Panic

LONDON, June 9, 2:32 p. m.—Information has reached the Russian embassy in Rome that the Austrian front has been completely broken along a length of 94 miles to a depth of 37 1/2 miles, according to a Central News despatch today from the Italian capital.

The Russian advance, according to these advices, now threatens to envelop the entire Austrian army in the region affected, the Austrians finding themselves attacked from both the east and the north.

Austrian Slav regiments are declared to have been seized with panic during the first attacks by the Russians and to have surrendered without any real resistance.

SOME CANDIDATE TO BEAT WILSON

That is the Republican Aim at Present

—Platform Will Favor Merchant Marine, National and G. O. P. Tariff—
—Mass. Big Four Attract Attention

(Special to The Sun).

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, Ills., June 8, 2 p. m.—The Massachusetts delegations are all in their seats and the big four are objects of much attention. The majority is wearing Weeks badges and all are talking of harmony with a platform set for national defense, merchant marine, republican tariff and against the shifting Mexican policy. The convention is ready to shout for its nominee but is now wasting breath shouting prematurely for the wrong man. Sentiment has crystallized on the importance of one ticket and a conference between the Roosevelt men and the regulars to arrange a peace basis. From the start the Old Guard controlled the situation at the Coliseum and advocated peace with honor. So far as selecting candidates is concerned the sole aim is to beat Wilson just as four years ago the sole aim was to beat Roosevelt. But the determination to beat someone is the only connecting link between the party attitude today and in 1912. Then all were in a fighting mood. Now all are for the party without the shadow of a fight yet in sight between the factions in the great mass of men who fill the convention hall from basement to rafters.

RICHARDS.

REPUDIATED BY GERARD

Never Made Utterances in Regard to President Wilson's Proposed Peace Mediation

BERLIN, June 8. (By wireless to Lowell.)—The American ambassador James W. Gerard, has repudiated an interview recently attributed to him in the subject of President Wilson's peace efforts. The Overseas News agency says. The ambassador also is quoted as asserting that Count Friedrich von Westarp, conservative leader in the reichstag, desires Mr. Gerard to have a spurious interview published some time ago but the ambassador declined.

"According to a statement given out by the news agency today a manuscript containing a copy of the spurious interview was submitted to Mr. Gerard with the idea that it was to have been published in the National Zeitung but the ambassador refused to sanction it. The statement follows: "Ambassador Gerard stated to a staff member of the Vossische Zeitung that he never made the utterances in regard to President Wilson's proposed peace mediation attributed to him and quoted in the reichstag. The conservative leader, Count von Westarp, said that Mr. Gerard had announced President Wilson's intention to mediate for peace and for this purpose to exert pressure on the belligerents, which he (Count von Westarp) was unwilling to agree to.

"Mr. Gerard now states that Count von Westarp had desired that he have a spurious interview published some time ago by the National Zeitung. At that time Mr. Gerard told a staff member of the National Zeitung that he was unable to give any information. On seeing the manuscript Mr. Gerard declared that it was untrue and therefore held the manuscript.

"Mr. Gerard makes formal denial of the spurious interview."

AMSTERDAM, June 8, via London.—The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin declares that Ambassador Gerard disclaims all responsibility for what was represented as an interview with him, published by the Berlin Aachener Abendblatt and quoted in the reichstag by Count von Westarp. The fact is, according to the Vossische Zeitung, that Mr. Gerard received the editor of the National Zeitung to whom he said that the visit to the United States of Joseph C. Grew, secretary of the American embassy at Berlin, was purely for private purposes. The ambassador de-

KITCHENER'S SUCCESSOR

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM ROBERTSON MAY BE PROMOTED—SECOND IN COMMAND

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM ROBERTSON

Lord Kitchener's successor as head of the British war effort will probably be a civilian, but the new secretary will have to rely upon General Sir William Robertson, chief of the imperial general staff, who was second in command to Lord Kitchener and who may be raised to the peerage and become war secretary himself. Men who know General Robertson intimately assert that he is a very remarkable man not only in ability and military genius, but because his rise has been almost as interesting as that of Kitchener. General Robertson has risen from the ranks. Last December, when King George issued his letters patent creating the new British army council of seven members headed by Earl Kitchener, General Robertson as chief of the imperial general staff received second place. General Robertson was quartermaster general of the British army in France and later its chief of staff under French before being promoted to be chief of the imperial general staff. He is fifty-six years old.

clined to reply to other questions. Later the editor of the National Zeitung returned, the Vossische Zeitung says, with a manuscript containing utterances attributed to the ambassador. Mr. Gerard is said to have torn up the paper in the presence of John B. Jackson, a member of the embassy staff.

SEN. BRYAN CONCEDES DEFEAT TAMPA, Fla., June 8.—In a statement today United States Senator Nathan P. Bryan conceded his defeat by Gov. Park S. Trammell for the democratic nomination for the senatorship.

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Warburg Says it Has Strengthened Position of the American Banker in International Finance

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 9.—Time to come, our discount rates will compare favorably with those of Europe. Our friends in South America consider the creation of the federal reserve system as one of our greatest achievements, and their willingness to rely upon our ability to provide to a certain extent, at least—such financial aid as Europe gave them in the past is predicted upon the confidence that our new system inspires.

Mr. Warburg cited recommendations for legislation made by the federal reserve board to congress and suggested that the recommendations lead in two directions.

"The one is an increase of the reserve banks' general strength and lending power and an enlargement of their scope of usefulness in dealing with their members," he said. "The other is the removal of limitations heretofore placed upon the operation of national banks. The board feels keenly as a matter of equity, that national banks should be placed on a parity with state banks and trust companies wherever this can be done consistently with safety and conservative banking principles.

"Between the national and state banking systems there must not be any competition to secure more members by a lowering of banking standards. The whole country would suffer if this took place."

Mr. Warburg warned against the practice of pyramiding reserves and of considering so-called excess reserves the basis for loan expansion.

"The process of absorption of our securities returning from abroad should be conducted on such a basis and scope as to turn the individual depositor into an investor, so as to free our gold reserves rather than increase our loans on an enlarged floating supply of securities," he said.

"Wise statesmanship, in my mind, therefore, would indicate that certain things should be done by the federal reserve system and by all the banks that are interested in our strength to watch carefully further expansion at this time, and to accumulate the floating gold supply in the hands of the federal reserve banks so as to enable them when the time comes, if necessary, to spare large sums without thereby crippling their lending power."

Be sure to ask for the double strength outline as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription outline—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of outline—double strength—from any druggist and apply a little of it right and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength outline as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE. Lowell, June 8, 1916.

More General Orders

Thomas J. O'Donnell, chief of staff, issued general orders number three this morning and he read part of the document to the women at their meeting as it served to give the necessary information. The women wanted to know about the places of formation, but the chief marshal was unable to give that information at this time. He advised them to follow the daily newspapers closely. The orders issued today were as follows:

General Orders No. 3

1. Aides to the chief marshal will wear silk hats, frock coats, dark trousers, black leggings, and black shoes.

2. The division marshals other than those appearing in military uniform will wear a ribbon 5 inches in width from the right shoulder to the left hip.

3. An aide from the chief marshal's staff will be assigned to each division marshal to assist in the formation of the division.

4. Division marshals will form their divisions as per roster and no one is authorized to make any changes. All parties are notified that the chief marshal will transmit his orders only by members of his staff, his aides or orderlies. Orders received in any other way on the evening of the parade will be considered erroneous and will not be obeyed.

5. Military organizations will march company front. All other organizations will march ten files front, single rank, the distance between ranks will be 2 feet and this formation must be maintained throughout the entire route. Under no conditions must an organization break into a column of fours. The guide during the march will be right. During temporary halts the units of a division will close up to close order so that no distance will be lost on resuming march. Every member participating in the parade is urged to do all in his power to preserve order on the march and prevent congestion or confusion at points of dismissal.

6. Military organizations will salute as called for in their regulations. All other organizations will salute by executing eyes right on arriving at a point 6 paces from the reviewing officer.

By order of the Chief Marshal, Thos. J. O'Donnell, Chief of Staff.

The Women Present

The following women, all active workers in connection with the parade, attended the meeting held in Page's banquet hall this forenoon: Miss Grace Cunningham, Mrs. Thomas B. Doe, Mrs. Julian Keyes, Mrs. E. F. Lamos, Mrs. A. D. Prince, Mrs. A. J. Murkland, Mrs. E. D. Holden, Mrs. J. V. Meigs, Mrs. H. D. Pickering, Miss Eleanor Bell, Miss Katharine Darracott, Miss Martha Worcester, Mrs. Mary A. Hall, Mrs. F. B. Shedd, Mrs. B. H. Pillsbury, Mrs. James E. O'Donnell, Mrs. Gardner W. Pearson, Mrs. H. Hutchins, Mrs. E. M. Tucke, Miss Eugenia Meigs, Mrs. William A. Mitchell, Mrs. Rose Jordan Hartford, Miss F. S. Hartsborn, Mrs. S. E. B. Shepard and Mrs. Robert F. Marden.

There has been considerable inquiry as to details, but enthusiasm along this line is not very great inasmuch as the committee on arrangements has made it very plain that nothing of an advertising nature can enter into the parade; that the parade stands for patriotism and preparedness, and for those two words alone. The committee received notice this morning, however, of a float, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," which will be occupied by Miss Grace L. Holdsworth, of 44 Cornell street, and several other young ladies. This will undoubtedly be a very charming feature of the parade.

Congressman Rogers' Letter

The following is a copy of Congressman Rogers' letter to the mayor: House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., June 7, 1916.

Hon. James E. O'Donnell, Lowell, Massachusetts.

My Dear Mr. Mayor—I am just in receipt of your letter of the 5th instant and hasten to express my appreciation that the committee in charge of the Preparedness parade has selected me as chief marshal. I shall probably not be in Lowell before Monday, but will thereafter communicate with you and assist in any way possible in the arrangements for the parade.

Again thanking you and the committee for the designation, I remain, Very sincerely yours, John Jacob Rogers.

Later in the day the mayor received a telegram from the congressman advising him that the latter would arrive in Lowell tomorrow and would start right in and help boost the parade.

City Hall Employees

The girls at city hall will not join in the parade, despite the best efforts of City Messenger Owen Monahan, whose tactful entreaty failed him for the first time. Owen called a meeting of the city hall employees yesterday afternoon and the meeting was held in the mayor's reception room. It was "one meeting, too," Owen made a speech, but even that did not move the charming girls, who, for the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, showed tendencies of "stone heart." The genial city messenger wore his most captivating smile and spoke as follows:

"This meeting has been called by me simply for the purpose of getting you together to decide what part 'city hall' is to take in the preparedness parade next Wednesday night.

"Every movement needs a head, and for that reason I sent out notices bearing my signature. My part now is ended and it is up to you to choose someone for a leader.

"This meeting is now open and suggestions and ideas are requested and desired from each and everyone of you.

"Some say that the people of city hall have shown but little enthusiasm for a project that started here. Let us get together and give that statement the lie. Let us show our friends on the outside who say that we are 'creatures of pampered idleness and luxury' that we are 'live wires.'"

"Speak right up. Let us all do our part."

"Ladies and gentlemen, my part is done, and this meeting is now open." Owen's words were greeted with great applause, but the girls remained firm in their decision not to parade. They did volunteer, however, to provide a band for the men of the various municipal departments who will parade.

AMERICANS IN ENGLAND

Those Subject to Income Tax Must Sell to or Deposit With Government Their American Securities

LONDON, June 9.—Americans domiciled here who are subject to the income tax must sell to or deposit with the British government their American securities under penalty of an extra two shillings tax. This information is given to The Associated Press today by an official of the American dollar securities committee. The ruling holds whether the securities are held here or in America.

The tax of two shillings, added to the income tax, will apply to Americans who have resided here long enough to become subject to the regular income tax, the incidence of which will be followed except that no abatement will be granted on American securities which appear on the government's lists. If American securities are deposited with the government only the usual income tax with the ordinary abatements, will be charged, but the government prefers to purchase the securities outright. In the event that Americans resident here deposit their American securities held in the United States the government will collect the interest and pay it to the owners in sterling. American residents holding such securities in America may either deposit them with or sell them to the government through the agency of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York.

It is not unlikely that when this ruling becomes generally known there will be an exodus of wealthy Americans living in England. The American embassy and consulate have been besieged of late by American residents seeking information on this point, many of whom threaten to depart from the country unless the government makes an exception in their favor.

A member of the dollar securities committee who discussed this matter today was positive that all residents subject to the regular income tax will be liable for the penal addition unless they dispose of their American holdings. Residents who are now liable to a tax on unearned income will be compelled to pay five shillings in the pound, while those to whom the surtax applies will pay still more unless they meet the government's demand.

NOMINATING SPEECHES

FIRST THAT OF HUGHES BY GOVERNOR WHITMAN

Speech Interrupted by Six Minute Demonstration for Taft—A 20 Minute Demonstration for Justice Hughes—Root, Burton, Weeks and Du Pont Nominated

CHICAGO, June 9.—Nominations of candidates began today in the republican convention.

The first was that of Justice Hughes. Gov. Whitman made the nomination speech, when as the roll of states was called, Alabama and Alaska passed, and Arizona yielded to New York.

Gov. Whitman's speech was interrupted by a six-minute demonstration for former President Taft which the republican peace conferees declared they considered "unofficial instructions."

After the convention had heard the report of the conference with the progressives. The conference will continue.

Gov. Whitman reached his perch at 12:11 o'clock and a demonstration began.

Called to Order

Chairman Harding called the republican convention to order and Bishop McDowell offered prayer. The big hall was more crowded than it has been at that hour on any other day. Delegates from favorite son states appeared with flags demonstration.

Finally at 11:17 Chairman Harding got the meeting in order and the convention stood while Bishop William F. McDowell offered prayer.

Before going on, a national committee contest from Kentucky was considered for a moment by unanimous consent.

Senator Smoot read the report of the peace conference.

When Mr. Smoot came to the announcement that the progressives had urged that Col. Roosevelt had the attributes of "the most desirable candidate upon which to unite" there was applause, cheers and some hisses.

There were cries of "Roosevelt," a jangling of cowbells and more cheers. Senator Smoot held up his hand for silence but the demonstration, coming from different places on the floor and galleries, continued. Some few tried to hiss down the demonstration.

Cries of "order, order," Chairman Harding banged the gavel and the noise subsided. Scattering applause and some laughter marked the close of the reading.

Applause and cheers marked the announcement that the conferees would continue their work.

Then came the big business of the convention—the nomination of candidates.

Whitman Nominates Hughes

The roll of states was called and Alabama and Alaska passed. Arizona yielded to New York and Gov. Whitman was recognized and took the platform to nominate Justice Hughes. The demonstration subsided while Gov. Whitman was introduced.

His declaration was that "we are here to choose the next president" was applauded.

Then the governor went on to a demonstration.

nunciation of President Wilson's foreign policy. For the times to come, he declared, the nation called for "our greatest statesmen and the republican party."

"No man living," he shouted, "can

REPUBLICAN PEACE CONFEREES REPORT

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 9.—The republican conferees of the joint progressive-republican peace conference today submitted the following report:

To the republican national convention: "The progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite."

Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session, met in conference with a committee representing the national progressive convention last evening. The progressive committee of the conference consisted of Messrs. Perkins of New York, Johnson of California, Bonaparte of Maryland, Wilkinson of New York and Parker of Louisiana.

The conference was frank, free and most friendly. The conferees were of one mind in believing that the good of the country and perhaps its future and influence of years to come depends upon the complete defeat of the present democratic administration and the restoration of the control of the executive and legislative branches of the government to the hands of those who firmly believe in and will execute the policies that are so heartily supported by the republican and progressive parties alike.

The progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite.

It was agreed that your conferees would report these facts to this convention.

Respectfully submitted:

PROGRESSIVE PEACE CONFEREES REPORT

AUDITORIUM HALL, Chicago, June 9, 11:32 a. m.—The report of the progressive conferees follows:

To the progressive national convention: "The progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite."

Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session met in conference with a committee representing the national republican convention last evening. The republican committee of the conference consisted of Messrs. Smoot, Crane, Borah, Butler and Johnson.

The conference was most friendly. Immediately upon assembling your committee proposed as the joint nominee of both conventions the name of Theodore Roosevelt.

The committee representing the republican national convention did not present the name of any candidate nor did it attempt to refute our arguments relating to the unique availability of Theodore Roosevelt as a candidate to unite both parties or to serve our common country at this crucial period in the history of the world.

After several hours of friendly discussion, during which no concrete proposition was advanced by the republican conferees, except that a further conference might be desirable this afternoon or evening, the joint committee adjourned.

central took a woman's word for it today and the no school bell, for the first time in the history of the city, rang unofficially.

The woman in question called up the central fire station and told the fireman on duty there at the switchboard that she was in the office of the superintendent of schools at city hall and that the superintendent had instructed her to telephone the fire station and tell them to ring the no school bell for it and the no school bell sounded.

Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, admitted this afternoon that the expected had happened. "I have always feared," he said, "that some malicious person would do just what was done this afternoon. It is known at the central fire station that only myself, or in my absence, the chairman of the school board, has the right to order the ringing of the bell. But it is not to be wondered at that the fireman at central obeyed the order received today. I presume he thought it was all right as long as it was coming from my office, for the woman told him she was talking from my office. All I can say is that we will have to devise some way of preventing a recurrence of the act."

FIRE ALARM THIS NOON
An alarm from box 512 at 12:13 o'clock this afternoon summoned a portion of the fire department to a blaze in the attic of a two tenement house at 1211 Middlesex street, belonging to Adelard F. Demers. The department made a prompt response and extinguished the fire before any material damage was done.

NO SCHOOL BELL
Somebody Ordered it Rung Today Without Authority

The "no school" bell sounded today, but not officially. The one who ordered that it be rung was an impostor. Only the superintendent of schools has the authority to order the ringing of the no school bell. In his absence the chairman of the school board is the one to say when the bell shall ring. Both the superintendent of schools and the chairman of the school board are in Lowell today and neither of them ordered that the bell be rung.

The custom has been to telephone to the central fire station, where it is known that only the superintendent of schools or the chairman of the school committee has the authority to order the ringing of the bell. But a man at

Senator Interrupted With Cries of "We Want Teddy"—Biggest Demonstration of Session—Borah Praises Colonel—Suffrage Plank Amended

AUDITORIUM HALL, Chicago, June 9, 12:44 p. m.—Without any preliminary announcement, Senator Borah entered the Auditorium hall at 12:40 p. m., where the progressives were assembled in convention. He was escorted to the platform. A tremendous ovation was given him.

Chairman Robins introduced Senator Borah and the convention roared itself hoarse when the senator said he had not come officially.

"I will say to you frankly," were his first words, "I came over here to get an inspiration."

At once a wave swept over the hall, suggesting that stronger events than harmony with Borah as the man to unite the parties, might happen. This thought grew as the senator in his speech introduced the magic name "Roosevelt" as the progressives' great leader.

"We Want Teddy!" resounded through the hall and galleries with more vim than at any time since the convention assembled.

It was not "Rooseveltism," or if it was the can had burst from internal compression.

Senator Borah waited quietly and finally chairman Robins urged quiet. "It is well known—the deep seated affection I have for your leader," he said, and was halted by another salvo of enthusiasm, the whole convention in a mighty chant, shouting "we want Teddy."

The shouting continued and then was renewed, leaders on the stage joining.

"There's no doubt you want Teddy," said Senator Borah.

"We want Teddy," too," answered the delegates and the senator proceeded and swinging into the stride of his speech, which he promised would be brief.

He put a question on the whispered circulation of his name as a "possible Moses" by reminding the progressive convention that he was present as a member of "another convention."

"There is no doubt but that you want Teddy and that millions of citizens throughout the country also want Teddy," he began.

"You are fortunate in having a leader," he continued, "who has done more than any other man to make the issues of this campaign."

"He is a maker of questions involved in this international crisis."

The convention responded enthusiastically to the praise of the colonel. "But let us bear in mind," he urged,

"that these two conventions here will perhaps decide the welfare of the United States for the next quarter of a century. We can only insure ourselves by working together in close cooperation. I do not discourage your loyalty and enthusiasm to your leader, but I must say it is essential that before we leave this great city it should be definitely determined that we shall march and fight together in this great conflict."

"But if the two conventions agree upon your great leader you will find no more enthusiastic supporter than myself."

Borah concluded, amid applause and shouts of "Roosevelt and Borah."

As Borah shook hands with the leaders on the stage and left, the floor hummed with excited discussion of the dramatic development.

After finishing a consideration of their platform, section by section but without voting for its final adoption, the progressive convention recessed at 1:05 until 3 p. m.

The conference committee are understood to be watching the situation to determine whether there is any use to try again to get together. This depended it was said, on whether the republicans went on with nominations or desired further parleys.

The visit of Senator Borah was said by Mr. Perkins to be "another sign of the friendly spirit between the two conventions."

Mr. Perkins said he could not know what significance could be attached to the senator's visit. Some leaders suggested that Borah might be the compromise nominee suggested by the republicans.

"Anyway we're making a record for ourselves that will set us right before the country."

"No matter what the outcome we've got 'em anyway," Perkins said.

Woman Suffrage

The progressive convention amended the platform committee's plank on women's suffrage so as to declare for the "full right of suffrage by both federal and state action." The committee had used the word "either."

A report of the peace conferees appointed by the progressive national convention was read to the delegates.

SEC. McGRATH SAYS COLONEL WILL BE NAMED BY G. O. P. FIRST—INSISTENT DEMANDS

AUDITORIUM, Chicago, June 9, 2:40 p. m.—Insistent demands were made upon progressive leaders, by some of the "radical" element during the recess that the progressive convention nominate Col. Roosevelt before Senator Fall nominated him in the republican convention. It was insisted that such a move would add strength to Fall's remarks.

"I think the colonel will be nominated in the republican convention first," Secretary McGrath said.

HOBSON'S CHOICE
Tobias Hobson was the first man in England that let out backing horses. When a man came for a horse, he was told to take the stable where there was a great choice; but he was obliged to take the horse which stood next to the stable door, so that every customer was served according to his choice.

Our policy is just the opposite from that of Hobson. We have a great variety to choose from, but you are not obliged to take the first thing that is shown you. Our clerks will go to any inconvenience to show you the right article. Hobson's method of selling was by restriction; choice ours by a free choice after a thorough examination.

SIX CENT FARES

Division of the Bay State
Urged by Fall River
and New Bedford

BOSTON, June 9.—Protests against the proposed six-cent fare and complaints against present service from representatives of the Fall River, New Bedford and Chelsea districts yesterday completed the hearing of local issues in the Bay State Street railway case before the public service commission.

One of the most vigorous protests yet made came from City Solicitor George Grime, Mayor James H. Kay and Alderman William C. Gray of Fall River, the people of which now have the privilege of buying fare tickets at the rate of six for 25 cents. Thus a 6-cent fare would mean an increase of substantially two cents per fare.

This special rate, it was explained, was granted to Fall River people years ago by the old Globe street railway in return for certain operating privileges over the Slade's Ferry bridge.

Mayor Kay said: "Instead of a fare increase they ought to be asking for an arrangement to separate the northern and southern lines on the Bay State. Fall River would get as good service as is now rendered to New Bedford by the Bay State's competitive lines."

Vice President Robert S. Gott, once president of the Globe road, when cross-examined as to its history, admitted it had been a good dividend-paying proposition.

City Solicitor Henry E. Woodward of New Bedford urged that the Bay State's line to New Bedford be leased by the Union Street railway, which operates all the other lines radiating from the city.

Louis R. Kiernan, city solicitor of Chelsea, after securing from Mr. Feustel the admission that Boston-to-Chelsea service alone would be a paying proposition, said:

"Our service is deplorable. Practically every Bay State car going north has to pass through Chelsea, and that is a condition that should be taken into consideration in determining the amount of fare. Cars come through so crowded that you can't even put a bundle on them."

There will be no session of the hearing today. The main case will proceed next Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

BIGAMY CHARGE

North Adams Man in Court for Non-Support
of Lowell Wife

Charles Denis, wanted by the local police on a complaint charging him with non-support of his wife of this city, who claims to be his wife, was brought to Lowell from Holyoke by Inspector John A. Walsh early this morning. Denis has a wife and several children in North Adams.

A few days ago the North Adams police received a warrant from Lowell asking for the arrest of Denis. Knowing that the man had a wife and family in North Adams, the police of the latter city did not arrest him, fearing that a mistake had been made. Denis is employed in the Beaver mills and is well known there. The man's wife in North Adams was prostrated when she learned of his arrest and refused to believe that he was also married to another woman. It is alleged that Denis denies that the Lowell woman is his wife.

Denis was arraigned before Judge Enright in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with neglect of his wife. He entered a plea of not guilty and when asked if he was ready for trial answered in the negative. By agreement it was decided to continue the case until tomorrow morning.

Grand Jury Investigation—1 Death—Others
May Die

NEW YORK, June 9.—A grand jury investigation was begun last night into a rear-end collision yesterday afternoon on the elevated railroad, near 149th street and 3d avenue, in which one person was killed and 15 injured, some perhaps fatally.

Edward Grove, a lawyer man, was arrested on a charge of homicide, Coroner Flynn announced, after Grove had admitted that the signals were clear for the motorman of the rear train to proceed, thus permitting it to crash into the rear of a stalled express train.

All the injured were passengers in the first car of the local train south bound, and in which the motorman, Frank K. Kerrigan, suffered injuries from which he died in a hospital. The express train, also bound downtown, carried no passengers.

Flames, which burst almost immediately from the wreckage, gained little headway, as firemen with ladders soon ascended to the structure. The smoke added, however, to the panic within the train, and made the work of rescue more difficult. The third rail also handicapped the rescuers.

The injured were taken down ladders to ambulances rushed from nearby hospitals.

HAMPSHIRE SURVIVORS SCHOOL BOARD MET

MEN OF WARSHIP, ON WHICH KITCHENER WAS LOST, WASHED ASHORE IN ORKNEYS ON A RAFT

LONDON, June 9.—One warrant officer and 11 men, survivors of the cruiser Hampshire, which went down off the Orkney islands with Earl Kitchener and members of his staff aboard, have been washed ashore on a raft according to an announcement made by the admiralty last night.

ABERDEEN, Scotland, June 9.—The cruiser Hampshire sank in deep water, two miles from land between Marwick Head and the Brough of Burray, on the west coast of the Orkney islands.

ADDITION TO PAWTUCKET SCHOOL FAVORED—PARK FOR HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETICS

At a meeting of the school committee held last night the former vote to approve a six-room addition to the Pawtucket school was rescinded, and the tentative plan of Architect Gilbert for an eight-room addition was approved.

It was voted to extend the manual training and cooking to the Green-hedge school and cooking to the River-side school.

The matter of vocational guidance was discussed, and the secretary was instructed by the vote of the committee to write to Mayor Edmunds as to the possibility of getting a suitable man to start the work here.

It was voted to reserve the tickets for the floor of the house on the night of the high school graduation for the members of the graduation class.

The superintendent read a communication from R. E. Guilford, director of physical training at the Lowell Textile school, suggesting the development of a plan for physical training in the grammar schools. The cost, he said, would not exceed five.

A letter from the lesson of Washington park, suggesting the use of that park for outdoor athletics for the high school, was discussed. The offer contained in the communication was to leave the park for the summer for $700. The consensus of opinion was that the plan is not feasible at present.

COUNT PLUNKETT FREED

ORDERED WITH COUNTLESS TO LEAVE DUBLIN—THEY ATTEND SERVICE FOR THEIR SON

LONDON, June 9.—Count and Countess Plunkett, who were arrested early last month shortly after the suppression of the Irish rebellion, were released from custody last Wednesday and ordered to leave Dublin by next Saturday, according to a Central News despatch from Dublin yesterday.

The count and countess attended requiem masses in the Carmelite church yesterday for the repose of the soul of their son Joseph, who was put to death for participation in the rebellion. The church was thronged. In the congregation was the widow of Joseph Plunkett, who was married to him in prison on the morning of the day he was executed.

Three sons of Count Plunkett were implicated in the Irish revolt. One of them, Joseph Plunkett, was executed, and death sentences on the two others, George and John Plunkett, were commuted to sentences of 10 years' penal servitude.

BIG CHARITY CONFERENCE

Sessions Will Be Held in Colonial Hall—400 Visitors Expected—Mass. Executive Committees Met Yesterday

A big charities conference will be held in this city in October. It will start on the 25th and last for three days, and it is estimated that from 300 to 400 visitors will come to this city during that period.

The executive committee of the Massachusetts state conference of charities and the executive committee of the local committee established by the Lowell organizations that invited the conference to Lowell met at city hall yesterday afternoon in the mayor's reception room and went over the details of the plans for the event.

From Boston came 10 members of the state committee and President Edward T. Hartmann said it was the largest meeting he had on record outside of Boston.

Mr. Hartmann outlined the proposed program for the three days' conference. The subjects taken up will be industry and home conditions, children, charity and relief. Speakers of national repute are listed as coming and the expectation is that the Lowell conference will be unusually important and interesting. The public will be cordially invited to attend the sessions which will be held in Colonial hall. The visiting delegates who do not return to their home towns each night will be provided for in the homes of Lowell and a hospitality committee will be named to handle this matter.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

Demands Protection of American Rights at Home and Abroad—Suffrage is Indorsed

COLISEUM, Chicago, June 9.—Following is the platform adopted by the republican national committee:

In 1861 the republican party stood for the Union. As it stood for the union of states, it now stands for a united people, true to American ideals, loyal to American traditions, knowing no allegiance except to the constitution, to the government and to the flag of the United States. We believe in American policies at home and abroad.

Protection of American Rights

We declare that we believe in and will enforce the protection of every American citizen in all the rights secured to him by the constitution, treaties and the law of nations, at home and abroad, by land and by sea. These rights, which in violation of the specific promise of their party made at Baltimore in 1912, the democratic president and the democratic congress have failed to defend, we will unflinchingly maintain.

Foreign Relations

We desire peace, the peace of justice and light, and believe in maintaining a straight and honest neutrality between the belligerents in the great war in Europe. We must perform all our duties and insist upon all our rights as neutrals, without fear and without favor.

We believe that peace and neutrality, as well as the dignity and influence of the United States cannot be preserved by shifty expedients, by phrase-making, by performances in language, or by attitudes ever changing in an effort to secure votes of voters. The present administration has destroyed our influence abroad and humiliated us in our own eyes.

The republican party believes that a firm, consistent and courageous foreign policy, always maintained by republican presidents, in accordance with American traditions, is the best, as it is the only true way to preserve our peace and restore to us our rightful place among the nations.

We believe in the pacific settlement of international disputes and favor the establishment of a world court for that purpose.

Mexico

We deeply sympathize with the 15,000,000 people of Mexico, who for three years have seen their country devastated, their homes destroyed, their fellow citizens murdered and their women outraged by bands of desperadoes, led by self-seeking, conscienceless agitators, who, when temporarily successful in any locality, have neither sought nor been able to restore order or establish and maintain peace.

We express our horror and indignation at the outrages which have been and are being perpetrated by these bandits upon American men and women, who were or are in Mexico by invitation of the laws and of the government of that country, and whose rights to security of person and property are guaranteed by solemn treaty obligations.

We denounce the indefensible methods of interference employed by this administration in the internal affairs of Mexico, and refer with shame to its failure to discharge the duty of this country as next friend to Mexico, its duty to other powers who have relied upon us as such friend, and its duty to our citizens in Mexico, in permitting the continuance of such conditions, first by failure to act promptly and firmly, and second, by lending influence to the continuation of such conditions through recognition of one of the factions responsible for these outrages. We pledge our aid in restoring order and maintaining peace in Mexico. We promise to our citizens on and near our border, and to those in Mexico, wherever they may be found, adequate and absolute protection in their lives, liberty and property.

Monroe Doctrine

We reaffirm our approval of the Monroe doctrine, and declare its maintenance to be a policy of this country essential to its present and future peace and safety and to the achievement of its manifest destiny.

Latin-America

We favor the continuance of republican policies which will result in commercial, financial and social relations between this country and the countries of Latin-America.

Philippines

We renew our allegiance to the Philippine policy inaugurated by McKinley, approved by congress, and consistently carried out by Roosevelt and Taft. Even in this short time it has enormously improved the material and social conditions of the islands, given the Philippines a permanent and just participation in their government, and, if persisted in, will bring still greater benefits in the future.

We accepted the responsibility of the islands as a duty to civilization and the Filipino people. To leave with our task half done would break our pledges, injure our prestige among nations and imperil what has already been accomplished.

We condemn the democratic administration for its attempt to abandon the Philippines, which was prevented only by the vigorous opposition of republican members of congress, aided by a few patriotic democrats.

We reiterate our unqualified approval of the action taken in December, 1911, by the president and congress to secure with Russia, and with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien, and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance.

We reiterate the pledge to observe this principle and to maintain the right of asylum, which is neither to be surrendered nor restricted, and we unite in the cherished hope that the war which is now desolating the world may speedily end, with a complete and lasting restoration of brotherhood among the nations of the earth and the assurance of full equal rights, civil and religious, to all men in every land.

Protection of the Country

In order to maintain our peace and make certain the security of our people within our own borders, the country must have not only adequate but thorough and complete national defense, ready for any emergency. We must have a sufficient and efficient regular army, and a provision for ample reserves already drilled and disciplined, who can be called at once to the colors when the hour of danger comes.

We must have a navy so strong and so thoroughly ready and prepared, that no enemy can gain command of the sea and effect a landing in force on either our western or our eastern coast.

To secure these results we must have a coherent continuous policy of national defense, which even in these perilous days the democratic party has utterly failed to develop, but which we promise to give to the country.

Tariff

The republican party stands now, as always, in the fullest sense for the policy of tariff protection to American industries and American labor and for a commercial bulwark, but a powerful aid to national defense. Such protection should be reasonable in amount, but sufficient to protect adequately American industry and American labor, and be so adjusted as to prevent undue exactions by monopolies or trusts. It should, however, give the strictest attention to securing the industrial independence of the United States as in the case of dyes.

Through wise tariff and industrial legislation our industries can be so organized that they will become not only a commercial bulwark, but a powerful aid to national defense.

The Underwood tariff act is a complete failure in every respect. Under its administration imports have enormously increased, in spite of the fact that the intercourse with foreign countries has been largely cut off by the suspension of the war, while the revenues of which we stand in such dire need have been greatly reduced.

Under the normal conditions which prevailed prior to the war, it was clearly demonstrated that this act deprived the American producer and the American wage earner of that protection which entitled them to meet their foreign competitors, and, but for the adventitious conditions created by the war, would long since have paralyzed all forms of American industry, and deprived American labor of its just reward.

It has not in the least reduced the cost of living, which has constantly advanced from the date of its enactment. The welfare of our people demands its repeal and the substitution of a measure which will place as well as the American producer and the American wage earner will produce ample revenue and give reasonable protection to all forms of American production in mine, forest, field and factory.

We favor the creation of a tariff commission with complete power to gather and compile information for the use of congress in all matters relating to the tariff.

Business

The republican party has long believed in the rigid supervision and strict regulation of the transportation and great corporations of the country. It has put its creed into its deeds and all really effective laws regulating the railroads and the great industrial corporations are the work of republican congresses and presidents.

For this policy of regulation and supervision the democrats, in a stumbling and piecemeal way, are undertaking to involve the government in business which should be left within the sphere of private enterprise and in direct competition with its own citizens, a policy which is sure to result in waste, great expense to the taxpayer and an inferior product.

The republican party firmly believes that all who violate the laws in regulation of business should be individually punished. But prosecution is very different from persecution, and business success, no matter how honestly attained, is apparently regarded by the democratic party as in itself a crime. Such doctrines and beliefs choke enterprise and stifle prosperity. The republican party believes in encouraging American business, as it believes in and will seek to advance all American interests.

Rural Credits

We favor an effective system of rural credits, as proposed by the effective law proposed by the present democratic administration.

Rural Free Delivery

We favor the extension of the rural free delivery system and condemn the democratic administration for curtailing and crippling it.

Merchant Marine

In view of the politics adopted by all the maritime nations to encourage their shipping interests, and in order to enable us to compete with them for the ocean-carrying trade, we favor the payment to ships engaged in the foreign trade of liberal compensation for services actually rendered in carrying the mails, and such further legislation as will build up an adequate American merchant marine and give us ships which may be requisitioned by the government in time of national emergency.

We are utterly opposed to the government ownership of vessels as proposed by the democratic party, because government owned ships, while effectively preventing the development of the American merchant marine by private capital, will be entirely unable to provide for the vast volume of American freights and will leave us more helpless than ever in the hard grip of foreign syndicates.

Transportation

Interstate and intrastate transportation have become so interwoven that the attempt to apply two and often several sets of laws to its regulation has produced conflicts of authority, embarrassment in operation and inconvenience and expense to the public.

The entire transportation system of the country has become essentially national. We, therefore, favor such action by legislation or, if necessary, through an amendment to the constitution of the United States as will result in placing it under exclusive federal control.

Economy and a National Budget

The increasing cost of the national government and the need for the greatest economy of its resources, in order to meet the growing demands of the people for government service, call for the severest condemnation of the wasteful appropriations of this democratic administration, of its shameless raids on the treasury and of its opposition to and rejection of President Taft's oft-repeated proposals and earnest efforts to secure economy and efficiency through the establishment of a simple, business budget system, to which we pledge our support and which we hold to be necessary to effect a real reform in the administration of national finances.

Conservation

We believe in a careful husbandry of all the natural resources of the nation—a husbandry which means development without waste; use without abuse.

Civil Service Reform

The civil service law has always been sustained by the republican party and we renew our repeated declaration that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable.

The democratic party has created, since March 4, 1913, 10,000 offices outside of the civil service law, at an annual cost of $4,000,000 to the taxpayers of the country.

We condemn the gross abuse and the misuse of the law by the present democratic administration and pledge ourselves to a reorganization, along lines of efficiency and economy.

Territorial Matters

Reaffirming the attitude long maintained by the republican party, we hold that officials appointed to administer the government of any territory should be bona fide residents of the territory in which their duties are to be performed.

Labor Laws

We pledge the republican party to the faithful enforcement of all federal laws passed for the protection of labor. We favor vocational education, the enactment and rigid enforcement of a federal child labor law, the enactment of a generous and comprehensive workmen's compensation law within the commerce power of congress, and an accident compensation law covering all government employees.

We favor the collection and collation, under the direction of the department of labor, of complete data relating to industrial hazards for the information of congress, to the end that such legislation may be adopted as may be calculated to secure the safety, conservation and protection of labor from the most serious incident to industry and transportation.

Suffrage

The republican party, reaffirming its faith in government of the people, by the people, for the people, as a measure of justice to one-half the adult people of this country, favors the extension of the suffrage to women, but recognizes the right of each state to settle this question for itself.

Such are our principles, such are our purposes, such are the policies as we began. The times are dangerous and the future is fraught with peril. The great issues of the day have been confused by words and phrases. The American spirit, which made the country, and saved the union, has been forgotten by those charged with the responsibility of power. We appeal to all Americans, whether naturalized or native-born to prove to the world that we are Americans in thought and deed, with one loyalty, one hope, one aspiration. We call on all Americans to be true to the spirit of America, to the great traditions of their common country and above all things, to keep the faith.

Indoor Life Makes Fat

TRY OIL OF KOREIN TO KEEP WEIGHT DOWN, OIL TO REDUCE SUPERFLUOUS FAT

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against over-station, as fat acquired by indoor life is a real danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air is said to weaken the oxygen carrying power of the blood so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 15 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any person who is satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout, are advised to go to A. W. Daws & Co., or any good druggist and get a box of oil of korein capsules, and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

Even a few days treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight, improved digestion and a return of the old energy. Footpaths become lighter and the skin is healthy and clear. Oil of korein is inexpensive, cannot injure, and helps the digestion. Any blood who wants to reduce 15 or 20 pounds is advised to give this treatment a trial.

THE FRENCH MAID SAYS

KEEPING FOOD IN HOT WEATHER

"Isn't it a constant worry to keep foodstuffs fresh in summer weather?" was Marjorie's exclamatory question, one hot morning when she came in and found Marie instructing the cook to put some newly arrived fish immediately in cold water.

"You have to use considerable care," agreed Marie, "or things in summer are apt to spoil or become unfit to eat. This fish, for instance, will be kept sweet for some hours by covering it with cold water, which is a much better preservative than salt applied by some cooks, as this turns the flesh a dark color and imparts a disagreeable flavor to the cooked fish."

"With, too, at this season requires special care. The pitchers that have been used for it should be invariably rinsed in scalding water. If the milk bottles are placed in a pan of cold brine the milk will keep quite fresh for two or three days. The water must be renewed every day."

"Boric acid, though not desirable as a food, is most useful for sprinkling over fresh meat, and can easily be washed off before the article is cooked. If meat is parboiled or 'parroasted,' it will keep for two days longer. A few washed cabbage or lettuce leaves placed over cooked meat will help to keep it fresh. To keep poultry fresh a lump of charcoal may be placed inside the body and powdered charcoal sprinkled over it; it must then be carefully washed before using."

"Vegetables should be used as soon as possible, as freshness is their chief value and excellence. If, however, this is impossible, they must be picked over carefully every day and all dead matter removed. They should be kept in a cool, dark place and all strong-scented ones be kept by themselves."

"If hard-boiled eggs are shelled and covered with cold water some time before using, the color will be kept clear. A good plan for keeping butter firm and cool is to cover it with a layer of clean flowerpot. Dip a piece of coarse flannel in water, sprinkle freely with salt and lay it over the flower pot. The salt will keep the flannel moist."

NEW HEADLIGHT LAW

HIGHWAY COMMISSION SENDS COPY TO LOCAL POLICE—AGAINST DAZZLING EFFECTS

Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department has received the following communication relative to the requested enforcement of the new law on headlights on motor vehicles:

"Dear Sir: The Massachusetts highway commission requests me to enclose a copy of the regulations which were made by this commission and approved by the governor and council on November last, as required by law to take effect on the first of January, regulating the lights on motor vehicles.

"The board feels that sufficient time has elapsed to allow every motor vehicle owner or operator to comply with the law and so arrange his lights, by focusing or using one of the large number of devices which are on the market, so that his lights on his motor vehicle will comply with the regulations.

"There have been three demonstrations, at each of which a large number of vehicles were shown which complied with the law.

"The commission has been requested by the representatives of the Bay State association, to ask the chiefs of police in the various cities and towns to co-operate by requiring all automobilists to comply with the regulations. It is felt that if the police will co-operate by possibly in the first instance stopping and warning the operators of cars where they have not attempted in any way to prevent their lights from dazzling the other users of the highway, and keeping or perhaps sending the names to the commission, that very soon the headlights nuisance will be done away with.

"This does not request you to make prosecutions for merely technical violations of the law, but we do feel that after all this time every owner of a motor vehicle should have at any rate made some reasonable attempt to comply with the law, still there are a number of cars on the street where nothing whatever has been done to prevent the lights from dazzling other users of the highway.

"The commission will be glad to have your co-operation in the matter. Yours very truly,

"F. Visser, Secretary."

The law is as follows: "Wherever there is not sufficient light, within the limits of the highway location, to make all vehicles, persons, or substantial objects visible, within said limits for a distance of at least 150 feet, the white lights which motor vehicles are required to display by section seven of chapter 84, of the acts of 1909 shall, when said vehicle is in motion, throw sufficient light ahead to show any person, vehicle, or substantial object upon the roadway straight ahead of the motor vehicle for a distance of at least 150 feet. Any light thrown directly ahead or otherwise, shall be so arranged that no dazzling rays from it or from any reflector shall at any time be thrown at a distance of more than three and one-half feet above the ground on a level road at a distance of 50 feet or more ahead of said vehicle, and said light shall be sufficient to enable the operator of the motor vehicle to see any person, vehicle or substantial object upon the roadway or side thereof for a distance of at least 150 feet. The motor vehicle, ten feet ahead of said vehicle.

"This regulation shall take effect on and after the first day of January of the year 1916."

SUSPENSE AT CHICAGO WOMEN ENTHUSIASTIC WORKERS FOR PARADE

Special to The Sun

The republican convention opened today calm and determined, to name the winner. The progressive convention opened with a great noise, with shouting for Roosevelt and a Teddy chorus in the gallery staging through megaphones. There are Roosevelt marching songs, but it is impossible to determine whether they are entirely genuine or merely to gain advantage in the pending conference. Both conventions are out to win and they want to unite for that purpose. When Senator Smoot read a report of the conference the galleries made a demonstration at the name of Roosevelt, but delegates responded gingerly in comparison to the galleries. The committee conference will make something will result to unite the two factions; but it is useless to predict anything as the situation changes every minute. Weeks is sure of a big vote on the first ballot. After that it is entirely problematical for all candidates.

The feeling of suspense over the result of the conference on which so much now seems to depend, is most intense.

Nominating Speeches

Enthusiasm in both conventions broke loose when nominating speeches began and ex-President Taft's reception seemed to bespeak a disregard of Roosevelt's dislikes.

Gardner's Pet Joke

Congressman Gardner spoke at the noonday Roosevelt meeting at the Garfield theatre and kept the big crowd amused by the dig he gave the administration. "This country needs a president the man with the firmest grasp, the stoutest heart and clearest head," said he. Then the crowd shouted Roosevelt, just as Mr. Gardner intended they should. "They have a new dance in Washington," continued Mr. Gardner, "it is called the Wilson step. It is one step forward, two steps backwards, hesitate and sidestep," and again the crowd cheered. This dance joke has been handed about wherever Gardner has spoken and he seems so proud of it that he may get it copyrighted.

Suffrage Fight

The question of a suffrage plank has brought out in full force both the suffrage and anti-suffrage factions, and the leaders on both sides are here fighting with all their might, either for or against it, and using it as a big stick over the heads of presidential candidates and their managers.

Bryan Conspicuous

William Jennings Bryan is a conspicuous figure in the press section, where he is turning out syndicate letters at a price that makes the most of us feel like thirty cents. And many of us wondered just how gratified he must have felt when Senator Harding referred to President Wilson's foreign policies as "watchful waiting and wobbly warfare"—we recalled vividly those days not many months ago, when we of the press gallery stood in a semi-circle before Mr. Bryan as secretary of state before those same wobbly policies brought about his resignation.

At the Congress Hall

The lobby of the congress is a babel of tongues. But yesterday that great roar of voices was hushed into a tense silence by the big Glee club sent here by the Buckeye state to sing the praises of Senator Burton. In the midst of indescribable confusion the Glee club started to sing the "Star Spangled Banner"—on the instant every man stopped talking, and the sudden hush was positively startling, as the great mass of straggling, pushing, seething men stood still with uncovered heads. It was a dramatic incident that may not happen again during the convention, so spontaneous was it. When the song ended everyone cheered, waved their hats and shouted louder

THE PARADE FUND

The following subscriptions to the parade fund have been acknowledged by the fund treasurer, John F. Sawyer of the Union bank:

A. G. Cummock	20
A. G. Pollard	20
John Jacob Rogers	20
John H. Harrington	20
J. F. Corbett	10

The wonderful enthusiasm shown by the women is one of the pleasing features of Lowell's preparedness parade. They are right there with the pep and instead of trying to shirk work, as is often the case, they are looking for it. It is impossible to state at this time, even approximately, the number of women who will parade, but at a meeting of the women managers than ever, and the seething mass of men again began to circle and sway and struggle for a foothold, for to be "taken off your feet" is something more than a phrase at the headquarters of prominent candidates. And that Buckeye state Glee club sings in time shifts, so as to keep the songs going night and day without cessation.

Weeks is Strong

Senator Weeks' attitude on preparedness stands him in good stead with all factions. The more progressive men like his thorough-going Americanism, and are strongly inclined to support him. If opportunity offers, called by Miss Grace Cummock and held in Page's banquet hall this forenoon it was stated by Mrs. H. D. Pickering, who is managing the mill girls end of the affair, that at least 15 manufacturing establishments would be represented and she also gave out the glad news that the mill agents will supply a band. If it is possible to get one. The women were addressed by Thomas J. O'Donnell, chief of staff, who instructed them relative to marching. The chief marshal said he would be glad to answer any or all questions and he was very successful until somebody asked if it would be all right for the mill girls to wear bows in their hair instead of hats. He blushed a bit at this question and graciously acknowledged his defeat. He said it was not part of his duty to pass on the headgear of the gentler sex. The next question that he fell down on had to do with sashes. Some one of the charming women, and they were all very charming, asked how the sashes worn by the lady marshals

The old guard believe in his fairness to all and the preparedness men recognized his Annapolis training and advocacy of a big navy—and adequate defence long before he was mentioned for the presidency. Whether or not the fortunes of war will give Senator Weeks the nomination, Massachusetts has good reason to be proud of the estimation in which he is held by hundreds of delegates.

RICHARDS.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

Quarter of a century ago, the city council having passed an order for a $1000 Fourth of July celebration over the veto of Mayor Field, was getting into a state of preparedness for that celebration, the principal feature of which was a grand parade, in which the city fathers expected everybody would participate. But when they sent out notices to the different societies and clubs of the city, the word came back: "What's there in it?" for they assumed that as the city was running the show, and had $1000 to spend, the money should be passed around among the paraders. The Sun roundly criticized the men who wanted compensation for their service on this occasion, and compared the difficulty being experienced in getting out paraders for Fourth of July, with the big parades that had been held on St. Patrick's and St. Jean's days, in the same year. But when Fourth of July came around those who at first decided to parade had reconsidered their decision and a big demonstration was the result. Perhaps there was nothing to arouse the spirit of patriotism in those days when all the world was at peace, for it has ever taken some supreme emergency to get all the people aroused. Judging from the returns being made to the preparedness committee at city hall, patriotism is thoroughly aroused in Lowell at the present time.

"Peter H." Elected.
Says the old Sun:
"Peter H. Donohoe has been elected a director of the Old Lowell National bank to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Puffer."
Mr. Donohoe is still on the directorate and thus completes quarter of a century of service.

Had 900 Employees
Says the old Sun:
"The Lowell Machine shop now employed 900 hands, about the same as last year."

The "Big Shop," as it was popularly known in those days, now wears the official title of "Saco-Lowell shops," and is a branch of a big company of that name. Over 500 of its employees will be seen in line, on next Wednesday night, assisting in demonstrating preparedness, patriotism, and the fact that Lowell has some other big industries besides cotton mills.

The Circus in Town

Quarter of a century ago marked the first appearance of the circus with three rings and two platforms. The original wagon show, the earliest of circuses had one ring, and all its belongings were packed into vans and carried from town to town over the road. Then came the "monster three ring circus" with its "hippodrome track nearly half a mile round," of a few years prior to quarter of a century ago. Then came the big spectacular pageants in connection with the circus proper and finally quarter of a century ago, the two platforms were added. Barnum's circus came to Lowell in the latter part of June, quarter of a century ago, and presented a spectacular production of "Nero" as a headliner to the circus proper. The old Sun in describing the big show said: "If there is any criticism of it, it is that there is too much of it. It is entirely out of the question for an outlooker to see more than a third of all that is going on at the same time, for this year there are three rings and two platforms each alive with performers."
The old Sun's reporter, like the good old Robt. that he must have been, evidently attempted to get his money's worth, despite the fact that he got in on a pass, by attempting to see everything that went on at one time, probably hopelessly stretching the rubber in his neck and destroying the focus of his sight, unhappily ignorant of the fact that similar acts were being presented in the different side rings at the same time, and that all that was required of him was to select one ring and focus his eyes on it. There is not much difference between the circus ads. and acts of today and those of quarter of a century ago except of course the novelties that are presented from year to year. But even if they didn't provide anything particularly new, young and old would attend them just the same for who can resist the lure of the circus?

Where "Charlie" Marren Shone

Quarter of a century ago Charles L. Marren, of Gorham street, was a councilman from old ward three, the democratic stronghold which embraced "The Flats." Mr. Marren was in the council for several years and made a valuable member of the lower branch, and one thing he did that above all others, made him particularly "strong" was reported by the old Sun as follows:
"Councilman Charles L. Marren introduced an order for a half-holiday on Saturdays during the summer for the street, sewer and other city employees. Councilmen Marren, Turcotte, Boherty, Dolan, Gookin and others spoke in favor, and the order was adopted by a vote of 17 to 5."
That was the first year of the Saturday half-holiday for the city departments. Charlie was re-elected that fall.

The Press Club Outing

The Sun of quarter of a century ago reported the annual outing of the Press club as follows:
"The Press club held its annual outing at Tyngs Island, on Monday, as the guests of Messrs. Gage and Preddy, who now control the island. The party went up the river on Captain Treney's boat the 'May Queen,' and held a brief business meeting on board, at which several new members were admitted. The American orchestra furnished music during the ride. Upon arriving at the grove, a ball game was started between two teams captained by John H. Harrington of The Sun and Alfred W. Cook of the Citizen. The features of the game were the kicking of Captain Harrington, who was in fine form; the hitting of Tom Maguire, who made an abundance of base hits; and the fielding of Chaplin (not Charlie), who read a novel while playing the outfield. Foreman Billy Gilmore of The Sun, who played second base, plucked wild strawberries that grew in the vicinity of the base, but failed to pluck any of them, and Will Cogger got lost in the high grass of right field. Umpire Taylor was congratulated on coming out of it alive. After the game, supper was served, and at its conclusion President Harry E. Rice called to order, and on motion of Hugh F. Gilson a rising vote of thanks was given to the hosts of the occasion."

Highland Club Changed Plans

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:
"The Highland club contemplates building a new club house in Nichols street, that will cost between $20,000 and $25,000."
But subsequently the club found a much more desirable location in Princeton street and erected the present commodious club house, which will soon observe its quarter century anniversary.

Moved Into New Quarters

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:
"On Monday evening, the Association Catholicque moved into its new quarters to the west of the St. Jean Baptiste church. In opening the meeting President Choquette referred to the favorable auspices under which the society had entered its new quarters. Six were admitted to membership. The following named officers were elected to membership: President, E. H. Choquette; vice president, George Dion; recording secretary, Albert Pelletier; assistant secretary, T. Rock; corresponding secretary, Thomas J. Goyette; treasurer, E. J. Flinault; assistant, Thomas Caron; directors, E. Lenoue, J. Audette, E. Chaput, Librarian, E. Savard; sergeant-at-arms, W. Barrette. A prize of $10 was offered for the member bringing in the largest number of new members up to Jan. 1 next. It was voted to allow the ladies the exclusive use of the hall two evenings each week. The retiring treasurer, E. L. Denault, showed the society to be in good financial condition."

L'Association Catholicque soon outgrew its quarters beside the church, while the extension of Aiken street took away a portion of its building, and as a result its members got together and erected the present handsome club house at the head of Merrimack street.

Some Quarter Century Elections

Says The Sun of quarter of a century ago:
"The I.M.C.I. of Belvidere has elected

the following officers for the ensuing six months: President, Joseph Dallagher; vice president, Michael J. Quinn; recording secretary, Thomas F. Quinn; financial secretary, Joseph P. Cox; treasurer, Rev. John J. Dacey, O.M.I.; trustees, James Flood, Michael A. Lee, Dennis J. Morris; board of examiners, Felix McCaffrey, Daniel J. O'Brien, Jeremiah Leary; literary committee, James Grimes, Joseph P. Courtney and John E. Carroll."
Says the old Sun also:
"The Knights of St. Patrick met in the American hotel parlors and elected the following officers: Commander, Owen Cahill; vice commander, Peter Davey; secretary, David W. O'Brien, chaplain, Rev. John McKenna; treasurer, Andrew J. Devine; auditing committee, P. W. Brown, Daniel Redding, Bernard Molloy; executive committee, Michael Corbett, Joseph W. Purcell and John Boyle."

Matters Being Agitated

Two matters that were being agitated in the columns of The Sun just quarter of a century ago were a covered patrol wagon and a working girls home. The Central Labor union was very active in the movement which brought about the covered patrol wagons. All of the earliest patrol wagons in the different cities of the state were open vehicles, and one after the other they were abandoned for the covered vehicle in response to a popular demand.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

THE ROBIN'S NEW HOME

Once upon a time Mrs. Robin Redbreast flew up on a limb of a tree and said: "I am glad we are here at last, I am so tired I can't fly any longer." Mr. Robin Redbreast was flying around and fluttering his wings he was so excited, for he had made a nice new nest for Mrs. Robin and this was her first visit to it. They had been much later than the others in getting north, for just as the birds were ready to start Mrs. Robin had hurt her wing, and Mr. Robin would not leave her so they had come up alone.

The nest was in a big tree, one of the branches was quite near a house. Mrs. Robin didn't like this but Mr. Robin told her that no one lived in the house he was sure, for before he started to build he had looked in the windows but the blinds were all drawn and he had never seen smoke come out from the chimney. Mr. Robin brought her the biggest and nicest worms he could find.

One day Mrs. Robin called to her husband to come and see what was in the nest and there, peeping out from under her wing, were four of the cutest little robins you ever saw. Mr. Robin was so pleased that he began to twitter and twitter and in a few minutes all the birds in the neighborhood were coming to see these wonderful robins.

The next morning Mr. Robin flew off to get some breakfast for his family and in a few minutes came flying back with a nice fat worm, but, as he came near the house, he heard a lot of noise and there in the yard saw four little children all talking as fast as they could, and when he looked at the house there were the windows wide open and smoke coming out of the chimney.

What had happened to Mrs. Robin and her four little robins he wondered but when he flew to the nest they were safe and sound and very anxious for their breakfast.

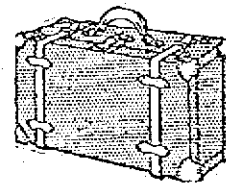

All day the birds were much excited and watched the house to see what was going on for they thought now they would have to move as their home was so near the house. That night just as the sun was setting and Mrs. Robin was getting her children ready for the night she heard a voice so close to her head that she almost jumped out of the nest saying: "Look at the robin's nest. You must be careful and not frighten the birds, won't you?" and the children all promised, so Mrs. Robin is glad to say.

ST. MICHAEL'S MISSION

Souls From Heaven

Again every available seat in St. Michael's church was filled last evening by the men of the parish, who listened with rapt attention to the practical instruction on the mysteries of the rosary by Fr. Mackin, O.P., and to the eloquent sermon which followed.

The sermon was preached by Fr. Noon, O. P., and dealt chiefly with the sin of scandal. Before touching upon the subject of his discourse, the reverend speaker congratulated the men on their zeal and perseverance. He complimented the young men, particularly on the good example given by them the past week. He begged them not to be selfish in their goodness and reminded them that even this eleventh hour is not too late to bring a friend or companion who has not yet begun to make the mission. The mission is a time of grace, a time when God lavishes His graces on those who will receive them. It is a time of mercy, a time of love and forgiveness, a time when the heart of the Savior pleads with the souls of men. Is it not a dreadful thing for a man to say to that loving heart: "I will not make the mission. I don't want Your graces." The time will come when the man who says this will find he does need God and His grace—that he cannot do without Him—he cannot get away from Him. The time will come when the day of mercy will give way to the night of despair—the day of love to the night of justice. "The night cometh when no man can work," says our Blessed Lord and again, "You will seek me and you will not find me, and you will die in your sins."

The Text

As the text of his sermon, Fr. Noon chose the words of Christ: "Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites, because you shut the kingdom of heaven against men, for you yourselves do not enter in, and those who are going in, you suffer not to enter."

One of the most sacred duties of a Christian is that of giving good example. A Catholic man or woman is bound by every law of God to lead before the world a pure, a blameless life—a life that is without the shadow of reproach. In the home, you fathers, as Christian gentlemen, as pure-minded Catholics men must give to your children an example worthy of emulation. To your neighbors you must be a model of uprightness, in the little world around you an influence for all that is pure and good and true. "So let your light shine before men that seeing you will glorify the Father who is in heaven."

Not only are you bound to give good example, but you must strenuously avoid every word or act that could induce or lead another weaker soul into sin. Our Divine Lord emphatically denounces the scandal-monger or the giver of bad example. By His precious blood He redeemed us, by innumerable miracles He proved His divinity, proved that He was the Son of God, the long expected Redeemer. Even when miracle after miracle was wrought, the scribes and Pharisees, who should have been the cause of their amazement, His benediction, their pride. They went out of their way to keep other souls from listening to His divine voice. They called Him a traitor, a blasphemer; they prevented simple souls from following in His footsteps. They shut the kingdom of heaven against men, for they themselves do not enter in, and those who are going in, they suffer not to enter.

lowing in His footsteps. They shut the kingdom of heaven against men, for they themselves do not enter in, and those who are going in, they suffer not to enter.

Scandal Defined
Scandal is one of the most terrible sins in the world. Now, just what is scandal or bad example? They are the same.

Any sinful word or deed that will lead another into sin is scandal. Any omission of duty that will cause others a like omission is also scandal. Now, scandal may be direct or indirect. One who by flattery or in any way causes or entices deliberately another to do wrong is giving direct scandal. Indirect scandal is given when one's action or omission is the cause of sin in another, but the act or omission was not intended for that purpose. A father who misses mass on Sunday has not the intention of making his children do wrong, yet he is committing the sin of scandal. Scandal, direct or indirect, is a mortal sin.

The sin of scandal is opposed to the greatest of all virtues, charity. "By this shall all men know ye are my disciples, that you love one another." Surely if we love our neighbor, we should help him to save his soul. By scandal we violate the charity we owe our neighbor, for by our bad example we help to ruin his immortal soul.

To take the life of another is a sin that calls to heaven for vengeance, but what is the life of the body compared to the life of the soul? What an awful crime it must be to be guilty of the death of a soul!

It may be said that no one is so wicked as to want to ruin another's soul. Yet there are so-called Catholics who lead others to sin, knowing full well that if their poor foolish dupes die in his sin, he will be lost forever. The man who teaches his friend how to defeat the ends of marriage, how to take his wife to the depths of hell and exclude from heaven the innocent souls who have no power to help themselves, is giving scandal. The day will come when these scandal-givers will hear from the Savior: "Woe to you, hypocrites, because you shut the kingdom against men." Then eternal justice will demand that you yourself will never enter in.

He gives scandal who makes another the companion of his guilt, who places on the road to ruin a soul for which Christ died. In the years that are to come, the world may condone his part in the crime. He may be re-called into society; he may reform. From his social position he may look down on his victim, scorned, despised, driven to ruin, despair, self-destruction. He may look into the depths of hell and see his victim, a soul condemned.

When Jesus comes as Judge, think you not he will say to that man "Woe to you, hypocrite! You posed as a Catholic—a follower of Christ, yet you shut from heaven this weaker soul. Eternal justice cries, 'You shall never enter in.'"

The man who teaches the younger men or innocent boys sins that destroy soul and body, is surely guilty of scandal. On the day of judgment he, too, will be held responsible, perhaps for souls near and dear to him.

The man who asks a young man or boy to take his first drink in guilt by scandal. The first drink given by an older hand has often been the first step to loss of self-respect, crime, despair.

Force of Example
Now, dear men, you are told to avoid the awful consequences of scandal. Perhaps you would not deliberately lead others into sin, but if your lives are not what they should be, if you are doing what you should not do, or not doing what you should do—if you are not living up to the teachings of your Catholic faith, you are giving scandal. Your good example would help others just as your bad example hurts them. Many so-called Catholics men, by their ill-disposed lives are the sole stumbling block to non-Catholics looking for the true faith. They point at these Catholics with the finger of scorn and say to themselves: "If these dishonest, impure, corrupt men, these grafters are Catholics, then I want nothing of Catholicity." Who is responsible for the loss of such souls? Think you, if not the unfaithful Catholics?

Then there is the father who, in the home, will curse and swear—who will drink before his children, who will stay from mass on Sunday, yet who will forbid his children to do any such things. Do you not know that children are more apt to do as you do, rather than as you tell them to do? A story will illustrate this point: I knew once a man who in prospering forgot the teaching of his good Catholic mother. The pressure of business, the demands of society, took all his time. He had no leisure for God, His church or His sacraments. He intended sometime in the future to retire and then he would see to these things. The man had an excellent Catholic wife and four sons whom he wished to train to a perfect manhood. He gave them every advantage, even a Catholic college and university education, and he looked to them to become men of whom he would feel proud in his later years. Bitter disappointment was his lot, however. His own example was more powerful than any other influence in their lives. They, like himself, grew careless in their religious duties, later they joined forbidden societies and later still, became out and out renegades. Who was to blame? In sorrow that father repented his bad example when it was too late. When he stands before his God in judgment, he will have to answer for the sinful lives of his sons as well as for his own.

You Catholic fathers, teaching by word rather than by example, will likewise have to answer for the souls of your children. Of your evil, worldly lives you will have to give the strictest account on the last day. Our loving Savior, when He was on earth, was ever ready to show compassion to the sinner. He pardoned

He had no leisure for God, His church or His sacraments. He intended sometime in the future to retire and then he would see to these things. The man had an excellent Catholic wife and four sons whom he wished to train to a perfect manhood. He gave them every advantage, even a Catholic college and university education, and he looked to them to become men of whom he would feel proud in his later years. Bitter disappointment was his lot, however. His own example was more powerful than any other influence in their lives. They, like himself, grew careless in their religious duties, later they joined forbidden societies and later still, became out and out renegades. Who was to blame? In sorrow that father repented his bad example when it was too late. When he stands before his God in judgment, he will have to answer for the sinful lives of his sons as well as for his own.

You Catholic fathers, teaching by word rather than by example, will likewise have to answer for the souls of your children. Of your evil, worldly lives you will have to give the strictest account on the last day. Our loving Savior, when He was on earth, was ever ready to show compassion to the sinner. He pardoned

the disloyalty of Peter in his denial; he was merciful to the woman taken in sin; he prayed for his enemies who nailed Him to the cross; but for the giver of scandal, he had nothing but words of condemnation. Search every record of His teachings and we find not a word of sympathy or kindness for the scandal-giver. Plainly, bluntly, emphatically, He tells them the sin of scandal will receive its punishment. As long as men remain human, there will be scandal. "But woe to him by whom that scandal cometh." Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees! Hypocrites! Because you shut the kingdom of heaven against men, you yourselves do not enter in. When Jesus uses the word "woe" He means damnation.

His care and solicitude for the young and innocent is manifested when He spoke of the protection of their guardian angels, who stand over before the face of God to rescue those who would snatch from His service these tender souls. Of those who give bad example to these the Savior said: "He who scandalizes one of these little ones, it were better that a millstone be tied around his neck, and he be drowned in the depths of the sea!" Only on one other occasion did our Lord pronounce so hard a sentence and that was when he said of the traitor Judas: "It were better he had never been born." Scandal-giver and traitor! Better they had never been born!

Scandal Multiplies Sinners
In the giving of scandal, there is an element that should bring home to you its evil. It does not do with the person responsible for it, but lives on through the ages. For instance: Here is a man who remains from mass habitually. "But I make my children go," he will say. How long, think you, will they go? Just as long as they are under your control. After that they will do as you are doing. They will follow your example. Their sins are laid at your door. In their dealings with their children, they act as you did, perhaps, and you are responsible for your grandchildren and your great-grandchildren. Their sin began with you and until Gabriel comes to call your soul to judgment, you, in your descendants, will be committing the sin for which your indifference is responsible. Like the little ball of snow, it gathers as it goes, and who knows the millions of souls for whom one careless father has to account because of committing one sin or the omission of one duty.

A young man, we say, teaches a companion or induces him to commit sin. That companion induces others and they in turn others, till hundreds of souls have been stained because of that one. Scandal is a crime, the consequences of which cannot be reckoned until the day of judgment.

It was this thought that filled with terror the mind of the dying Berengarius, who at one time denied the doctrine of the Real Presence. Having repented, he endeavored to make all the reparation in his power, but when death drew near he exclaimed: "I am to appear before the judgment seat of Christ. I hope for pardon for the sins I have committed, but for the sins I made others commit, I have great fear I may be lost."

One of the saddest scenes I ever witnessed bears out this thought. It was the death-bed of a man, who, in youth, was responsible for the sin of one who, because of her crime, became an outcast, lost in the great ocean of the world. The man repented of the sin of the youth and for over fifty years did penance for it. He became a model of everything good and holy, yet he never forgot. As death approached he asked himself again and again "Where is she whom I led conventions reassembled at the Coliseum and the Auditorium here today facing a situation unprecedented in recent American political party history. The progressives met at 10 o'clock and the republicans at 11 o'clock (Central time).

Uncertainty as to the murky weather that has hung over Chicago for three days prevailed, and all eyes were strained to catch the first possible clearing of the political clouds.

No man was able to predict on a basis of fact what the next 24 hours might bring forth, whether it would be harmony and a reunited republican party or disagreement and dual nominations.

Midnight Conference

The day was ushered in by a midnight conference that will become historic of "peace" committees from the progressive and republican conventions which took place at the Chicago club. The conference adjourned before 1 o'clock without definite results. It was said, and details of its deliberations were withheld.

The republican committee was composed of Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman; former Senator W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, Senator Borah of Idaho, Nicholas Murray Butler of New York and A. R. Johnson of Ohio.

The progressive committee had Geo. W. Perkins of New York for chairman and the other members were Governor Johnson of California, Horace B. Wilkinson of New York, Charles J. Bonaparte of Maryland, and John M. Parker of New Orleans.

"peace" committee took part in the management of the republican convention of 1912 which brought the progressive party into being. Crane, Smoot and Butler were determined advocates of methods to prevent the nomination of Roosevelt then. Johnson, then in congress, supported them. Borah was for Roosevelt but refused to leave the republican party. When Vice President Sherman died Butler was selected as the running mate for President Taft. Governor Johnson was candidate for vice president with Roosevelt on the 1912 progressive ticket. Many times has denounced with great vigor the action in 1912 of the men who last night sat across from him at the council table.

Bonaparte constantly has been for Col. Roosevelt and Roosevelt policies. Parker organized the progressive party in Louisiana. Perkins and Wilkinson were with Roosevelt in 1912. Perkins has been particularly prominent in the councils of the progressive party and one of its leaders.

For more than two hours the conferees discussed points at issue and took up details of the peace plans projected earlier in the day by the two conventions when the conference committees on harmony had been appointed. When adjournment came it was announced that "we report progress" and the statement was made that the members would not get together again until after the sessions of the conventions today. They prepared reports for their respective conventions. There was considerable doubt as to just how these reports would be received and whether leaders in the two conventions could hold the body of delegates under control while further harmony deliberations were being held.

Nomination Speeches Today

"It is understood," said Senator Borah after the conference, "that while nominating speeches will be made in each convention today no nominations will be made."

"And," said another member of the committee, "we will resume negotiations in the afternoon or evening." The situation which combine to make it so delicate as to invite the unexpected and the uncertain. Leaders of both parties sat up most of the night discussing numerous possibilities that might develop and making plans to handle the situation, should efforts be made to stampede either convention for a particular candidate or against further delay in making nominations.

Expect Message From T. R.

Many of the progressives hoped that Col. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay would send a message to the harmony conferees or to the progressive convention that would have a bearing on the situation.

The men advocating the nomination by the republican convention of Justice Charles E. Hughes of the supreme court declared this morning that nothing had occurred to weaken their position. They said they believed their candidate could be nominated today and were prepared to press for action on a nomination without delay.

Managers for the various "favorite son" candidates insisted the harmony conference program had greatly improved the chances for their men, and predicted early today that neither the name of Hughes nor of Roosevelt would appear upon the republican ticket.

But in the absence of any definite report of what happened at the "peace" conference not many people were sanguine of definite results. Many expressed the opinion that the two conventions would go ahead regardless of each other, make their nominations and adjourn.

After giving the names of the conferees on both sides the report of the republican-progressive harmony committee to be presented to both conventions today will recite that they had a full and frank conference last night which resulted in an agreement that there should be united action on the part of the two parties if possible of attainment; that the policies and future of the country for the next few years would depend upon their getting together and uniting to rescue the country from the present democratic domination.

Bull Moose For T. R.

The report to the republican convention will then recite the fact that the progressives presented the name of Col. Roosevelt as the proper man for selection as the presidential candidate, expressing the opinion that on account of his personal following and hold up on the people, as well as because of his mastery of the questions of the day, he was the best fitted of all men mentioned by either party to bear the standard of the combined organizations.

While no mention is made of the fact that another conference had been virtually agreed upon by the conferees, it is perfectly understood that it is their plan to get together again after two or three ballots have been cast by the republican convention. The representatives of the republican convention did not make any counter suggestion as to a candidate, but on the contrary some of them stated that they would be entirely willing to accept Mr. Roosevelt if the republican convention could be brought to that conclusion, which they said they did not believe could be done.

A party of women were the first visitors to arrive when the doors were opened at 9:30 o'clock today. The early contingent of ticket holders, however, was the smallest since the convention opened.

Although the rain had ceased, the vast hall was still heavy with dampness.

BALLOTING LATE TODAY

Chairman Harding Expects to Get to Balloting by Four O'Clock This Afternoon

CHICAGO, June 9.—Chairman Harding of the republican convention said today that the regular procedure when the session was called to order and that balloting probably would be reached at least by 4 o'clock this afternoon.

"The first business of the day," said the chairman, "will be the presentation of the names of candidates, followed by seconding speeches. I think we ought to get to balloting by four o'clock, but I can't guarantee that."

The chairman said he knew nothing about the report of the republican members of the peace conference committee, "but," he said, "that report is privileged and can be submitted at any time."

ON IMPURE MILK

Dr. Landis Tells of its Influence on the Death Rate

CINCINNATI, June 9.—In an address before the American Association of Milk Inspectors today, Dr. J. H. Landis of Cincinnati, discussing "Pure Milk—Its Influence on a Municipality's General Death Rate," devoted himself chiefly to presenting facts tending to show that the reduction in the death rate of a municipality brought about by the purification of its milk supply is practically the same as that caused by its change from a polluted to a pure water supply. In Cincinnati, he said, the average yearly saving of lives by compelling a pure milk supply was 453. Wholesale assassination of Cincinnati's infant population, he said, had been carried on for years, when the milk industry was largely in the hands of dairymen, who fed their cows almost exclusively on distillery slop. Cows were chained with their noses in a stop trough from the time they were received in the farm until they passed into the hands of the butcher. The dairy barns were dark and reeking with liquid manure. The cows were plastered with this material, and the milk product had a generous supply when it reached the consuming public. What had been accomplished in changing these conditions had been chiefly made possible by employing on full time as health officers competent specialists under a non-partisan board of health.

The Cincinnati plan eliminated milk inspection by a physician on part time and placed it in the hands of a graduate in veterinary medicine on full time. R. B. Blume, D.V.S., an employee of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, was chosen, and to his industry, honesty and courage the results obtained are largely due.

One of the Cincinnati regulations gives the health officer the authority to dump milk that shows visible sediment in the container. This regulation was rigidly enforced against those who persistently fought all attempts at improvement. Milk permits were revoked, and in numerous instances prosecution in police court drew fines ranging from twenty-five to four hundred dollars. In a few instances, perfectly respectable gentlemen had opportunities in the quiet of the city jail to meditate on the uncertainties of a milk producer's career. Formerly prosecution meant a little temporary, cheap notoriety, with a tinge of martyrdom thrown in; now, if a man is arrested for some other gross violation of the regulations, he loses caste in his community and is classified as a cheap crook or a plain "bonehead."

Compelling proprietors of restaurants, saloons, hotels, etc., to serve milk to customers in the original sealed package met with the unqualified approval of the public.

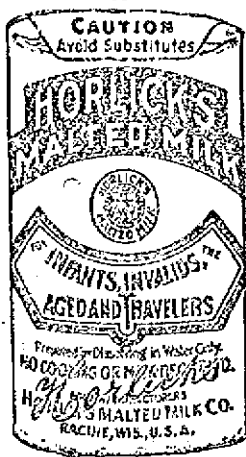

Opposition to pasteurization was pronounced at first, but at the present time if anyone desired to start a riot backed exclusively by the milk industry, the one sure way would be to try to eliminate pasteurization in Cincinnati. Through pasteurization, the dealers have practically eliminated all waste and have completely escaped outbreaks of milk borne infection, with attendant loss of trade. In over a year, not one case of typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, or septic sore throat has been traced to an infected dairy or to an ice cream manufactory.

No chances were taken on having pasteurization hung up indefinitely in the courts of Ohio. Offenses such as dirty bottles and visible sediment in milk can be seen by court officers and appeal to them. When those opposed to pasteurization slipped up on either of these regulations, instead of receiving a warning, they faced an arraignment. Fines and lawyers' fees constituted an appeal to reason that quickly convinced them of the soundness of the strategy. At present every drop of milk on the Cincinnati market, with the exception of that produced under the supervision of the milk commission of the Academy of Medicine, is pasteurized, and we believe that time will demonstrate that pasteurization will have a marked influence on the incidence of tuberculosis.

In conclusion, Dr. Landis said: "With wooden floors in barns rapidly being replaced by concrete floors and feeding troughs, and with all barns receiving adequate light and air, the type of farmer resembling the man with the hoe has disappeared. Drinking milk in Cincinnati has ceased to be an extraordinary occupation, and the municipal supply is no longer like a lottery

UNEARTHING OF THEIR REMAINS ONE OF THE ROMANCES OF THE LAST 75 YEARS

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The strong offensive developed recently by Russian forces operating against the desperately resisting Turks northwest of Bagdad has awakened a world-wide interest in the whole region of Mesopotamia and particularly in the ruins of the great city of Nineveh, lying just across the Tigris from Mosul and a probable battlefield during the Mesopotamian assault upon this Moslem key to the upper valley of the historic river. Concerning the ancient capital of Assyria and the manner in which its buried secrets have been brought to light within very recent times, Albert T. Cary, professor of Assyriology and Babylonian literature at Yale university, has sent a communication to the National Geographic society, part of which was released today from the city's Washington headquarters, as a war geography bulletin. Prof. Cary writes:

"One of the romances of the last 75 years has been the unearthing of the remains of forgotten empires and the decipherment of their ancient records. A little over a half a century ago what was known concerning the ancient peoples of the nearer east, besides that which is contained in the Old Testament, could be written in a very brief form.

"Israel was then regarded as one of the great nations of antiquity. Abraham belonged to the dawn of civilization. The references to other peoples in the Old Testament had little meaning, for few appreciated the fact that the history of many pre-Israelitish nations had practically faded from the knowledge of man. The pick and spade of the explorer, however, and the patient toil of the decipherer have thrown a flood of light upon the situation; ruin hills of the past have been opened up to the light of day, out of which emerge marvelous revelations in the form of written records and other remains.

Some Remarkable Documents

"These, although written in language and scripts the very existence of which was unknown to man for 2000 years or more, are now forced to reveal their story of religion, politics, science and life of not a few of the ancient and forgotten peoples.

"These researches have resulted in astounding revelations. Israel, instead of being one of the foremost nations of antiquity, is now found to have been a small power which had thrived in the late pre-Christian centuries, and had occupied a comparatively insignificant position among the great nations of the age. Instead of the patriarch Abraham belonging to the beginning of time, it is now found that he occupied a middle chapter in the history of mankind."

Prof. Cary tells of some remarkable documents found in the ruins of Nineveh's "congressional library," where manuscripts were catalogued and arranged according to subject matter, much as in our libraries of today. One clay tablet discloses the fact that "the sweetest story ever told" was told with the same naive fervor 5000 years ago as it is today. It is a lover's plaint, thus expressed: "To Bibe, thus says Gilmil Marduk: may the gods Shamash and Marduk permit thee to live forever for my sake. I write to inquire concerning thy health. Tell me how thou art. I went to Babylon, but did not see thee. I was greatly disappointed. Send the reason for thy leaving, that I may be happy. Do come in the month of Marchesvan. Keep well always for my sake."

Whether Bibe received this missive from her solicitous Gilmil is not known, but she should have, for there was an elaborate post system in that day and it is known that there were regular despatches between some of the prin-capital cities. Among the large amount of material unearthed have been many shipping tags made of clay. These have upon them the name and address of the party to whom the merchandise was sent.

Nineveh's King a Brute

If all the atrocities charged made against the various belligerents during the present world war were true and were multiplied a hundred fold they would not reach the limits of cruelty attained by the famous king of Nineveh, Ashur-nasirpal III., whose own accounts of his refinement of the art of torture have been unearthed recently beneath the very plain where Turk and Muscovite are now battling for possession of the cradleland of civilization. This king wrote concerning one of his captives:

"To the city of Tela I approached. The city was very strong; three fortresses-walls surrounded it. The inhabitants trusted to their strong walls and their numerous army; they did not come down or embrace my feet. With battle and slaughter I attacked the city and captured it. Three thousand of their fighting men I slew with the sword; their spoil, their goods, their oxen and their sheep I carried away; many captives I burned alive. I captured many of their soldiers alive; I cut off the hands and feet of some; of others I cut off the noses, the ears and the fingers; I put out the eyes of many soldiers. I built up a pyramid of the living and a pyramid of heads. On high I hung up their heads on trees in the neighborhood of the city. Their young men and maidens I burned with fire. The city I overthrew and dug it up, and burned it with fire; I annihilated it."

A correspondent of the Geographic society adds:

"The imagination is staggered at the very thought of that pyramid of the living—human beings piled one upon another suffocating, strangling, perishing slowly and miserably before that other pyramid of their own fortunate friends to whom death had come swiftly, and at the thought of that monster who not only did this, but gloried in it, and caused the story of his brutality to be written indelibly upon the walls of his house."

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL

PALMER DAY HELD AND STUDENTS RECEIVED CERTIFICATES FOR EXCELLENCE IN PENMANSHIP

The State Normal school held a Palmer day on Wednesday, June 7, 1916. Mr. A. N. Palmer, the originator of the Palmer Method of Penmanship, visited the Normal school on Wednesday. It was a special occasion on which Palmer teachers' certificates were presented to 31 normal pupils and Palmer diplomas to 10 Barrett school girls.

The exercise began with a recitation written and proclaimed by Miss Anna Murray of Woburn on "Johnny on Palmer Writing."

Mr. Riley, the penmanship teacher, asked his pupils to write several of the Palmer exercises as samples for Mr. Palmer. The latter gave a very interesting address. He illustrated every point very impressively. He gave a short history of his acquaintance with writing from boyhood up to the present. He told of the importance of writing in all walks of life.

Mr. Palmer then presented teachers' certificates to 31 seniors, nine juniors, one special student, and one third-year student.

The Lowell seniors were: Gertrude Cluff, Vera Gould, Irene White, Madeline Sullivan, Helen Castles, Grace Reed, Blanche Spalding, Ruth Tingley, Mary Daley, Genevieve Callahan, Katherine McCoy, Gertrude Lyons, Harriet McAloon, Katherine Alahavan, Elizabeth Fishavan, Alice Dineen, Gertrude O'Brien, Genevieve Cummings, Mary Farrell, Mary Gray, Marie Hassett, Agnes Linton, Eugenie Le Moine, Stella Maloney, Dorothy Driscoll, Katherine Gallagher, Nellie Horne, Grace McMahon, Josephine Lynch, Margaret Murphy, Louise Muldoon, Gertrude Ready, Dorothy Reardon, Anna Ryan, Mary Maguire.

Lowell juniors—Corinne Oullette, Mary McKeon. The special student was Mr. Frank Regan and the third year student was Miss Minnie Condon.

The other recipients of certificates are non-residents.

ACADEMY PRINCIPAL RESIGNS SUTTONS RIVER, Vt., June 9.—Students of Vermont academy, a Baptist institution, were surprised yesterday when Rev. Dr. George B. Lawson announced his retirement as principal to take effect after commencement, which begins Saturday.

He has been principal of the academy since 1908. It is said that in certain student circles there have been objections to Dr. Lawson continuing. Last evening Dr. Lawson admitted he had resigned but refused to give the reason.

It is known that several of the teaching staff have been looking for positions. The enrollment at the school has fallen off in recent years, but this is attributed by Dr. Lawson's friends to the fact that the academy has ceased to be educational.

PROVIDENCE, June 9.—Mary Dunn was awarded $1400 last night by a jury in the superior court in her $1000 breach of promise suit against Col. John J. Gallagher, a prominent business man.

In cross-examination of Col. Gallagher by Mr. Walsh yesterday, the latter tried to draw from the defendant an admission that when Miss Dunn wore a solitary diamond ring, which he had given her, on the ring finger of her left hand, he knew she was engaged to him. DRINK PLENTY OF WATER

Take plenty of exercise and drink plenty of water if your skin is colorless. To say that a long walk and drinking three pints of water will make any woman beautiful would be an exaggeration, but to promise that it will be a wonderful aid to the increasing of good looks is a perfectly true statement. Water properly taken will flush the system, carrying with it all the impurities which work havoc with the complexion.

Drink the water between meals, a glass at a time, sipping it slowly. As this fact water cool, not iced, as this fact reduces the temperature of the stomach to such an extent that digestion is impaired. If you have an absolutely colorless skin which no amount of exercise or water drinking will tinge with color, you may wish to resort to the use of a harmless rouge.

Our grandmothers used best rouge, which is absolutely harmless and can be made easily. Take a red beet and wash and dry it thoroughly. Then press it against a grater until all the juice is extracted. The liquid is then mixed with rice powder, or starch until the desired color is obtained. Cover the mixture with a cloth to keep out the dust, and set it in the sun to dry. A few drops of oil of lavender or rose worked into the powder will make it adhere to the skin better, but if this is added the rouge will require a thorough sifting through muslin to make it smooth.

Another harmless rouge is made as follows: Carmine, 1-4 dram; sweet almond oil, 1-3 dram; powder of magnesia, 1 ounce. To mix this properly, blend the carmine and magnesia and then slowly work in the oil. Force this preparation through coarse muslin several times, pressing out the lumps. It will be in powder form.

PROGRESSIVE PLATFORM

For Americanism, Preparedness,
Woman Suffrage and Protection
—Mexican Policy

CHICAGO, June 9.—The text of the progressive platform as laid before the national convention yesterday, follows:

"This is the year of decision of the nation's future. As we now decide, we shall go forward in righteousness and power, or backward in degradation and weakness.

"Of necessity, we deal now with the foundations of our national life. We are facing elemental facts of forces, of right and wrong, of extreme national peril. Our present choice of paths will be irrevocable. The tradition of isolation has been ended. The United States is now part of a world system of civilization. We stand or fall as we prepare now to take our

A Suggestion About Going to California

There is only one best way to get to California, and that without extra expense or any inconvenience. If you travel on the BURLINGTON (C. & N. Y. R.) you go by way of Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, the wonderful Royal Gorge and Salt Lake City—all in daylight.

You then see California—Yosemite National Park, the highest trees in the world, the gigantic mountains, the famous beaches, and all the other points of interest, and then if you wish, you can take one of those magnificent new Great Northern Pacific Steamships—the finest on the Pacific—from San Francisco up to Portland, Oregon.

On your way back East, you can stop at one of the great National Parks—Glacier, Yellowstone or Rocky Mountain.

Let us here just to help you plan your Western trip. There is no expense to you if you make use of me. Tell me the amount of time you have to spend in the West, and when you want to go, and I will plan a trip specially fitted to your needs. I will also send, without charge, such pictures, maps and printed matter as will be an aid to you in your planning. Drop me a postal with your address if you cannot come in.

part in peace or war and hold our own therein.

"As members of an international community we are subject to certain basic duties:

"To secure the rights and equal treatment of our citizens, native or naturalized, on land and sea, without regard to race, creed or nativity;

"To guard the honor and uphold the just influence of our nation;

"To maintain the integrity of international law.

"These are the corner stones of civilization. We must be strong to defend them.

"The present war shows that it is the supreme duty of civilization to create conditions which will make peace permanent. Our country must be able and ready to take its part in that work. The peace which we desire for our country is not the peace of submission and cowardice, but the peace of justice. War and its evils will not be done away with by suffering injustice to ourselves or others, nor by pledging ourselves to drastic action for international right if we do not prepare the forces which would sustain such action. We can perform our rightful part in promoting permanent international peace only by a willingness and a prepared ability to defend our own rights and the rights of other nations.

Higher Things Than Peace

"We earnestly desire to keep the peace, but there are higher things which we must keep if we would keep the faith as Washington and Lincoln kept it. Peace at the price of submission and cowardice is not desirable, nor is it the peace of justice which alone would make it permanent.

"Supine submission to the invasion of our rights, or indifference to the wrongs of weaker nations, will not long maintain peace, nor will mere threat of action enforce our rights under international law. There must be an unflinching determination and a personal ability to defend our rights and to fulfill our international obligations. In such a readiness lies the sure safeguard of both national honor and continued peace.

"Failure to deal firmly and promptly with the menace of Mexican disorders has brought conditions worse than warfare and has weakened our national self-respect. Every resource of government should forthwith be used to end these conditions and protect from outrage the lives, honor and property of American men and women in Mexico.

"Whatever our country can legitimately do to attain peace for war-stricken Europe, and to aid in the procurement of equal rights without discrimination because of race or creed to all men in all lands, should be done.

Provision For Defense

"Adequate provision for the common defense has become the task of foremost national concern. "Beneath the structure of military and economic strength there must be a unified spirit of this cosmopolitan people, a deep loyalty and undivided allegiance to America, the land which has welcomed us and our immigrant forefathers.

"Back of any adequate national preparedness in arms or in industry must remain the democratic soul of an undivided people, determined to keep America's great heritage and traditions unimpaired in first place. American problems must be faced and solved solely in the light of American ideals. American political action must be taken in the service of American ends.

"Unwavering patriotism and unfaltering fidelity to America is the only spirit which should animate our citizens.

"If in this melting pot of a hundred nations the children of any fail to find our common destiny worthy of common devotion and defense we shall sustain irreparable loss of national character.

"In this spirit of Americanism, action must be taken for the common defense. We must be ready in spirit, arms and industry. Preparation in arms requires:

"A navy restored to at least second rank in battle efficiency.

"A regular army of 200,000 men, fully armed and trained, as a first line of land defense.

"A system of military training adequate to organize, with promptness, behind that first line of the army and navy, a citizen soldiery, supplied, armed and controlled by the national government.

Military Training

"In our democracy every male citizen is charged with the duty of defending his country. This duty is not new. It has existed from the foundation of the government. Under modern conditions it cannot be performed without military training; service without training means slaughter and disaster. As the nation has always recognized and exercised the right to enforce compulsory military service in time of war, so should there be universal military training for that service during times of peace.

"We believe in preparedness for defense, but never for aggression. We must not sacrifice the lives of men for the glory of gain of military conquest. And we believe that the women of the country who share with the men the burdens of government in times of peace and make equal sacrifice in time of war, should be given the full political rights of suffrage, either by state or national action.

"Arms alone cannot maintain a nation. Of far greater permanent importance must stand a national industry, efficient for the general welfare, a prosperity justly distributed, a national life organized in all points for national ends. Four years ago this party was born of a nation's awakened sense of these fundamental truths. In the platform then adopted we set forth our position on public questions. We here reaffirm the declarations there made on national issues.

As to High Cost of Living

"A nation to survive must stand for the principles of social and industrial justice. We have no right to expect continued loyalty from an oppressed class.

"We must remove the artificial causes of the high cost of living; prevent the exploitation of men, women and children in industry by extension of the Workmen's Compensation law to the full limit permitted under the constitution, and by a thoroughgoing Child Labor law; protect the wage-earner; and by a properly regulated system of rural credits encourage the farmer and give to the landless man opportunity to acquire land. A country must be worth living in to be worth fighting for.

"To make possible social justice, to maintain our position in peace, and war we must insure business and industrial prosperity. This can be done:

"By a regulation of industry aimed at promoting its growth and prosperity, and a just distribution of its returns and a healthy expansion of foreign trade.

"By a conservation and development of our national resources for the good of all;

"By the re-establishment of our merchant marine;

"By the development of a system of interstate national highways;

"By making a new standard of governmental efficiency through a complete civil service system, a national budget and the destruction of 'pork barrel' legislation;

"By the creation of a permanent, expert tariff commission, with a view of intelligently and scientifically adjusting the tariff so as to build up, rather than destroy, American industry.

"The protective system is essential to our national prosperity. Tremendous new pressures will be brought on our industries after the war by this highly mobilized production of Europe. At all times, conditions of competition must be equalized between our own and foreign countries. We can only get the protection we need through the use of exact and complete knowledge, unaffected by prejudice or politics. We can secure that knowledge at all times and when needed only through such a commission.

Industrial Issues

"The industrial issues are chiefly national. The present and certain future make it imperative that the regulation and promotion of industry, and especially of transportation and foreign trade be national, not local. Only federal power can work justice to capital and labor throughout the nation. Only national authority can mobilize industry for defense as the nation's need demands it.

"We have set forth in this platform plain essentials of national existence. They are not new in principle. Most men agree with them. Any man may propose them. The urgent and immediate need is for their performance. We have had ample experience with the promise; with words and the bitter taste of words retracted.

"We must choose a man who, not alone by words, but by past deeds, gives guarantee that he can and will make these things good. The issue is one of men. In the midst of world changes unparalleled in history we cannot forecast the problems which will confront our government during the war and at its end. We therefore need as president a leader who knows the nation.

"If we continue longer to stand for words as above deeds, for flattery as above facts, we shall receive and merit the fate that surely awaits the man or people who do not face the truth.

"We will meet and work with any man or party who sees the nation's need and puts forward a leader fit to meet it. We will accept no less in plan or in the man, and we solemnly charge upon any who place partisan politics above country the responsibility for a nation's future, sacrificed to self-interest and spoils."

CAPT. L. G. HUNTON

Farewell Dinner and Presentation at Armory—Drill on Common

Capt. Lewis G. Hunton of this city, head of the commissary department of the Sixth regiment, M.V.M., who has severed his connections with the National Guard after a quarter century service, was tendered a farewell dinner by his fellow members of the militia at the armory last evening. The event was attended by over 400 men and it proved one of the best social gatherings at the local armory for a long time. As a token of esteem those present presented the hero of the evening a set of gold cuff links and a purse of gold.

Capt. Hunton enlisted in the National Guard on Feb. 12, 1891 as a member of Co. G. He was a private, corporal and sergeant and on May 3, 1895 he was made regimental commissary. He was advanced to captain in 1905, and has the distinction of being one of the three officers who were officers of the Sixth regiment during the Spanish-American war.

Early last evening, the Second Battalion held a drill in the South common under the command of Major Colby T. Kittredge and later they repaired to the armory, where a bountiful dinner was served. Major Kittredge introduced as toastmaster Arthur F. Salmon. Among those who addressed the gathering were: Gen. Gardiner W. Pearson, Col. Warren E. Sweetser, Major Charles A. Storer, Commander J. H. Caverly of Post 155, G.A.R.; James O'Sullivan, John P. Linnahan of Lynn, deputy commander of the Spanish war veterans, Capt. Philip L. Schuyler of Concord, Lieut. George Prescott of Company I, Concord, Capt. Harold G. Patton, Eight regiment, Representative Victor Jewett and Lawrence Cummings.

The presentation of the gift to Capt. Hunton was made by Rep. Victor P. Jewett and the recipient of the gift responded in fitting terms. A musical program followed and the meeting closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the audience.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

A well attended supper and smoke talk was held Wednesday night by Ladd & Whitney, Post 155, G.A.R. The supper was held during the early part of the evening after which a business meeting was held and this was followed by the smoke talk and entertainment. Invitations from Mary Smith tent, Daughters of Veterans to a flag service in Post 120 G.A.R. hall, June 9, and from the J. A. Garfield Relief Corps, to attend memorial service in memory of the unknown dead in French, Sunday afternoon, June 11 at 3 o'clock and also to their flag day service on the evening of June 15, were all accepted. Votes of thanks were extended to those who served the collation on the morning of Memorial day; to those who so generously gave the use of their automobiles; to Capt. Terry whose untiring zeal contributed to lighten the service of the day; to the women of the various organizations who contributed food and labor; to those who assisted at the cemeteries and to all who in any way helped make the duties of the veterans lighter. Under the good of the order, one of the comrades gave a very dramatic and tragic account of "a night in Boston" which called forth very interesting and amusing remarks from many of the comrades present.

Knight of Columbus

An interesting meeting of the members of Lowell council, Knights of Columbus, was held last night at their quarters in Associate building. The meeting was presided over by Grand Knight Joseph Roarke and considerable business was transacted. The first degree was conferred upon a large class, and the program for the preparedness parade was outlined as follows: Members will meet at their quarters at 7:30 o'clock and, headed by the Lawrence brass band, will march in a body to the scene of formation, where they will be assigned to their place in line. At the conclusion of the parade luncheon will be served in the rooms of the organization. Grand Knight Roarke urged the members to be numerous in line.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., June 9.—The strike of the Pacific coast longshoremen is ended. Approximately 8000 men who walked out June 1 in

EXPORTS AND IMPORTS

BIG INCREASE—EXPORTS IN APRIL $899,000,000. THE IMPORTS WERE $217,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 9.—Exports of the United States in April were $899,000,000 and imports $217,000,000, as compared with exports in April, 1915, of $241,000,000 and imports of $160,000,000, the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce announced today.

MAN'S OWN POISON CAUSES RHEUMATISM, SAYS LONDON DR.

Ridicules Idea of Uric Acid and Meat Diet as Causes for Arthritis—Smashes Many Foolish Fallacies

"Man poisons himself by the absorption of certain substances that should be eliminated—this is the cause of so much rheumatism, according to Dr. Lane, a London physician." So said W. A. Varney, He continued:

W. A. VARNEY

"Many pet theories about rheumatism of the joints, and I mean chronic arthritis, have been smashed during the past few years. The old idea of meat causing rheumatism is ridiculous, think of the large number of vegetarians that suffer from rheumatism—these people never eat meat. I know quite a number that suffered from arthritis and had been on a meat free diet for a long time—so much so that they became weak and did not have sufficient strength to fight the disease. Just as soon as they began to eat meat once a day they began to improve and with the help of Var-ne-sis were well in a short time."

The old idea of uric acid has been exploded as uric acid is perfectly normal to every human being—it is the end product of digestion and at one time almost every ill was ascribed to it. Experiments have proven that many people have a tremendous excess of uric acid and never have a pain or ache. While rheumatism has no more than the average according to exercise, etc.

Great harm has been done by the ordinary rheumatic medicines in that they not only disturb the stomach but often fail to relieve the pain or contain something that relieves the pain for the time being and the disease is as bad if not worse after taking such medicine.

There are hundreds of preparations on the market but I do not remember of ever seeing anything about them taking care of rheumatism of the joints after the patient has had the disease a few years.

Var-ne-sis is the one remedy that most all rheumatics take after they try about everything else. No claim is made that a bottle or two will cure the disease, but it removes every particle of stiffness, every twinge of pain if you keep at it.

I know what Var-ne-sis has accomplished where the joints were swollen from a chalky deposit—I know what Var-ne-sis has accomplished for dry joints so that they creaked when going up or down stairs. I know what Var-ne-sis has accomplished for actual cramps that were confined to a few chairs. It has made every one of these people well and should do the same for you.

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the Journal for Rheumatism. It's free.

I want every rheumatic in this city to go immediately to their druggist and get Var-ne-sis. He has it, or tell your druggist to get Var-ne-sis for you from his wholesaler or send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass.—Adv.

SCORERS ARE UNPOPULAR

Next to the umpire, probably the most unpopular fellow that hangs around a baseball game is the man who is dubbed scorer. His job is unpleasant many times because his judgment doesn't agree with that of the thousands of fans and the player who doesn't get a hit or the man who is charged with an error.

On most every close hit or muff there is more than one decision to be reached in scoring the play. It all depends on whether the scorer or the fan is open or tight in his decisions. The scorer often times scores what many think a hit is an error, rather than be charged with partiality or playing favorites.

The rules governing scoring give the scorer the sole power, allowing that his judgment will not only be fair, but favorable to both players and fans. In the big leagues most of the scorers are open in their rulings. Few of the paper sporting editors band out an error unless the muff was really and truly bad. Hits are a lot more acceptable than errors, for only one man, the pitcher, gets a hit is marked up when one of his teammates allows the ball to roll through his legs, because he misjudged the slam or because someone overruns a pop fly.

The scoring rules decree that each misplay should be charged up as an error against the man who permits a batsman to become a baserunner or allows a baserunner to advance a base due to his misplay. Bad judgment on the part of the fielder is not charged as an error.

A hard hit ball that a fielder can't handle in time to retire the batsman or a baserunner should in all cases be scored as a hit. Many times a doubt exists as to whether or not the slam was too fast and when such is the case a hit should be charged as the rules allow doubt to go to the player and purely born batsman and fielder who smile when a hit is registered or what looked like a muff forgotten.

LYNN AND NEW LONDON

PIEPER'S TEAM HAS BROKEN EVEN IN SIX GAMES PLAYED WITH LEADERS TO DATE

Lou Pieper's Lynn aggregation has made a better showing against the New London league leaders thus far than any other team in the circuit. By taking two out of three games from the Planters in the series played this week, Lynn evened up matters for the season.

The teams have played six games and each has won three of them.

Oscar Tuero, the hero of Pieper's pitching staff, has won two of the games and Williams captured the other. If other teams had made as good a showing against the Millionaires the race would not be one-sided. With Springfield, Portland and Lynn playing good ball, things may not look so easy for the present leaders in a week or so.

Other teams seem to be just as strong as New London outside of the pitching staff. Benefited by spring practice with more league teams over a half dozen members of the New London outfit came into the Eastern league in mid-season form. They were in the same condition at the beginning of the season as the other teams are at this time.

Springfield seems to be going just as good as New London today. Lynn and Portland are not far behind, while the Worcester team, which started off so poorly is also doing well. So far as Lowell is concerned the team looks as good as any with the exception of the pitching staff. Unless the hurlers on the payroll at present show better work in the next few games changes will be made and with a few good pitchers Lynn's team should be a great improvement.

HAS FOUGHT 250 BATTLES

JIMMY WILDE, WONDERFUL ENGLISH FLYWEIGHT HAS NEVER SUFFERED A DEFEAT

"The Mighty Atom" is the nickname conferred upon Jimmy Wilde, the British flyweight champion, by his multitude of English admirers, and in his recent ring performances the "Tyrolstown terror" has certainly lived up to his reputation. A couple of weeks ago Jimmy fought Johnny Rosner of New York for the world's flyweight title and defeated him with ease, the seconds of the American boy throwing up the sponge in the 11th round. Wilde seems to have a clear title to the world's championship in his division, for he has whipped all the best boys of his weight in Europe, and there doesn't appear to be any flyweight on this side of the Atlantic who would stand a chance with him.

Jimmy is just 24 years old. He has fought over 250 battles and has never been defeated. He has often gone out of his class and given away pounds of weight. Jimmy clinched his right to the British flyweight title early this year by knocking out Young Symonds in the 12th round at the National Sporting club in London. For this victory he received $5000, in addition to the Lord Lonsdale belt. In March Jimmy tackled Sid Smith, the former flyweight champion, and put him to sleep in the third round. In his contest with Young Rosner, the American bantam, in Liverpool last month, the New York fighter took a lot of punishment, but he fought on gamely until the 11th chapter, when his seconds gave in for him.

Although he can fight at an even 100 pounds, Wilde has expressed an eager willingness to tackle the best of the American bantams, and has challenged Kid Williams and Johnny Ertle.

In view of Wilde's threatened invasion of America he becomes of special interest to the fans on this side of the ocean. Eugene Corri, the famous English referee, is a great Wilde fan, and asserts that the little midget is the greatest midweight fighter in a generation. "His lightning speed, his perfectly timed blows, his gliding footwork and the manner in which these long, pipe-stem arms of his drive his opponents back reeling and howling, or cause them to measure their length of foot, baffle expert and laymen alike." It may be added that any boxing style that baffles Eugene Corri has got to be mighty clever.

"Surely science was never brought to such perfection as in his case," continues Corri. "Brute force he has absolutely none, not an ounce, or the fraction of an ounce, yet he hits as hard as if his thin arms were steel. So hard do his blows fall that he has often broken his right hand on an opponent's body and been compelled to finish a fight, and win it, practically doing all the work with his left hand."

15-MILE ENDURANCE RACE TO BE HELD ON JUNE 18—MANY EVENTS

Open to all the long distance swimmers who care to compete for the New England fresh water endurance championship, a 15-mile race will be contested in the waters of Lakeview on June 18, starting at 8 a. m. from the Marion A. C. cottage.

The race is sanctioned by the A.A.U. and is open to all amateurs. It is hoped that Sullivan, Boyle and Dubor-will see fit to enter, as Charley Toth, Harry Myron, Jack Hurwitz, Jack Bruff, Arthur Smallcomb, James Beals and Hans Bergmuller already have done so.

Robert Dowling will not be a starter on account of having to take Harvard entrance examinations.

EASTERN LEAGUE COMMENT

All Eastern league rain records were broken this week.

Lowell has played but one of five scheduled games so far this week.

Jesse Burkett of Lawrence comes here tomorrow and should prove a good attraction for a Saturday afternoon. Jesse is just the same as of old and has headed a fast bunch of young ball players. Lowell fans always turned out in large numbers to greet Jesse when he was with Worcester and now that he has jumped to Lawrence they should be even more anxious to see him beaten. The local team should be in good shape tomorrow and Manager Lord thinks he can beat the Lawrence crew.

Pitcher Otto Rettig, last year with the Lewiston club, and taken over by Lynn, refuses to report to Lou Pieper and has been sued in good shape that he would rather play Sunday baseball in New Jersey than stay with the Lynn club. Last Sunday in a game at Passaic he allowed but one hit.

Hugh Bradley, who a few years ago was considered the best first baseman in the New England league, is reported to be doing some classy stick work in the American association. In 30 games played with the Columbus team he has a batting average of .284. Bradley went from the N. E. league to the Red Sox and two years ago jumped to the Feds.

On account of so many postponements, due to the rainy weather, double-headers have already started in the Eastern league. Lowell will get its share of double bills soon. Springfield, Hartford and Lynn each have one postponed game to be played off here and Portland has two.

The Bridgeport Post says: "While the Planters were here Sunday it was learned that Gene McCann and Lou Pieper, who met as rival managers in the 1914 battle between the Eastern association and the New England league's championship teams, now shall be scheduled every time their teams play. On the last meeting Pieper's crew won 10-2, and McCann was so intent on winning that he saved Garry Fortune, his star twirler, for the game until Martin flew and he had to use Garry as relief. After watching Fortune twirl a couple of innings Gene probably offered prayer that things hadn't happened the way he planned them."

UMP, DOHERTY QUILTS LEAGUE

A change was announced last evening in the staff of umpires of the Eastern league. James E. Keady of Philadelphia was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of "Mike" Doherty, who has been umpiring since the opening of the season. Doherty officiated at four local games this season. His last appearance here was on the morning of Memorial day when he umpired the game with Lawrence.

BILLY BROOKS WON BOUT

Billy Brooks, a Lowell boy who is now making his home in Bridgeport, knocked out Kid Swords in the third round of a scheduled eight-round bout in the Connecticut city recently. Billy made a strong impression with Bridgeport fans, outclassing his opponent all the way.

WHEN 'T WILL PINCH

Unless congress passes the shipping bill of the administration or some similar measure before the close of the war, American business shall soon feel the helplessness and humiliation of being dependent on others. The matter should never have been made a partisan question, as it was by the republicans and the interests behind private transportation lines, but having become partisan, the American people will learn where to place the responsibility for any harm that may come to the business of the country.

It was most fortunate that the great bulk of our foreign business during the war consisted of war orders which the belligerents themselves shipped from our ports, and it was fortunate also that the bulk of this trade balanced our great deficiency in shipping. Those who opposed the shipping bill pointed to the number of ships being privately constructed and to the busy wheels of our mills and factories, but they did not refer at all to the hundreds of urgent demands from foreign markets that wanted American goods and could not be supplied, for lack of ships. Neither did they speak of the disappointed American firms that could not import raw products from South America, Hayti, the Philippines, etc. The lack of adequate shipping killed many a good scheme for the growth of American business—a growth that would have been permanent when the war orders have ceased to come in.

Secretary McAdoo in his recent report warned the country against the time when an enlarged foreign trade will demand more adequate shipping. He recalled the fact that our trade to Austria and Germany alone for the year before the war was $357,500,000 and said that this trade will be regained when peace comes. He recalled that the total imports of South America in normal times were approximately $700,000,000 and declared that America must strive to get part, if not the major part, of this trade with the ending of hostilities.

It is in the keener competition to come that America will feel the want of a merchant marine. We have seen how when other nations go to war our commerce must suffer, and we have been wrangling over partisan politics when we should have been passing laws to restore our flag to the trade routes of the world. It will be an everlasting shame if after two years of fruitless waiting for the wretched service given by England, France, Italy, etc., we must go back and ask our trade rivals to transport to all the ports of the world the goods that we intend to sell in competition with them.

The United States is in the strategic position with regard to world trade at the close of the war. Our resources will not have been depleted; we shall not have the great economic or political perplexities of other great powers; we shall have the wealth and the unimpaired energy and vitality. Yet, if we must go to our rivals—and they are not friendly rivals—to carry our goods under their flags, we shall fail to grasp the opportunity which is rightfully ours. The great essential for the future growth of American trade and commerce is the establishment of a merchant marine that shall be American in every respect. With such a merchant marine as the administration shipping bill aims to create, America shall be independent and can successfully compete with powers who will leave no stone unturned to beat us in foreign competition.

NOT SO EASY

The task of writing a platform for the republican convention at Chicago presents no difficulties, as viewed from this distance, such as must disturb the current that has been so strongly setting towards harmony between the republicans and progressives. In the four years since 1912 the two parties have been steadily getting together on common ground. The older party has recognized the fires of the younger, and has accepted its position on many of the questions which created issues four years ago. On the two vital issues of the present campaign, the two parties stand shoulder to shoulder.—Fall River Herald.

So, to at least one editor, the writing of a republican platform is an easy matter—"as viewed from this distance." That is news surely, and it is not at all borne out by the course of events at Chicago. It looks "from this distance" at the present time as though the writing of a platform that both factions may agree to is not only difficult but wholly impossible. Principles are relegated to the background and the choice of personalities seems to be the great rock on which the ship of harmony has foundered.

Little pretence is being made that in either convention the platform amounts to anything. The country looked to the republicans to voice a positive declaration of views at the opening, but instead we were treated to a lot of negative statements that rang hollow. The progressives are for a platform as short as it is secondary. All platform builders are so busy pulling wires and patching up old differences that the planks lie neglected by the wayside, and so long as the progressives demand a candidate that the old guard does not want under any circumstances, there can be no platform to which both parties can subscribe.

On only one point do they agree—

and that will not be written into the platform. Each group knows that it does not want President Wilson and the burning desire of each is to beat him. Yet the conservative element and those with long memories fear that if they do not take Roosevelt he will make the election of President Wilson a certainty. Contrary to the views of the trusting writer in Fall River, the progressives and the republicans do not stand "shoulder to shoulder"; they are face to face—and ready for a fight.

ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE

The wanton destruction of private property which is so complained of in all our cities during the summer is rarely due to ignorance. It is for the most part the deliberate work of hoodlums who do mischief with a sort of perverted delight. If ignorance were the cause of it our flowers and shrubs would not be so safe for a moment, but in this respect there is little to complain of. Even the foreigners who are not accustomed to our systems of parks and commons show deference towards our flowers and shrubberies and the local park department has found that it may safely plant in the most congested and least protected parts of the city.

On the other hand, it was recently reported that bubble fountains have been robbed of their parts and that other costly defacements have taken place. Windows, fire alarms, park benches, etc., are destroyed without a semblance of excuse, and by those for whose benefit they are provided. As the Sun has frequently contended, this is the work of gangs, and while it can never be wholly eliminated, there should be little consideration for those who, old enough to know better, return to the city evil for good.

WAR AND WEATHER

During the long rainy spell last summer it was commonly stated that there might be some connection between the war and the state of the weather, and like comments are being heard just now. Scientists do not seem to take this view, but some wise ones who are not awed by scientific assertions say that continental peasants have been known to fire cannon in order to bring rain, and you will meet the man who says that it is nearly always rainy after July 4th. Surely if the exploding of great shells on the earth and in the air could disturb atmospheric conditions the battle of Verdun and the other great bombardments may explain our moist and unseasonable June. From whatever cause, the unusual damp and cold of the season up to the present has seriously interfered with many events in this city and its immediate vicinity. One cannot without trepidation arrange for open-air pageants, dog shows, preparedness parades and the like, but there is heat and sunshine waiting for us and in a few months we would welcome ardently one of the days that we now complain of so bitterly.

STREET REPAIRS

We are glad to see our neighbor, the Courier-Intelligencer, come out in favor of the "permanent road-repair gang" so long advocated by The Sun. One of the editorial staff writing in the C-I column favors such a gang "whose sole duty would be to travel about the city patching up cradles, holes and smoothing up rough spots." We agree with him that "such a gang wouldn't cost a large amount of money, and the work that might be accomplished would be comparatively large." This gang is urgently needed and it has been needed for a long time. If it had been in existence for the past five years some of the streets that now have as many holes as a Swiss cheese might be in a fairly decent condition. We recently called attention to the sorry condition of Broadway which Commissioner Morse is striving to patch up when it is almost too late to do anything that can postpone its general renewal. In advocating a street repair gang The Sun has been mindful of the example of other progressive cities and has from time to time given examples of the excellent results achieved by such a gang elsewhere.

PRICE OF SHOES

The leather supply in this country, it is said, has been seriously affected by the war and some shoe manufacturing concerns are predicting that shoes will go up a dollar a pair in price in the near future. As yet, the announcement is not general and it is not likely that any change in price will be made while there is a way to avoid it. The public knows that there are many grades of shoes.

and the boosting of the price of the highest varieties would make a demand for cheaper grades. Keeping this in mind, shoe manufacturers and shoe merchants should be careful not to offend public sentiment by going up in price sooner than is strictly necessary. Rightly or wrongly the public has come to look with suspicion at any price tinkering—and the legitimate change is liable to be just as unpopular as the change made from purely selfish motives. Even the plea of war necessity cannot be stretched so far that it will cover every new burden on people who are already burdened too much.

"Of course, I want my daughter to have some kind of artistic education. I think I'll let her study singing," said Mrs. Neighbor.

"Why not art or literature?" suggested Mrs. Highbrow.

Art spoils canvases and literature wastes rooms of paper. Singing merely produces a temporary disturbance of the atmosphere," was the reply.

Fastidious About His Work

At a certain house in Belvidere yesterday a man knocked at the door and the following dialogue ensued:

Lady—"What do you want?"

Man—"Can you give me some kind of work that I may have a little money?"

Lady—"No, but I was reading in The Sun last night how hard it is for farmers to get help. Why don't you try that?"

Man—"Good God! Do I look like a farmer?"

Lady—"Why no, you act more like a tramp, going from door to door, begging."

Some Come Back

The late Sir Robert Ball, the famous astronomer, a keen humorist, was never loath to recount a joke at his own expense. He was dining with some friends at Stratford, and on the bill being presented he said to the landlady:

"Madam, I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. In twenty-five million years all things must return to their original condition. We shall see how again eating a dinner precisely identical. Will you give us credit until we come back?"

"Well," replied the landlady, "you were here twenty-five million years ago, and you left without paying the bill then. Settle that account and I will trust you for what you have had today."—Tit-Bits.

"No; he hadn't any house to be blown down. He had been living at a hotel waiting for his new residence in the country to be completed. All the material was lying out in the fields, and the plans were in a toolshed near by. When he went to look at the place one morning he found that the wind had blown open the tool-house, secured the plans, blown the whole house up, cleaned the wind-dogs, and started a fire in the kitchen range."

Every man picked up his hat and went home.

There's Nothing New

A great deal of our latter day speech which we consider quite catchy and that we set down as brand new is often of a vintage ante-dating our great-grandfathers. We think that pointing to the head and exclaiming "nobody home" is the very newest way of indicating a shortage in gray matter, but list to what Popo, the eminent English piet who died in 1685, wrote:

"You beat your pate, and fancy it will come; Knock as you please, there's nobody at home."

It would seem that "nobody home" was quite a popular phrase in the olden days for in a book of familiar quotations we find the following from Cowper:

"His wit invites you by his look to come, But when you knock it never is at home."

Beautiful Lives

Beautiful lives are those that seek To make life beautiful—seek to speak Sending the sunlight, sounding the cheer

That heat the sorrow and dry the tear. Beautiful lives that build and bloom In every sunless and silent room. A shrine of beauty that those that dwell

May feel the touch of the beautiful spell. Beautiful lives, that find their way Into the corners so dark and gray. And dust the cobwebs and bring the gleam That the hermit souls therein may dream.

Beautiful lives are those that find The beautiful secret of being kind. And passing it on and making it grow In many an aching heart of woe. Beautiful lives, that while they pass Are like a music along the grass. A breeze of summer, a velvet wing. Like a butterfly poised on azure wing. To teach the lesson of dream and dove And spread the fashion of being sweet From door to door in the little street.

Beautiful lives are those that give Beautiful love that the world may live Down its tolling and teeming days. Beautiful lives that cheer the weak To help the helpless and aid the weak. To cheer the cheerless and sing and smile.

In sunlit friendly and fearless style. Beautiful lives, that are a dew On dusty roads that the world ploughs through.

And a vine by the door, and flowers on the hill.

To bring God's beauty to lone and ill. —Kansas City Journal.

White Paper Waste

The News-Record of Springfield, Ill., is another of the papers attempting to stem the tide of waste in the use of white paper, before the shortage that threatens the industry strikes this country.

J. David Stern, managing editor of that paper, makes the following statement in relation to the matter:

"Since our circulation was already on a rock-bottom, paid-in-advance, no-return basis, it was difficult for us to reduce our consumption of paper, but we have cut off about four hundred copies a day, which is equivalent to saving of 15 tons per year by the following method."

"The department stores had been getting a dozen papers a day so that they could cut out their ads and post them on the bulletin boards in the different departments. We have taken the waste papers off the press and cut the ads out for them."

"We have eliminated the counter graft of the advertisers who drop in and asked for a paper because they have not received their regular paper."

"All of our dealers are on the 'no return' basis. The only source of left-overs is from street sales. We have arranged to send out our foreign advertising mail list after the street sales returns are in, and in case there are no returns, we run them off the press the next morning.

"We formerly cut off all city subscribers who owed more than a dollar. We have now cut off all who owed more than 50 cents."

"Preparedness" to resist the devil, was the note sounded by Elder J. K. Jones, president of the Massachusetts conference of Seventh day Adventists, last night, in his opening address of welcome in the great canvas pavilion at Glen Forest park, Lawrence, to members of the denomination from all over the state who had assembled to attend the old fashioned camp-meeting and revival services being held from June 8 to 12.

Taking as his text Ephesians 1:9, 10, he said that, while nations were making preparations to meet the uncertain turn of affairs things were taking in these days of war and disaster on every hand, so it was necessary for Christians, who could read the fulfillment of prophecy in the terrible conditions in the world, to prepare their hearts and the lives of others for the great impending crisis the bible pointed out would soon break upon the earth.

Unless Christians are themselves prepared, how can they warn and prepare others? Therefore the great need is to seek God to put sin away, and receive His blessing. This is the real object of this campmeeting."

Special vocal selections were rendered by the South Lancaster Male quartette and the large chorus under the direction of Prof. E. H. Dexter.

The regular tent meeting program began this morning at 6:30 with a devotional service, followed by a bible study at 9, and a preaching service at 11. Dinner at noon, and departmental meetings in the afternoon.

In the evening the mammoth white tabernacle is to be turned over for special public meetings, at which prominent bible scholars will speak on prophetic themes relating to present-day conditions.

In the culinary department there is every indication of "preparedness" to look after the great number of people arriving. Meals are served in the dining tent for the campers and the public visitors, on the cafeteria plan. The meals are entirely vegetarian, and are prepared under the direction of the chief of the New England sanitarian at Melrose. The grocery store is also well stocked with numerous good things to eat. Health foods are given special prominence at the counter.

So many campers have already arrived, and such a large number more have come in, that for space, that the camp committee is having a hard time locating every one. As yet many rooms have had to be secured from neighbors to accommodate the arrivals.

NOTED CITIES WHOSE LITERARY SHRINES AND WONDERFUL ART GALLERIES ARE ENDANGERED

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 9.—The territorial division of Northern Italy known as Venetia, which the Austrian government now claims, is the subject of today's war program. Bulletin issued by the National Geographic society from its Washington headquarters. The bulletin gives the following data about this fertile region whose blossoming plains are dotted with numerous cities famous as centres of great historic interest and custodians of art and architectural treasures of incalculable worth.

"Venetia, whose eastern, northern and western boundaries have been the fighting line of Austria and Italy since the latter nation entered the European struggle, is the rear 'hoof strap' of the Italian peninsula. It juts far up into the Austro-Hungarian territory, at the head of the Adriatic sea, and is bounded on the south by the Adriatic and the territorial division of Italy known as Emilia, of which Bologna is the principal city. The southwestern boundary is Lombardy, of which Milan is the metropolis. It has an area about equal to that of the state of Vermont, but its population is ten times as great.

"Among the noted cities whose literary shrines, historic buildings and wonderful art galleries are endangered by the far-reaching iron fingers of war are: the great mistress of the Adriatic, Venice, the seat of the most powerful republic in the world; Verona, treasured in the hearts of the English-reading world as the home of literature's greatest lovers, Romeo and Juliet; Padua, also a familiar name to the Shakespearean student; Vicenza, rich in Palladian palaces; Udine, the military base for Italian operations on the Isonzo during the long-continued drive toward the Austrian port of Trieste, and that delight of artists, Chioggia, the chief fishing port of Italy.

"Venetia is largely delta land, having been formed by the alluvial deposits brought down from the Tyrolean Alps by numerous rivers, including the two great watercourses of the kingdom, the Po and the Adige. The lower reaches of these rivers flow through extensive plains where levees are necessary to prevent frequent inundations. In this section the Po has a fall of not more than a half-inch to the mile. Naturally this soil is extremely fertile, producing large crops of wheat, maize, rice, tobacco and chestnuts, together with mulberry leaves for silk worms.

"Many of the towns of Venetia are manufacturing centres, the chief products being glassware, woolen, silk and cotton goods, paper and candles. Venetian lace has become so widely known as almost to have lost the geographic significance of its name.

"The territory derives its name from the Veneti, the tribes which inhabited this region during the early Roman days. When the barbarians poured over the Alps and Atilla sacked Lombardy, the people of the interior fled to the Adriatic coast, taking refuge on the low islands which cluster around the mouths of the numerous rivers. It is to this heritage that Venice owed the initial impetus for its rapid rise to power, beginning in the fifth century. Her fortunes finally waned with the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope route to the far east. In 1458, this ocean lane to the Orient striking a fatal blow at the island city's supremacy as a trade centre. A large part of the Mediterranean traffic was quickly diverted to the Atlantic seaboard, establishing England's dominance as the world's greatest commerce-carrying nation.

"In 1797 Napoleon gave Venice, and

Persistent Hammering by Germans on Defenses of Verdun—Results in Further Gain

Persistent hammering by the Germans on the defenses of Verdun, north-east of the fortress has won another success, gaining them ground near the Thiaumont farm about a mile southwest of Fort Douaumont.

This advance was secured during a general attack along the entire front on the east bank of the Meuse which, according to this afternoon's bulletin from Paris, was repulsed in all other sectors with heavy losses to the crown prince's troops.

The French are still holding what is known as the Douaumont-Thiaumont line, and French military opinion is that they will not be obliged to fall back to the inner defenses about two miles southwest of Fort Vaux as the guns of Souville are still able to sweep the crests running from Vaux to Douaumont.

Latest reports from the eastern front show the Russians to be continuing successfully their great offensive on a front of 250 miles or more from the Pripiet to the Rumanian border. They have already made a breach said to be 100 miles wide in the Austrian lines and captured more than 50,000 prisoners.

LONDON, June 9.—A Renter despatch from Amsterdam says that a statement has been issued from the Dutch army general headquarters that the army is thoroughly prepared and equipped for any possible war.

FALL OF FORT VAUX DEEPLY REGRETTED IN FRANCE

PARIS, June 9.—The fall of Fort Vaux with its garrison of 400 men and its defenders is deeply regretted but public opinion is not discouraged.

The withdrawal of the French line to the inner defenses of Verdun on the right bank of the Meuse, which was forecast by military writers as a natural consequence of the capture of Vaux has not yet taken place. The French in the last 24 hours have repulsed the furious and repeated efforts of the enemy to compel this retirement, according to the latest reports received by the French war office.

By a week of uninterrupted attacks in which it is said a number of divisions were destroyed, the Germans have advanced their lines about one mile. They have taken the southern part of Caillette wood, part of the Chapire wood, Dampouy village and now Vaux fort. Before the enemy will be able to make full use of his week's conquests he will have to enlarge his

BURNED THE MORTGAGE

NOTABLE GATHERING AT SACRED HEART HALL, EAST PINE STREET—PRIZES AWARDED

A social gathering was held last evening in the Sacred Heart hall in East Pine street, the occasion being a tribute to the women who took part in the recent military pageant, which was held at Associate hall under the auspices of the Sacred Heart, and also the burning of the last mortgage on the property of the garde. It was mainly through the efforts of the young women that money was raised to extinguish the debt of the organization, and accordingly last evening's affair was of double significance.

At 8 o'clock some 60 young women and members of the garde assembled in the hall and partook of a bountiful dinner. Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I., chaplain of the garde, who acted as master of ceremonies, complimented the guests of the evening for the fine work accomplished in organizing the recent military pageant, and incidentally he announced that the affair netted over $500. He then introduced President Henri Guerin of the garde, who after extending his thanks to the members of the fair sex as well as to his brethren of the garde, set fire to the mortgage and the blaze was the signal for cheers. Capt. Horace Desllets also spoke interestingly, and his remarks were followed by a musical program, those taking part being William Carr, Emeline Gaudette and others, while chorus sections were also sung.

One of the features of the evening was also the awarding of prizes in the contest which had been organized in connection with the military pageant. The first prize, a diamond, was won by Miss Delvina Renaud, who brought in the sum of $132. The other contestants and the amount they brought in were: Miss Lillian Normand, $101; and Miss Annette Carufel, $87. Miss Estelle Giroux, who was awarded first prize for the best costume in the pageant, was presented a gold pennant. The pillow donated by Miss Marianne Renaud was won by Joseph St. Amant of East Pine street. The accompanist of the evening was Miss Marguerite Lemaitre.

today by Chairman George W. Perkins and at the same hour the republican conference committee was making its report at the Coliseum. The reports were not identical but they agreed that Col. Roosevelt's name was the only one the progressives presented to the republicans and that the latter offered no name for consideration. Both reports recommended time for further conferences "this afternoon or evening."

Mr. Perkins read the report of the republican committee and the declaration that the progressive members of the committee had urged Theodore Roosevelt as the "most desirable candidate upon which to unite" was so widely cheered that the report had to be read again when order was obtained. After listening to the reading of the two reports and Mr. Perkins' appeal to the convention to let the conferees go back to work, the delegates applauded the chairman's praise of the eloquence of his colleagues' arguments in favor of the progressive "universal candidate."

Gov. Johnson of California sounded a note of pessimism in the call for peace by telling the progressives not to place too much confidence in the expressions concerning Col. Roosevelt in the republican report. He pointed out the fact that the radicals that there was little prospect for an agreement between the two conventions but his name on the report guaranteed that the convention would permit its committee to proceed with conferences until a final report could be made.

LATE IN STARTING

Progressives Not in Hall at Announced Time to Start Today's Session

AUDITORIUM HALL, Chicago, June 9, 10:12 a. m.—When 10 o'clock, the hour for reconvening the progressive convention, arrived there was not a leader on the platform and there were only a few hundred people in the hall. There was little enthusiasm among the arriving delegates, although a band playing patriotic airs did its best to liven things up.

The officers of the convention who are attempting to proceed in a deliberate manner, that their work was cut out for them.

Henry Allen's description of yesterday's session that it was a powder magazine with lots of matches around adequately described the situation today.

From a parliamentary point of view the convention officers had the advantage in their content with obstreperous delegates who would rush madly into making a nomination of Col. Roosevelt. Before adjournment yesterday the platform report was placed before the convention by Dr. William D. Pepper Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the resolutions committee and it was made the unfinished business.

Those who were seeking delay to give the peace conference committees as much time as they desired in their efforts to get together with the republicans, looked eagerly for a Roosevelt demonstration. They were prepared when it came to keep it going as long as possible, figuring that it would help use up the time.

MASS. DELEGATES FOR ROOSEVELT

While the leaders talked the delegates poured in. The Massachusetts delegation marched in yelling "We'd better nominate Roosevelt before it's too late."

William Allen White and Clifford Pinchot after moving about among the delegates reported that the convention could not be restrained the moment word came that nominations were being made by the republicans. It was the determination of the progressives to place their nominee in the field before action could be taken by the other convention. Col. Roosevelt, it was said, would be named by acclamation but with a roll call.

was by Rabbi Joseph Stolz of Chicago followed by general applause.

Prayer by Rabbi Stolz.

Rabbi Joseph Stolz, D.D., of Isiah Temple, Chicago, delivered the following invocation before the progressive national convention here today:

"O Lord, whose throne is in the heavens, whose footstool is the earth; O God, who art the Father of all people, the Ruler of all nations; O Eternal One, who art supreme above the din of battles, and mighty above the voices of many waters; thy judgments reach to the uttermost ends of the earth. Thou makest for righteousness, even when clouds and thick darkness are round about thee."

"Thou bringest order out of chaos, light out of darkness, good out of evil, peace out of conflict, even though the earth do change and the moon cease to move, and though nations rage, and kingdoms totter. And we need have no fear for the days to come, if we keep the truth and establish justice, if we despise the gain of oppression, and seek peace and pursue it."

"Thou art our refuge and our strength, a very present help in times of trouble and perplexity. O, send us Thy light and Thy truth that they may lead us to the real sources of national strength. Inspire us with an ever-growing and ever-deepening love of the common good, which made our country great and which can weld together these who left their homes in all parts of the earth to find security and liberty within our portals."

"Let Thy spirit of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and might, rest upon the convention, and may Thy lofty passions may inspire the confidence of the people, that its righteous indignations may purge the nation of its materialism, that its high aspirations may strengthen the conviction that the true greatness of our country lies not in the abundance of things we possess, but in the justice of our laws and institutions, in our devotion to peace founded on righteousness and love, in the brotherhood of all the races and nations, all the classes and creeds within our borders."

"Bless our country that it may be a stronghold of peace, an advocate of peace in the councils of nations, a messenger of peace unto the peoples of the earth, an apostle of peace striving earnestly for a realization of the prophet's dream of the day when men will live in peace, in justice, in brotherhood, and their spirits into prunings, which nation will not lift up the sword against nation and they will not learn war any more, when every man will sit under his vine and his fig-tree, and none will make him afraid."

"Thine, O God, be the greatness and the might and the glory and the victory. Amen."

Delegate Charles E. Mason of Maine was recognized to offer seats on the floor to the Georgia delegation, seated at the rear of the stage, referring to Georgia as "the home of Teddy's mother."

The Georgia and Maine orators exchanged compliments, all being loudly cheered, especially at the declaration by C. R. Hutchers of Georgia: "We would rather fight and lose than not to fight at all."

Planks Approved

Chairman Robins brought up unfinished business and the platform to be read plank by plank. The chairman moved the approval of each plank and its reading was finished but said final adoption as a whole would be deferred agree-until the entire document had been read and all amendments made and the peace conference report acted upon.

All of the first paragraphs of the platform were approved by viva voce votes, later paragraphs were approved by unanimous consent.

The planks on Americanism were approved.

Mr. Lewis, holding an Indiana proxy, offered an amendment to the Mexican plank to include criticism of the "murder" of Americans on the high seas.

The convention by overwhelming vote approved the amendment.

To the paragraph relating to peace efforts, Judge W. R. Ransom of New York proposed to add to the declaration of equal rights, "to all men in all lands," the following:

"We pledge ourselves not to conclude a treaty in Russia or with any other country that will not expressly procure such absolute rights."

There was much debate.

A new amendment by Judge Ransom, reading as follows, was substituted:

"We should not conclude a treaty with any country that will not expressly assure to American citizens such absolute rights."

The substitute was approved with a roar of applause.

The peace conference committee, headed by George W. Perkins and Gov. Johnson, arrived at 11:30 and the platform was laid aside. Deep silence fell over the vast hall as Perkins began to read. When Mr. Perkins told how Col. Roosevelt's name had been presented there was short, loud applause. Yells and cheers followed the statement that the republicans presented no candidate.

There was little applause when reading of the progressive report was completed. Rapid attention was given reading of the republican committee's report.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE PLANK

Fight in Prospect at Progressive Convention—Radical Leaders Are Not Satisfied

CHICAGO, June 9.—A fight over the woman suffrage plank in the progressive platform was in prospect today. Some of the more radical leaders of the suffrage movement, it was said, were not satisfied with the plank as drawn by the resolutions committee.

As adopted by the committee the plank says the progressive party believes that women "should be given the full political right of suffrage, either by federal or state action." This was looked upon by some suffrage proponents as a decided straddle. Their proposition is to make the plank read "women should be given the full political right of suffrage, both by federal and state action." When the plank is taken up plank by plank the fight probably will result in general debate.

In the resolutions committee a motion to insert an out and out declaration for a "dry" plank was beaten, 30 to 13, but advocates of prohibition had not given up hope of a reconsideration in the convention itself.

LONDON, June 9, 2:32 p. m.—Information has reached the Russian embassy in Rome that the Austrian army has been completely broken along a length of 94 miles to a depth of 37½ miles, according to a Central News despatch today from the Italian capital.

The Russian advance, according to these advices, now threatens to envelop the entire Austrian army in the region affected. The Austrians, finding themselves attacked from both the east and the north, are declared to have been seized with panic during the first attacks by the Russians and to have surrendered without any real resistance.

DARING AVERTS ACCIDENT

Refusman of Everett Combination Fire Truck Drives Across Sidewalk to Avoid Crash

EVERETT, June 9.—Charles Smith, driver of the fire department combination truck and for many years a cowboy on the western plains, demonstrated last night that he had lost none of his skill in handling horses when he guided the three-horse hitch between a sign-post and a tree, then along a sidewalk and finally onto a lawn, thereby averting what probably would have been a serious collision with a horse wagon at Summer and Clinton streets.

The apparatus was responding to a needless alarm from box 23. The horses and machine and the men riding on it escaped without a scratch. The truck stopped a few feet from the house of John Vanderhoof.

The reports show that Mr. Keene held $75,000 in notes which had been outlawed before his death. Among these was one for $10,000 given by David Lamar, now in the Atlanta penitentiary.

REPUDIATED BY GERARD

Never Made Utterances in Regard to President Wilson's Proposed Peace Mediation

BERLIN, June 9. (By wireless to Sayville)—The American ambassador James W. Gerard, who has repudiated an interview recently attributed to him on the subject of President Wilson's peace efforts, the Overseas News Agency says. The ambassador also is quoted as asserting that Count Friedrich von Westarp, conservative leader in the reichstag, desires Mr. Gerard to have a spurious interview published some time ago but the ambassador declined.

According to a statement given out by the news agency today, a manuscript containing a copy of the spurious interview was submitted to Mr. Gerard with the idea that it was to have been published in the National Zeitung but the ambassador refused to sanction it. The statement follows: "Ambassador Gerard stated to a staff member of the Vossische Zeitung that he never made the utterances regarding to President Wilson's proposed peace mediation attributed to him and quoted in the reichstag. The conservative leader, Count von Westarp, said that Mr. Gerard had announced President Wilson's intention to mediate peace and for this purpose to exert pressure on the belligerents, which he (Count von Westarp) was unwilling to agree to.

"Mr. Gerard now states that Count von Westarp had desired that he have a spurious interview published some time ago by the National Zeitung. At that time Mr. Gerard told a staff member of the National Zeitung that he was unable to give any information. On seeing the manuscript Mr. Gerard declared that it was untrue and therefore he held the manuscript.

"Mr. Gerard makes formal denial of the spurious interview."

AMSTERDAM, June 9, via London.—The Vossische Zeitung of Berlin declares that Ambassador Gerard disclaims all responsibility for what was represented as an interview with him, published by the Berlin Achter Abendblatt and quoted in the reichstag by Count von Westarp. The fact is, according to the Vossische Zeitung, that Mr. Gerard received the editor of the National Zeitung to whom he said that the visit to the United States of Joseph C. Grew, secretary of the American embassy at Berlin, was purely for private purposes. The ambassador declined to reply to other questions. Later the editor of the National Zeitung returned, the Vossische Zeitung says, with a manuscript containing utterances attributed to the ambassador. Mr. Gerard is said to have torn up the paper in the presence of John B. Jackson, a member of the embassy staff.

claim a monopoly of the American spirit in his heart or in his nature. The republican party is full of them." The convention greeted this with an outburst of handclapping, and there was another when he declared the nation should always be "prepared and proud to fight."

Demonstration For Taft
There was a demonstration when Gov. Whitman mentioned the name of William Howard Taft. The delegates rose cheering and waving their hats and for the first time the whole body of them were on their feet. The band struck up and rolled the cheers along. It was the longest demonstration of the convention so far and lasted six minutes.

When Mr. Whitman quoted from an eight year old speech of Justice Hughes declaring for "adequate provision for our defense and maintenance of the efficiency of the army and navy" there was more applause. Gov. Whitman concluded at 12:11 with the words: "The great state of New York, through the lips of its Governor, offers to the people of the party, to the voters of the party—not only to them, but to the great nation—her son, her noblest and her best."

"I nominate as the republican candidate for president of the United States Charles Evans Hughes of New York."

A G.O.P. elephant on rollers was carried to the platform. The Oregon men picked up the standard and began a march around the hall. Vermont delegates joined the procession.

The marchers cried "we want Hughes." The Michigan men also took a place in the line. Ten minutes of the Hughes demonstration showed no indication of an end. The convention broke into an uproar while the band played.

The Hughes men in the New York delegation led the cheering which was general on the floor and galleries. Butler Nominates Root
Some of the New Yorkers sat down and let the others carry on the noise which the Vermont delegation was consistently leading most of the time. The demonstration ebbed and flowed, coming up with renewed vigor from time to time. When it had been in full swing 20 minutes, Chairman Harding tried to get it down. The chairman shouted calls for order and the police were directed to get delegates seated. Mr. Harding then recognized Nicholas Murray Butler of New York to nominate Ethel Root, under the yield of place by Arizona.

When Dr. Butler finished at 12:55

RAILWAYS WERE HIGHER

U. S. STEEL LED SEASONED INDUSTRIES—INCREASED LEAD IN LAST HOUR—CLOSING STRONG

NEW YORK, June 9.—Railway shares were again dominant features on the resumption of trading today, although initial dealings were not on the liberal scale that characterized yesterday's early operations. Southern Railway, Reading, Northern Pacific, and Colorado and Southern were higher by substantial fractions to 1 1/2 points and New York Central showed unusual activity. U. S. Steel led the seasoned industries, with strength in Crucible Steel, Studebaker, United Fruit, American Woolen and Eastman, the latter at the record of 84 1/2.

Inquiry for rails soon assumed wider scope, Union Pacific making a rise of 1 1/4 while Central was absorbed in blocks of 1000 to 6000 shares. U. S. Steel's leadership became more pronounced as its gain of a point, trading at 84 1/2, was followed by a slight rise in realizing bands were further. The drooping tendency made further headway in the early afternoon, strong issues of the morning yielding 1 to 2 points. Mexicans were weak on reports of fresh disturbances in that country.

United States Steel increased its gain in the last hour, with a sudden rally in munitions and further advances in low priced rails. The closing was strong.

12 FOOT WATERWAYS PLAN

Movement to Connect the Great Lakes With Lowell, Boston and Other Mass. Cities

WASHINGTON, June 8.—In a movement that has for its ultimate object the development of a 12-foot waterways system to connect the Great Lakes with Boston, Springfield, Holyoke, Lowell and other Massachusetts cities, by way of the Erie canal and then via the Hudson river and New York, Chairman William S. McNary of the Massachusetts harbor and inland commission yesterday held a long conference with Gen. William M. Black, chief of engineers of the war department.

The first subject discussed, said Mr. McNary, was the recent recommendation of the board of engineers for rivers and harbors for improving the Merrimack river from Lowell to the sea. While this has not yet reached Gen. Black, Mr. McNary, who went into it in detail with him, said, "I am much encouraged to believe that the report will be approved and adopted."

Mr. McNary took up the Connecticut river improvement, which calls for 12 feet of water from Hartford to Springfield and Holyoke. Should the Shields or any similar waterpower bill be passed by congress, Mr. McNary said, this improvement could be undertaken without delay.

"Plans have been perfected," said Mr. McNary, "for a 12-foot barge canal from Taunton to Brockton, but surveys are necessary to determine the cost of a 12-foot waterway from Taunton through to Boston, using the Taunton river and such other streams as may be available." The project was held up for the present by the government.

"We want a waterways system for Massachusetts in complete accord with the Erie canal," said Mr. McNary, "so that traffic from the Great Lakes may be brought through the Erie and down the Hudson and then to Springfield and Holyoke by the Connecticut river, and to Boston and other points by the Taunton river and barge canal, all of which must be at least 12 feet in depth."

Mr. McNary called on Gov. Hanlin of the federal reserve board to discuss the advisability of trust companies and small banks entering the system. He said Asst. Sec. Peters of the Treasury, who left for Massachusetts this evening, also left Mr. McNary.

Opposition to Representative Cullen's "hours of service" bill was expressed yesterday by Pres. Elliott of the New York, New Haven & Hartford in a letter to Representative Olney, the chief objector being that the proposed law would not be "flexible."

Train dispatchers, for instance, said Mr. Elliott, have eight hours on and 16 hours off, thus dividing the day into three eight-hour shifts, and under the proposed law "there would be no time for intelligent discussion of conditions between the man relieving and the man being relieved." This, he added, would necessitate four "tricks" in each 24 hours. In one-man station, said Mr. Elliott, the proposed law would compel the road to double its force.

Mr. Elliott said the New Haven proposed spending $25,000,000 in improvements in the next five years.

ITEM LEFT OUT BY ERROR

Quarantine $150,000 Will Be Included, Says Gallivan—Calls Boston Congressmen "Live Ones"

WASHINGTON, June 8.—"There's no occasion for any item about the $150,000 item to reimburse the city of Boston for the taking over of the quarantine station by the federal authorities not being paid," said Congressman Gallivan yesterday afternoon.

The treasury department long ago recommended it and the subcommittee of the appropriations committee agreed to report it. I was assured it would be carried in the sundry civil bill and it is merely someone's clerical error that it does not appear there.

He took care that it will appear, if permitted so to do. Mayor Curley had every good reason to be worried over its absence and did right in coming to Washington, but the others who are butting in will please remember that Boston has three congressmen down here and they have never been accused of being "dead ones."

Lieut. Martin Maher, assisted by Patrolman Jeremiah Dooley, arrested Edward Maher and Robert Maher, aged 13 and 14 years each, of Fitchburg, Mass., about 11 o'clock this morning in a lunch cart in Middlesex street, and the youngsters were brought to the police station where they were held for the Fitchburg police on a complaint charging them with breaking and entering and larceny.

It is alleged that the boys entered the house of Rose Leduc in Fitchburg several days ago and stole $14 in money and several minor articles.

The police of cities and towns in the vicinity were informed of the break and a very good description of the boys was sent out.

Lieut. Maher saw two boys leave a train at the Middlesex street station this morning and immediately recognized them as the two Fitchburg lads. They entered a lunch cart in the vicinity of the depot and Lieut. Maher and Patrolman Dooley subsequently entered the place and upon questioning the lads found that they were the pair whom the Fitchburg police were looking for. The boys admitted their guilt and also admitted that they had police records. Shortly after the arrest the Fitchburg police were notified and the inspector came to this city this afternoon and took the boys back.

The police of cities and towns in the vicinity were informed of the break and a very good description of the boys was sent out.

Lieut. Maher saw two boys leave a train at the Middlesex street station this morning and immediately recognized them as the two Fitchburg lads. They entered a lunch cart in the vicinity of the depot and Lieut. Maher and Patrolman Dooley subsequently entered the place and upon questioning the lads found that they were the pair whom the Fitchburg police were looking for. The boys admitted their guilt and also admitted that they had police records. Shortly after the arrest the Fitchburg police were notified and the inspector came to this city this afternoon and took the boys back.

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

Warburg Says it Has Strengthened Position of the American Banker in International Finance

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 9.—Strengthening of the position of American bankers in international finance has been one of the most important results of the federal reserve system, according to Paul M. Warburg, member of the federal reserve board, who addressed the New York State Bankers' association here today.

The federal reserve act, he asserted, not only has removed many obstacles which hampered bankers and merchants in dealing with other countries, particularly those of South America, but has provided a positive method by which the country's financial interests may be unified in seeking foreign business.

Predicting that the American bankers' acceptance business would continue to grow even after the war ends, he criticized many importers, particularly of New York, for what he said was their folly in not using American exchange. He recommended that all exporters of the continent adopt a uniform monetary standard on the basis of a gold equivalent to one-fifth of an American dollar.

"With our increasing financial strength," he said, "and with the daily diminution of Europe's saving power, it stands to reason that, for a long time to come, our discount rates will compare favorably with those of Europe. Our friends in South America consider the creation of the federal reserve system as one of our greatest

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription of Freckles-Double Strength is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Freckles-Double Strength from any druggist and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength ointment as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

achievements, and their willingness to rely upon our ability to provide to a certain extent, at least—such financial aid as Europe gave them in the past is predicted upon the confidence that our new system inspires."

Mr. Warburg cited recommendations for legislation made by the federal reserve board to congress and suggested that the recommendations lead in two directions.

"The one is an increase of the reserve banks' general strength and lending power and an enlargement of their scope of usefulness in dealing with their members," he said. "The other is the removal of limitations heretofore placed upon the operation of national banks. The board feels keenly that as a matter of equity, national banks should be placed on a parity with state banks and trust companies wherever this can be done consistently with safety and conservative banking principles."

He expressed the belief that no competition to secure more members by a lowering of banking standards. The whole country would suffer if this took place."

Mr. Warburg warned against the practice of pyramiding reserves and of considering so-called excess reserves as the basis for loan expansion.

"The present absorption of our securities returning from abroad should be conducted on such a basis and scope as to turn the individual depositor into an investor, so as to increase our gold reserves rather than increase our loans on an enlarged floating supply of securities," he said. "Therefore, would indicate that everything should be done by the federal reserve system and by all the banks that are interested in our strength to watch carefully further expansion at this time, and to accumulate the floating gold supply in the hands of the federal reserve banks so as to enable them when the time comes, if necessary, to spare large sums without thereby crippling their lending power." house for the members and their friends on the night of the parade. The order was to be proud of it—and don't be afraid to show it."

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.
Lowell, June 8, 1916.

More General Orders

Thomas J. O'Donnell, chief of staff, issued general orders number three this morning and he read part of the document to the women at their meeting as it served to give the necessary information. The women wanted to know about the places of formation, but the chief marshal was unable to give that information at this time. He advised them to follow the daily newspapers closely. The orders issued today were as follows:

General Order No. 3

1. Aides to the chief marshal will wear silk hats, frock coats, dark trousers, black leggings, and black shoes.

2. The division marshals other than those in military uniform will wear a light-colored shirt with a white necktie and a white armband on the right shoulder to the left hip.

3. An aide from the chief marshal's staff will be assigned to each division marshal to assist in the formation of the division.

4. Division marshals will form their divisions as per roster and no one is authorized to make any changes. All parties are notified that the chief marshal will transmit his orders only by members of his staff, his aides or orderlies. Orders received in any other way on the evening of the parade will be considered erroneous and will not be obeyed.

5. Military organizations will march company front. All other organizations will march ten files front, single rank, the distance between ranks will be five feet and this formation must be maintained throughout the entire route. Under no conditions must an organization break into a column of fours. The guide during the march will be right. During temporary halts the units of a division will close up to close order so that no distance will be lost on resuming march. Every member participating in the parade is urged to do all in his power to preserve order on the march and prevent congestion or confusion at points of dismissal.

6. Military organizations will salute as called for in their regulations. All other organizations will salute by extending eyes right on arriving at a point 5 paces from the reviewing officer.

By order of the Chief Marshal,
Thos. J. O'Donnell,
Chief of Staff.

The Women Present

The following women, all active workers in connection with the parade, attended the meeting held in Page's banquet hall, this forenoon: Miss Grace Cummock, Mrs. Thomas B. Doe, Mrs. Julian Keyes, Mrs. E. F. Lamson, Mrs. A. D. Prince, Mrs. A. J. Murkland, Mrs. E. D. Holden, Mrs. J. W. Meigs, Mrs. H. D. Pickering, Miss Eleanor Bell, Miss Katharine Darracott, Miss Martha Worcester, Mrs. Mary A. Hall, Mrs. F. B. Shedd, Mrs. B. H. Pillsbury, Mrs. James E. O'Donnell, Mrs. Gardner W. Pearson, Mrs. H. Hutchins Parker, Miss Ella M. Purke, Mrs. E. J. Meigs, Mrs. A. H. Melge, Mrs. William A. Mitchell, Mrs. Rose Jordan Hartford, Miss F. S. Harris, Mrs. S. E. B. Shepard and Mrs. Robert F. Marden.

There has been considerable inquiry as to how, but enthusiasm along this line is very great inasmuch as the committee on arrangements has made it very plain that nothing of an advertising nature can enter into the parade; that the parade stands for patriotism and preparedness, and for those two words alone. The committee received notice this morning, however, of a float, "The Gem of the Ocean," which will be occupied by Miss Grace L. Holdsworth, of 44 Cornell street, and several other young ladies. This will undoubtedly be a very charming feature of the parade.

Congressman Rogers' Letter

The following is a copy of Congressman Rogers' letter to the mayor:
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.,
June 7, 1916.

Hon. James E. O'Donnell, Lowell, Mass.

My dear Mr. Mayor—I am just in receipt of your letter of the 5th instant and hasten to express my appreciation that the committee in charge of the Preparedness parade has selected me as chief marshal. I shall probably not be in Lowell before Monday, but will thereafter communicate with you and assist in any way possible in the arrangements for the parade.

I am of course entirely content that the committee should proceed with all arrangements.

Again thanking you and the committee for the designation, I remain,
Very sincerely yours,
John Jacob Rogers.

Later in the day the mayor received a telegram from the congressman advising him that the latter would arrive in Lowell tomorrow and would start right in and help boost the parade.

City Hall Employees

The girls at city hall will not join in the parade, despite the best efforts of City Messenger Owen Monahan, whose tactful entreaty failed him for the first time. Owen called a meeting of the city hall employees yesterday afternoon and the meeting was held in the mayor's reception room. It was some meeting. Owen made a speech, but even that did not move the charming girls, who for the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, showed tendencies of "stone heart." The genial city messenger wore his most captivating smile and spoke as follows:

"This meeting has been called by me simply for the purpose of getting you all together to decide what part city hall is to take in the preparedness parade next Wednesday night."

"Every movement needs a head, and for that reason I sent out notices bearing my signature. My part now is ended and it is up to you to choose someone for a leader."

"This meeting is now open and suggestions and ideas are requested and desired from each and everyone of you."

Some say that the people of city hall have grown but little enthusiasm for a project that started here. Let us get together and give that statement the lie. Let us show our friends on the outside who say that we are creatures of pampered idleness and luxury, that we are 'live wires.' Speak right up. Let us all do our part."

"Ladies and gentlemen, my part is done, and this meeting is now open."

Owen's words were greeted with great applause, but the girls remained firm in their decision not to parade. They did volunteer, however, to provide a band for the men of the various municipal departments who will parade.

AMERICANS IN ENGLAND

Those Subject to Income Tax Must Sell to or Deposit With Government Their American Securities

LONDON, June 9.—Americans domiciled here who are subject to the income tax must sell to or deposit with the British government their American securities under penalty of an extra two shillings tax. This information is given to The Associated Press today by an official of the American dollar securities committee. The ruling holds whether the securities are held here or in America.

The tax of two shillings, added to the income tax, will apply to Americans who have resided here long enough to become subject to the regular income tax, the incidence of which will be followed except that no abatement will be granted on American securities which appear on the government's list. If American securities are deposited with the government only the usual income tax with the ordinary abatements, will be charged, but the government prefers to purchase the securities outright, in the event that Americans resident here deposit their American securities held in the United States the government will collect the interest and pay it to the owners in sterling. American residents owning such securities in America may either deposit them with or sell them to the government through the agency of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York.

It is not unlikely that when this ruling becomes generally known there will be an exodus of wealthy Americans living in England. The American embassy and consulate have been besieged of late by American residents seeking information on this point, many of whom threaten to depart from the country unless the government makes an exception in their favor.

A member of the dollar securities committee who discussed this matter today was positive that all residents subject to the regular income tax will be liable for the penal addition unless they dispose of their American holdings. Residents who are now liable to a tax on unearned income will be compelled to pay five shillings in the pound, while those in whom the super-tax applies will pay still more unless they meet the government's demand.
